RUINED BY BLASTS

Katherine Martzloff Asks Damages for Shattered Nerves. SUE CONTRACTOR SWEENEY

Plaintiff Claims Dynamite Was Recklessly Used in Quarrying Rock Near Her Home in Marquam Gulch. A damage suit of somewhat unusual nature in which Mrs. Katherine Martzloff seeks to recover $10,000 from John W. Sweeney, a contractor, was tried in Judge Cleland's court yesterday without a jury, and was taken under advisement. Mrs. Martzloff is an old resident of Portland, and is the mother of a family of grown children. Her home is in Marquam's Gulch at the head of Sixth street, and close by Mr. Sweeney has a quarry. To loosen the rock it has been necessary to blast from time to time. Mrs. Martzloff complains that the shots of dynamite caused pieces of rock, large and small, to be thrown upon the roof of her house and through the doors and windows and the shocks of the blasts would shake the dishes and other articles in the house. Says She Was Terrorized. These blasts terrorized her to such an extent that finally in April, 1935, she was taken ill and it is alleged that she is a nervous physical wreck, and was previously a strong, healthy person. She was not present in the courtroom yesterday because it is said she was unable to leave her home. Her son, Henry Martzloff, testified concerning the blasts and said he met Sweeney last year in the office of Bernstein & Cohen by appointment and asked him to discontinue the blasts. Mr. Sweeney promised to do so at the expiration of six months, and offered to rent

the Martzloff residence for that length of time for $10 per month so as to permit the family to live elsewhere. Martzloff, who does not reside with his parents, said he could not find them another house less than $18 to $20 per month, so they remained where they were. He said Mr. Sweeney never offered to buy the property nor lease it permanently to his knowledge. Mrs. Christine Wagner, a daughter of the plaintiff, declared: "When they would call 'Fire' everybody would run, and we would run too." She also stated that the foreman said it was dangerous and told her mother's illness resulting from the nervous strain. Other members of the family and neighbors testified. Drs. W. I. Cottel, J. H. Bristol and S. H. Sheldon testified that Mrs. Martzloff suffers from nervousness and a weak heart. For the defense J. B. Groat, who was foreman of the quarry for a number of months in 1932, admitted that in the beginning they had an inexperienced powder man and rocks from several blasts struck the Martzloff house, but did no serious damage. Foreman Tells His Story. He said Mr. Martzloff complained and said his wife was sickly and she shocks hurt her. Mr. Groat said they got a new powder man. Mr. Sweeney admits that there was some damage, but not great, and is willing for the court to assess it, but neither he nor his counsel, Joseph Simon, concede that the blasts are responsible for Mrs. Martzloff's ailment, but say it is a result of natural causes. An effort was made to show that Mr. Sweeney had been willing to buy the property. The house was empty when he first acquired the quarry. Dr. Andrew C. Smith was agreed upon by both sides to examine Mr. Martzloff as to her physical condition and its probable cause and report to the court. Frank Schlegel and Claude Strahan appeared as counsel for plaintiff.

Conductor and Passenger "Mix."

Conductor Nos was in charge of a car on the Portland Railway line and, according to his story, he collected Yoder's fare and afterwards Yoder's friend, seated by his side, paid for two. Nos says he did not notice the collection of the extra 5 cents, but that Yoder tapped him on the foot, and told him he had paid his fare. "Why didn't you say so?" asked Conductor Nos. "Don't get 'rocky' about it," said Yoder, "you appear to be too smart for your breeches, anyway." This apparently ended the matter, as Conductor Nos repaid Yoder, and not until Yoder started to leave the car did further trouble arise. Accounts at this point are widely at variance. Conductor Nos swearing that Yoder applied foul epithets to him, and Yoder declaring that Nos, without any provocation, followed him and attacked him from behind, striking him five times before he could get a club with which to defend himself. Conductor Nos was quite frank about the case, saying that he struck the first blow, numbering five, and thought that because of the names he says Yoder applied to him he had a right to attack him. Judge Cameron said he believed vulgar language was used by Yoder, and continued the case until this morning, in order to allow time for Nos to produce an unbiased witness. Frank Williams, charged jointly with Jesse James Shewell with the hold-up and robbery of the Victoria Hotel, yesterday was admitted to bail in the sum of $50, which was given, and he is now at liberty, pending the outcome of the case. He claims he was not in Portland on the day of the hold-up and robbery, he setting up that he was in a Washington logging
