Jerome After Hearst's Nomination Forgers.

WANTS "MAN HIGHER UP"

Goldberger's Confession Raises Interesting Question About Municipal Ownership Holders of Office in New York.

NEW YORK, April 12—(Special.)—The latest complication in the extraordinary Mayorally mix-up in this city has been brought about by District Attorney Jerome. He is authority for the statement that if Hearst is seated as the result of quo warranto proceedings, he can be kept out of office, because he never was leavely a complicate an explicace to surlegally a candidate. As evidence to sup-port his contention Mr. Jerome has Ben-jamin M. Goldberger under arrest, and Goldberger has been making confessions at a great rate

The specific charge against Goldberger is that he forged the names of voters to certificates of nomination for municipal ownership candidates in several districts prior to election. Hearst and all the candidates who ran with him, not be-ing the nominees of any regular party, were forced to secure their place on the ticket by petition. The law requires that a certain number of registered voters must request the nomination of the can-didates and have their signatures certified to by a notary publi

Here is the statement which Mr. Je-rome made in court when Goldberger was arraigned: From an investigation made by my office there is reason to suppose that from 15 to 20 per cent of the municipal ownership certificates of nomination were formerly. After Goldberg had been held for examination he personally, requested an interview with the District Attorney, and, it is reported, made some astonishing revelations.

"I am now," said the District Attorney am after the man higher up and hope

The nominations of the three municipal ownership candidates who ran in all five boroughs. William Randolph Hearst for Mayor, John Ford for Controller and J. G. Phelps Stokes for President of the Board of Aldermen, were made at the slleged request of 6500 voters. Only 2000 names were needed, but the others were thrown in for good measure. Goldberger, thrown in for good measure. Goldberger, who was a clerk in the Register's office, took charge of this work for the Municipal Ownership League, and was supposed pal Ownership League, and was supposed to have 20 notaries at work under him. Before the arrest was made Mr. Jerome instituted an exhaustive investigation and discovered over 2000 names of persons who positively stated that they had not aigned the petition, nor had they been asked to do so. Handwriting experts, called in on the case, declared that of the remaining 500 names fully 50 ner. the remaining 4500 names, fully 30 per cent had been written by the same per-sons. This would leave only 450 bona fide names on a petition which required

Goldberger, it is said, has confessed that practically no effort was made to actually get names. Copies of the regis-fration list were secured, and names tration list were secured, and names taken off at 'random, they being divided among the different assembly districts. "We were so busy that we really didn't think it mattered much," is the way Goldberger explained his defiance of the acted as he did under orders or not. If Mr. Jerome can land somebody high up in the Municipal Ownership party he will be a happy man, but the full extent of Goldberger's revelations has not yet been made public.

A number of the candidates who were llegally nominated were elected to office, and it is a question whether or not any action will be taken to oust them. but there are Aldermen who will remain in office until January 1, 1997, and a num-ber of county officials in Kings and Queens who are only just beginning to enjoy the emoluments of office.

If the matter comes up in the courts, t will give the Judges a problem as pur-ding as the famous one of "who is the hicken's mother—the one who lays the egg or the one who hatches it out?

Legal Puzzle for Courts.

There is no doubt but that the Municipal Ownership men now in office received a majority of the votes. But if they were never legally candidates, is it legal to credit them with the ballots they re-ceived? On the other hand, as a majority of the voters expressed themselves as in favor of these men, should the law be so twisted as to disfranchise a majority of the legally qualified voters? The question is admittedly mighty hard to solve is admittedly mighty hard to solve. In the meantime, Hearst having been beaten in the Court of Appeals and defeated in the Legislature in his effort to obtain a recount, is now preparing to start quo warranto proceedings. He figures that a final decision may be reached in about four years, and McClellan's term expires a few months before that.

Hearst Enthusiasm Fizzling.

Under the circumstances, the Hearst men have lost all interest in the Mayor-lity, but are devoting their energies to the Gubernatorial contest. But up at the Gilsey House headquarters of the Municipal Ownership League, all is not umedul-terated enthusiasm.
"We were counted out by Tammany last year," gloomly remarked one leader, who is regarded as an astute politician, "and with Tammany doing it again next year, and those slick up-state guys using the ax for the Republicans, we will have to poll a wonderful majority or be robbed to poll a whose the state of the again."

And Jerome is busy hunting for the "man higher up." He would rather land him than be Governor, so friends of the District Attorney say.

BRIGHT LIGHT ON COLON

"Why do you not have 2000?" I asked of each foreman I met. They all acknowledged what I thought to be a self-evident fact, that if 2000 men were employed on the work the progress would be just ten times as rapid as with 200 men. This, too, in view of the rapidly approaching rainy season, which begins about the middle of April. The engineers ready by April 1. The three dams, two temporary and one permanent, have been neverely criticised by engineers who are how out of the service, but if is not with-in my province to discuss these scientific features. These other facts are unavoid-able, even to the untutored laymen.

Concerning the two standpipes that were to be completed, I have been on the sites for each, and can discover nothing except good concrete foundations. As to the whys and wherefores, I know not, for it is next to impossible to learn anything concerning canal operations from the officials. Those who are in the service of the Government will say nothing, and the statements of those who have left the service for one cause or another are condemned as the plaints of the soreheads. Here is a case in point: Captain C. V. Crowell, one of the commissary officials at Cristobal had talked with me concerning the conditions at Colon, and had invited me to participate at his "mess," to which belonged several of the employes of the commissary department. The day and hour were arranged, but lo, Captain Crowell and his mates discovered that I was here on newspaper business, and I was requested not to come, as my appearance would be embarrassing to the party. What an excellent opportunity is here presented for the ascertainment of facts. Officials Afraid to Talk.

