PORTLAND, Ore., April 20—The Oregon Journal, with its columnists and readers, has always been an enthusiastic supporter of the Easter Seals Movement. This year, as in previous years, we are pleased to announce that the Journal's efforts have again resulted in a successful drive.

The Oregon Journal Eagle, which is published weekly, has been the principal source of revenue for the committee. The paper has been sold for as little as five cents a copy, and the proceeds have been used to purchase Easter Seals for the benefit of the children of the state.

The Oregon Journal Eagle is published by the Oregon Journal, which is owned by the Portland Press-Herald Company. The newspaper has a circulation of over 150,000 copies, and is distributed throughout the state.

The Easter Seals Movement was founded in 1921 by the National Easter Seal Society. The society's goal is to provide assistance to children with disabilities, and to promote awareness of the needs of these children.

The Oregon Journal Eagle is proud to support the Easter Seals Movement, and to be a part of this important cause.
