Frenchman Makes High Run in Opening Game of Tournament.

NEW YORK, April 9.—In the first match for the world's championship billiard tournament, 35-inch balk line, two shots in, played tonight in Madison Square Concert Hall, Orlando Morningstar, of Indianapolis, defeated Louis Cure, of Paris, France. The score was 90 to 82 in the American's favor.

It was an uphill fight for Morningstar from the 22d inning, in which the French expert made 100, the high run of the game. The 100s did not run any too kindly for Morningstar, who took the hard luck smilingly. Whenever Cure got an unexpected setback, he, too, accepted the situation with good nature.

On the whole, Morningstar gave the cleverer exhibition. He executed some extremely difficult shots, but missed frequently on seemingly easy single-cushion carams and draw shots. Cure was sure on cushion carams, and his round-the-table shots for three and four cushions were marvels of execution. Cure played faster and with more confidence than Morningstar, but toward the close of the game the younger man improved his pace and his victory was well earned.

LONDON, April 9.—At a meeting in London tonight it was decided to form a British baseball association. Although the initiative was taken by professional football clubs, stress was laid on the desirability of fostering the amateur side of the game. Fumed Oak

The POPULAR QUAIN FURNITURE

The characteristic simplicity and good workmanship which were so evident in the old handicrafts are still features of the "arts and crafts" furniture of today. Since the quaint furniture styles have become so popular, many and varied finishes have been used to complete its strong yet simple beauty. Of all these, the "fumed" finish is distinctly the most appropriate and most effective which has ever been applied to the "arts and crafts" designs. This finish is of a rich, nut-brown tone, and when waxed is a very durable and lasting finish. The Spanish Morocco leather and the artistic copper trimmings are well adapted to the strong, artistic beauty of the quaint furniture designs.

Upon request we will send free to any address Stickley Bros.' book of colored plates showing how effectively the different rooms may be carried out in "Arts and Crafts."

IN THE CITY'S TROUBLE SHOP

An Investment in Schooners—Would-be Financier Caught Too Soon—Fred Collin's Birthday Cake

GENERALLY, on Monday morning, men enough are to be found in Police Court to fill the roster of an infantry battalion, with women enough on the side to do the washing and cooking. They are the products of Saturday night and the early hours of Sunday morning. It is around these portions of the week that most petty offenses appear to congregate.

The order of things was changed yesterday. A mere handful of men was on hand. They appeared altogether inadequate in number to represent the city's misdemeanors for two whole days, but maybe the city was better than usual—or more careful.

JIM STAKE and George Robinson were the first number on the new bill. On ordinary occasions Jim and George are associated with the steel industry. Their operations are confined for the most part to carrying steel rails for a jerk-water line up the valley and their combined income from this source is $24 a week. They have to work only a trifle of two hours a day, and have an easy time when the foreman's back is turned, which it never is.

They came in Saturday night with their earnings and immediately fell victims to the occasion. Money that came so easy was not intended for musty saving banks. They would invest it. Without ado they consummated a deal whereby they came into possession of a line of schooners and became separated from the $24.

In the heat of excitement over the big deal they forgot to keep out a dime apiece for a night's lodging. At 3 A. M. they decided to have a sleep on the city and reposed their weary heads, side by side, on the curbstones near Third and Burnside streets. Then one of Bruin's uniformed chambermaids happened along and made them arise, and go through the formality of registering at headquarters, after which he put them back to bed in an inn.

Judge Cameron heard all about it and with a perplexity that would have reflected credit on the most practiced landlord, made up his mind that capitalists who could afford to invest $24 in schooners would think nothing of paying $5 apiece for their night's lodging. He so ordered.

Jose Vila AN IMPORTED CIGAR Made in Tampa.

In July, 1905, the United States Government abandoned the enclosing stamp on imported cigar boxes, as it appeared to be a stamp of superiority, thereby misleading consumers.

The fact is that this stamp never signified anything except that the cigars were foreign-made, and it was placed on all sorts of cigars—good, bad and indifferent. The word "imported" applied to cigars has a false value.

Consider these points: The tobacco used in Jose Vila Cigars is imported from Cuba. The workmen who make Jose Vila Cigars come from Cuba. The Jose Vila Cigars are made under precisely the same climatic conditions and methods that prevail in Cuba.

It is really an imported cigar made at Tampa—and its excellence is guaranteed. There isn't a particle of difference in quality and workmanship between the very best cigars made in Cuba and the Jose Vila. However, there is an important difference in the import duty paid.

The duty on cigars of medium size is $45.00 per thousand; on the quantity of tobacco necessary to make them it is only $2.50. Nine-tenths of the duty is saved by making the Jose Vila of imported tobacco at Tampa instead of in Cuba, only $10 miles away.

The consumer reaps the benefit of this saving by getting a better value for the same money he ordinarily pays for cigars.

Why the Jose Vila is Better Than Most Imported Cigars

In one small district on the island of Cuba the best tobacco in the world is grown. It is known as the Vuelta Abajo District. The soil is a coral formation, slacked by excessive rainfall. An air current, known as the Gulf Stream, crosses to the south and east of the Vuelta Abajo District, drying and reuniting to the northeast, creating a warm mist and fog (similar to the fog on the Pacific Slope) which irrigates the plant at critical periods of its growth, and produces the fragrance, the aroma and the aroma of the tobacco.

To produce a cigar like the Jose Vila, tobacco as perfect as the Vuelta Abajo product must receive special treatment. To ferment tobacco to the point where the unwholesome gases and moisture that cause irritation of throat and nose are evaporated, the cigars unavoidably lose large quantities through rot and decay. This loss falls upon the makers and the retailers, for the consumer pays no more than for an ordinary high-grade cigar of the same size. You must get the genuine Jose Vila leaf, properly cured, if you want to enjoy the high flavor, delicious fragrance and soothing aroma so loved by connoisseurs in fine Havana cigars. It is exclusively in Jose Vila Cigars.