Other officials, including engineers and sanitary experts, kindly offer to "tell something," provided their names shall not be used. But if I quote anonymous officials, I will subject myself to undestr-

Health Statistics Juggled.

Returning to the question of Colon's water supply and the unhealthful con-ditions that naturally would result the health office states that there has been only one case of yellow fever since last December and only two cases since November last. Lists are kept showing November last. Lists are kept showing that the city is healthful. In the hospital I was informed by the superintendent that more than 200 cases of matendent that more than 200 cases of ma-iarial fever are under treatment, and this is the most healthful season of the year. A series of interviews with the druggists in Colon elicits the informa-tion that more drugs are being pur-chased now than at any similar period of past years. These apparently conflicting reports call attention to the ease with which vital staffstics may be juggled in Colon and Cristobal.

Colon and Cristobal.

Colon, it must be remembered, is almost childless. The joyous laughter of the youngsters is not as prevalent as it might be. Neither has Colon many persons bent with old age. This applies with equal force to the entire Canal. Zone, which is essentially a land of matured men and women. The laborers and their women usually are in the prime of life. They are best fitted to resist disease. Among many of the Government employes few have brought wives, taking warning at the cabled statement of Chairman Shonts, of the Canal Commission, that he would resign his position if compelled to bring his wife to the iethmus.

Why Health Seems Good.

Because of this condition, the mortality cannot be compared with that of any other city. Furthermore, when an Ameri-can begins to feel ill and played out, he other city. Furthermore, when an American begins to feel ill and played out, he straightway boards an outbound steamer and returns as fast as possible to his native heath. Thus the vital statistics of Colon are robbed of another entry. The same rule applies to a great extent among the negroes that are returning to their island homes at the rate of 1500. their island homes at the rate of 1500 a month. I have been told by friends of those leaving that they (the departing ones) had been feeling bad for some time prior to their sailing, and had been keeping themselves up on quinine. These cases are not reported to the health officials, and thus the statistics again suffer. All of this is through no fault of the health department, but goes to show that figures sometimes lead one astray.

With reference to the water supply and the 500,000,000-gallon reservoir. I have re-ceived an interesting communication from Mr. George T. Kenly, who was employed for six months as an assistant enginee on the permanent dam construction at a monthly malary of $250. The fact that he was employed for that length of time After Man Higher Up.

is not known whether Goldberger of as he did under orders or not. If Jerome can land somebody high up he Municipal Ownership party he will did quote from Mr. Kenly's statement will quote from Mr. Kenly's statement because it has been given circulation here, and if it is incorrect an opportunity should be given for its denial. Mr. Kenly characterizes the first dam as a "most childlike piece of construc-tion," that leaked when tested at the rate of 2,500,000 gallons per 24 hours. Be-cause of this poor construction, he says, the second temporary dam was construc-ted and he was charged with its construced, and he was charged with its construc-tion. This would indicate that Mr. Kenly knows something of hydraulic engineer-ing. The second dam has been completed and Mr. Kenly challenges criticism. Re-ferring then to the big reservoir, he says: The entire watershed is less than one square mile, and the water surface at high water will be about one-fifth of this area, whereas it is a well-known fact that the watershed should be hundreds or thousands of times the area of the impounded water surface. The country surrounding this irregular basin will no high and about 1000 feet long. The cal-culated (maximum) capacity of this res-ervoir is about 700,000,000 gallons (Mr. Taft

Then Mr. Kenly drifts into a forest of figures, from which he deduces as fol-

"it will require over one year to fill this reservoir, in fact, almost two years, if, indeed, it ever does fill, and it is my opinion that it never will, if the present plan of dam-building is carried out. But more important still is the subject of circulation. Two things are absolutely necessary in a drinking-water storage reservoir: (it, good circulation, and (2), a clean basin."

clean basin."

In this regard it might be well to say, that Mr. John F. Stevens, the chief engineer of the canal work, attaches no importance to circulation. It is also interesting to note that the annual consumption of water, according to Mr. Kenly, will be from 500,000,000 to 700,000,000 gallons. for Colon and Cristobal. Continuing, Mr.

"When the reservoir is full (admitting that it will fill), the water will back up almost to the head of each little rivulet that formed this big basin, and will thus destroy the force of any water entering here, and owing to the dense tropical growth, and the low character and small area of the surrounding country, it can safely be said that all other drainage en-tering this basin will not be felt one foot from shore. If the reservoir should fill from shore. If the reservoir should fill up and waste a million gallons per day over the spillway, there still would be no sufficient circulation, for if there was any current at all through the reservoir, it would be in the direction of its greatest length, and owing to the location of the spillway would hug the eastern shore and leave the greatest volume of water to the west in an undisturbed and inactive state. The body of water will necessarily become stagmated, and worse still approaching rainy season, which begins about the middle of April. The engineers with whom I talked said that the work could be pushed to completion in a short time with a sufficient force of laborers. On returning to town that afternoon I was surprised to find the streets of Colon full of negrous, just arrived from Jamakes and the other islands of the West Indies. More than a thousand had been brought in on one steamer, but all of them were transported immediately by rail to the Canal Zone. The waterworks was left to get along the best way it could. That is why the reservoir is now scarcely begun, when Mr. Kenly goes on at length to prove his case. I can testify to the dense tropical undergrowth and the rotten vertaining the best way it could. That is why the reservoir is now scarcely begun, the left of the could be suffered to the water is not within my requires.
