the 34-inch water main which will be laid from Mount Tabor reservoir No. 2. this reservoir for a distance of two miles. The pipe line follows down the west slope of Mount Tabor to West avenue, and thence to the Base Line road, which is as far as the pipe sections have been dis-tributed. Joseph Pacquet and Joplin & liebisch have the contract for laying this to work yet, but have a steam digger at Meant Tabor, preparatory to starting work. This machine is expected to ex-cavate the trench for the big main rapdly, plowing up and through the earth to one side much more rapidly than such work can be done by hand. The Peninsula end of this pipe line is completed to Portsmouth, and it only remains to lay the reservoir end, when that portion of the city will be furnished with water from the high service. Woodlawn people were promised Bull Run water on com-pletion of this pipe line. The people on the Peninsula are anxious to have the connection made with the Mount Tabor reservoir before the Summer months, to prevent a repetition of the water famine of last year in that section. Gaelle League Arranges for a Fine Programme at Marquam Theater. Where Celebrated Irishman Will Lecture.

Dr. Douglas Hyde, the eminent Gaelic leader who is to lecture on the Gaelle leader who is to lecture on the Gaelle revival at the Marquam Grand Theater Thursday evening, left San Francisco last evening for Portland, and will arrive here tomorrow morning, instead of this morning, as previously anticipated. The cause of his delay was the inability to secure accommodations on Sunday evensecure accommodations o ing's train for Portland.

The committee on reception met last evening and the message announcing the delay was read and a change of plans was immediately discussed. As Dr. Hyde is to be in the city only two days, the committee decided to dispense with the committee decided to dispense with the excursion to the Upper Columbia, and rearranged the details of the entertainment programme accordingly.

The after-tomorrow dialogue, furious caperings and dancing, topical ditties, comicalities of a musical kind and every other description. The piece is picked up at the start and kept flaring to the strong breeze in fluttering and streaming raciness to the final curtain. It is appropriately called a musical cocktail. The young girls composing the pony ballet are on the stage almost constantly, as the ever-changing scenes rush by. One objection to the production is that it is essentially an actor's skit, having most of its gags and allusions bearing upon the idiosycrasies of the histrionic profession. Yet this fact does SEVEN WILL DIE FOR ONE histrionic profession. Yet this fact does not prevent "The Ghost That Never Walked" and other numbers from being supremely poetic and effective. The scenic investiture is so ample and brilliantly executed that the whole thing is wrapped in a glamour that litts you into the realm of distinctly high-class stage representations. She has the part first made familiar to New Yorkers by Alice The suspected Corean was chased Fisher, and afterward taken by Sadie Martinot. I think the last one taking the Martinot. I think the last one taking the part is not the least of the three. Mr. Graham is an old friend whose cleverisms are always welcome. Mr. Muce is simply side-splitting with his drolleries. It is buriesque pure and simple, with lots of acceptable comedy thrown in, and every last portion of the mixture is flavored with Tabasco sauce. There is a maze of good things at the Grand this week, chief among the lot being the Three Armstrongs, Mr. and Mrs.

Robyns and the Bell Trio. Regarding the trio, it consists of three young men with pleasing voices, and they were encored so frequently at yesterday's performances as to prolong the show fully ten minutes. The Armstrongs take a place in the front rank when it comes to doing tricks on bikes. They are not only trained acrobats, but they have a hearty way of weaving fun up with their act so as to make it wonderfully engaging. Mr. and Mrs. Robyns presented the touching little dramatic sketch. "Counsel for the Defense." Mr. Robyns, as the old lawyer. fense." Mr. Robyns, as the old lawyer, does a clever piece of character work. Other numbers on the programme are: Miss Marie Laurense, operatic singer; Zeraldas, up-side-down performers; Welch, monologist: Master Harold Hoff, illustrated song singer and moving pic-tures. Same bill all week,

Pantages.

A remarkable exhibition of the hypnot ist's art is presented by Rosco, who heads the new bill at Pantages this week, Rosco made his first appearance yesterday, and was received with enthusiasm, his feats arousing the amazement of even those skeptics who had come prepared to scoff. Rosco does many feats that those who don't believe in such things will find it mighty hard, if not altogether impossible, to explain. There are a number of good supplementary acts on the programme. The Winchells, with their trick plano exhibition, are a laughable and entertaining trio; the Marshalls, in their singing spe-claity, made good with yesterday's audience; the Dayton Sisters do a good sing-ing and dancing turn; Ed Geyer is an equilibrist of extraordinary skill; Leo White sings an illustrated ballad, and moving pictures conclude the performance. The same programme will be offered all this week.

The Star.

There is a world of fun in the Star's bill this week. It is essentially a comedy offering, and the humor comes thick and fast. The bright little comedy sketch, "Financial Embarrassment," holds the top of the list, and, as viewed on the stage, the money troubles of the Guises is onlong laugh. Riley and Levigne adds a able comedy sketch. Then Harry Fink, Hebrew impersonator, passes out a lot of good jokes that bear the stampmark of originality. Fairfield and Morton are on hand with still more comedy, and by way of pleasant variety the Fowler Brothers do a clever balancing act which contains a number of new features, Will Hoyt sings an illustrated ballad, and moving pictures conclude the show.
