APRIL TERM BEGINS

Some Called as Jurors Are Excused.

MANY CASES TO BE TRIED

Three Are for Murder—Jew Nun, Paul Musa and George Blodgett, and the Divorce Suits Are Numerous.

The April term of the State Circuit Court began yesterday, and as usual many persons called to serve as jurors were excused. Presiding Judge Frazer, as he has frequently done in the past, delivered a brief speech concerning jury duty, and said he hoped few would ask to be relieved from service. It happened, however, that many farmers had been summoned, and as they much desired to be on their farms at this season, especially when the weather was favorable, nearly all asked to be excused, and, together with others, the list of those allowed to go numbered 25, as follows:

E. W. Amesbury, A. T. Axtell, W. A. Alcorn, W. H. Adamson, August Anderson, Chris Algeheimer, Charles A. Anderson, Alfred Bruner, James Beal, Amos Bab, Peter Bauer, F. A. Ballin, Arthur E. Davis, Louis Dick, R. Duernard, William Gadnamke, Jerry Glass, J. N. Hartley, F. A. Heikemper, W. E. Harris, J. F. Kelly, E. A. Leigh, M. C. Metcalf, Frank Richey, D. Sullivan, John Strucken, W. C. Shanting, J. L. Tindall, Abe Zahler.

Jurors accepted and sworn in were: F. N. Alexander, Alfred Amond, E. A. Allen, Alfred Baker, D. E. Buchanan, Henry Barndrick, William Bartlett, Fred Baumgartner, Samuel Bissinger, M. F. Brady, H. J. Blasing, S. A. Baybrook, B. Coffey, Charles W. Dart, Patrick Barry, Anton C. Edmunds, R. W. Gibbs, C. Holcomb, Patrick Holland, Herbert Kubik, Christ Malare, Peter Streiff, Jack Sullivan, Charles J. Cook.

A special venire will have to be drawn to fill the panel. The present term will be a long one. There are many cases on the trial calendar, both civil and criminal, and also divorce suits. There are three murder trials—Jew Nun, Paul Musa and George Blodgett.

In the last case Charles F. Lord, attorney, filed a demurrer to the information, on the ground that it charges more than one crime. The demurrer was overruled. Mr. Lord also filed a motion to strike the following matters from the information:

He, the said George L. Blodgett, then and there unlawfully, feloniously, and poosely and of his deliberate and premeditated malice, killed and murdered her, the said Alice Minthorn, commonly known as Alice Gordon, for the reason that it was surplusage and a conclusion, and not a statement of fact. The motion was also overruled. The case has been set for trial Friday, April 12.

Damage Suit Drags Along. The suit of Charles F. Candiani, administrator of the estate of Pietro Donacel, against the Oregon Water Power & Railway Company, set for trial in the State Circuit Court yesterday, was continued until April 12. Donacel was killed in April, 1932, in a street-car collision on the Madison-street bridge. The suit, which is for $5000 damages, has dragged for one reason or another. W. T. Moir, attorney for the company, several days ago filed an amended answer, reciting, among other things, that Donacel rode on the platform when there was plenty of room inside of the car. Dan J. Marlarke, attorney for the plaintiff, asked for a continuance so as to prepare for new issues raised by the defendant.

Appeals From Justice Court. Appeal papers from Justice Reid's court to the State Circuit Court were filed yesterday in the damage suit of E. F. Gray, a cook, against James Anderson, a hotel-keeper. Anderson, on December 2, 1935, struck Gray with a scap-shovel and broke his arm in two places. Gray sued for $250 damages, and a jury in the lower court comprised of David S. Stearns, Mat Poehler, H. C. Coleman, E. Killfeather and Rip Westheimer, returned a verdict in his favor for $180 and costs. Anderson appealed. Anderson was recently convicted in the State Circuit Court on a criminal charge for striking Gray. His defense has been that Gray was malicious and attacked him with a large knife.

File Incorporation Papers. J. M. Crook, A. A. Unruh and E. A. Knotts filed incorporation articles yesterday in the Crook-Unruh Manufacturing Company; capital stock, $250,000. The objects of the company are to manufacture and sell lawn mowers.

Incorporation articles of J. Wood Iron Works Company were filed in the County Clerk's office yesterday by John Wood, Mary C. Wood and C. F. Schmeier, capital stock $10,000. The objects are to manufacture machinery, drugges, vehicles, etc.

Articles of incorporation of the Patterson Lumber Company were filed yesterday by Mandine Olsen, T. W. Kord and N. D. Simon; capital stock, $25,000.

Must File New Answer. The demurrer to the answer of the Northern Pacific Terminal Company in the case wherein the Government is seeking to collect a penalty for the alleged violation of the safety-appliance law, was sustained by Judge Wolverson in the Federal Court yesterday. Suits under this law were recently brought against the Southern Pacific, O. R. & N. Northern Pacific and Northern Pacific Terminal Company. The latter is the first to contest the case, and having lost the first point will now be given time to file another answer before final action will be taken.

taken. In the answer filed the company contended that it was not a common carrier.

Oil Property Tested. The charge of selling inferior coal oil brought against Bards & Co. by State Food and Dairy Commissioner Bailey was dismissed in Justice Reid's court yesterday. Commissioner Clark, of Washington, who had been subpoenaed, appeared before the court to state that he had given the defendants a permit to sell the oil after having tested it and finding it up to the standard. His tests were made, it is supposed, on different parts of the shipment than that tested by Mr. Batley.

Appointed as Administrator. J. Francis Sinnott was appointed in the County Court yesterday administrator of the estate of his cousin, Edward L. Sinnott, who was killed in an O. R. & N. Co. train accident. The estate consists of a claim against the company for $5000 damages. The heirs are Anna Sinnott, the mother of the deceased, and Nicholas, John and Francis Sinnott, brothers.

WILL MAKE PRESSED BRICK Company Secured Land for Large Plant at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee will have a large pressed-brick manufacturing concern, with an investment of $2,000,000. Yesterday, the Pressed Brick Company, just formed by some Eastern men, closed a deal for a tract of land off D. H. Hendes's farm, on the Willamette River, northwest of and adjoining Milwaukee, 125 feet wide by about 300 feet long. This piece extends from the Oregon Water Power & Railway Company's track to the Willamette River just south of the Knight Summer home.

The intention of the new company is to ship at once pressed brick-making machines costing $12,000 to Portland for use in this new plant. Buildings and docks will be erected suitable for lat turning out of large quantities of pressed brick. The company will have both rail and water transportation facilities. The factory will employ many men, and will be an important industry for Milwaukee.

MRS. STONEBERGER DIES Ex-Teacher of This City Passes Away in Los Angeles.

The news of the death at Los Angeles of Mrs. Adam Stoneberger, who was formerly a resident of this city, has been received here. Mrs. Stoneberger was formerly Mrs. Herman S. Buck, who, with his father, operated a paper mill at Oregon City several years ago. On the death of her first husband, Mrs. Stoneberger occupied a position as teacher at the Bishop Scott Academy, which position she held under Dr. Hill for ten years. After her marriage to Adam Stoneberger, she moved to Colfax, Wash., but continued ill health necessitated her seeking a warmer climate, and she went to Los Angeles, where death ended her sufferings last week.

THEIR STORIES VARY

Troubles of the Schillings Told in Court.

QUARREL OVER THE CHILD

Record of a Day's Doings in the Municipal Court With the Punishments Imposed Upon Offenders by Cameron.

Stories related by Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Schilling as to the trouble that occurred between them at 29 Sixth street Sunday morning, as told in the Municipal Court yesterday morning, were widely at variance.

Mrs. Schilling objected to her husband taking the child out because it was ill, she said. Over this matter, the quarrel ensued, ending in a mix-up in the room of the apartment-house that resulted in a little while later in a fight, a policeman, and later the arrest of Schilling by the police.

Judge Cameron after hearing both sides of the case, said he thought the testimony of Mrs. Schilling was correct, and that the circumstances he believed there might be trouble if some action were not taken by the court, and he therefore placed Schilling under bond.

"You're close enough," shouted C. T. Temple, a British Columbia mining operator, when four policemen approached him Sunday evening as he stood in a hallway of the Hamilton building.

"We are close enough," remarked one of the policemen, when of a sudden Temple jerked out a revolver and leveled it at the oncoming bluecoats.

"You are," repeated Temple, as he flourished his weapon.

"I think he's right, all right," commented another policeman.

"Well, I'll admit he has argument on his side," said another.

"He may be wrong, but I would not dispute the word of a gentleman," chimed in the fourth.

"Shall we close in on him?" queried one of the squad.

"You're close enough," ominously remarked Temple.

He finally surrendered, however, was arrested and charged with being drunk, disorderly conduct and carrying a concealed weapon. Judge Cameron fined him $5.

came to Portland without the baby. It was left with the father. Recently, however, the child was placed in her care, and it was because the father called to his mind and wished to take him out to a park Sunday morning that caused the trouble, it was shown.

Mrs. Schilling objected to her husband taking the child out because it was ill, she said. Over this matter, the quarrel ensued, ending in a mix-up in the room of the apartment-house that resulted in a little while later in a fight, a policeman, and later the arrest of Schilling by the police.

"You're close enough," ominously remarked Temple.

He finally surrendered, however, was arrested and charged with being drunk, disorderly conduct and carrying a concealed weapon. Judge Cameron fined him $5.

For working a horse that was unfit for service, J. Saitan was fined $5.

T. J. Reeves, aged 35 years, got into a scrimmage with Patrolman Burri's father at Portsmouth Friday evening, and a fight ensued, resulting in the arrest of Reeves by the young officer. Clubs, a knife and foul language played leading parts in the mix-up, but Reeves was finally subdued and escorted to police headquarters by the officer. The trouble started over an outfeed, in which some of the Burri hens were scratching. Reeves ran them off the field, starting the trouble.

Reeves was fined $10 by Judge Cameron, at which Attorney James Gleson remarked that he would prefer charges against Patrolman Burri, who, he claimed, held Reeves while the officer's father struck him in the face.

Multnomah County to build new septic tanks at the Poor Farm. The septic tanks now in use have become defective and emit noxious odors, and the residents in the vicinity complain of the offensive smell. A Mr. Murphy is an expert in the building of these tanks, but his present address is unknown to the county authorities. Judge Webster contemplates the erection of a new brick building for a County Hospital, and it is possible that the Poor Farm will also include among its improvements before long a sewerage system.
