GIVES BIG DAMAGES

Man Beaten by Saloonkeeper Gets Verdict.

JURY GIVES LARGE SUM

George Barber Sues W. H. Wilson for Ten Thousand Dollars, and is Allowed Fifty-Two Hundred and Fifty.

W. H. Wilson, proprietor of the Badger saloon, was the defendant in Judge Frazer's court yesterday in a suit of George Barber for $10,000 damages for assault with a deadly weapon. Barber, a bridge builder, entered Wilson's resort at Fourth and Davis streets on April 26, 1905. Beer served by women near 21 a bottle and a dispute arose followed by a quarrel because some beer was spilled on a cheap piano. Barber testified that without provocation Wilson beat him on the head with a policeman's club. Barber was taken to the hospital, and after treatment recovered from the effects of his injuries. Wilson was tried and convicted on a criminal charge soon after the affair happened, and was fined $300, which he paid. He was given the opportunity by Dan J. Malachuk, attorney for Mr. Barber, to compromise the damage suit for $230, and refused to do so. Wilson intends to endeavor to escape responsibility on the plea that he has nothing and is only manager of the saloon. The jury after a brief deliberation returned a verdict in favor of Barber for $5250.

At Menlohall, attorney for the defense, made the best of a bad case. Wilson had no witnesses in his own behalf. He testified that he was in poor health, and defended himself from an attack made by Barber, and said Barber was the aggressor.

Will Relay Street-Car Tracks.

Work will be begun today by construction forces of the Portland Railway Company in relaying the tracks on Union avenue. Operations will begin at Union and Holladay avenues, and the tracks relate to the Burnside-street bridge. The 40-pound rails will be taken up and replaced with new 32-pound steel. While these repairs are being carried on, slight changes will be made in the routing of cars using the Union avenue track. The Broadway cars will cross the river by the steel bridge and run up Third street as far as Yamhill and alternate with the Irvington cars. This change will be made today and continued for the next few weeks until the new rails are laid. Beginning today also the Vancouver, Woodlawn, Alberta and Russell-Shaver cars will cross the river easterly over the steel bridge and westerly over the Burnside bridge until further notice.

Reduced Fares for Meetings.

On account of the farmers' meeting at the Washington State Agricultural College, Pullman, Wash., June 3 and 4, the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company announces a one-way fare from all points in Washington, as well as Portland and Grant's, Oregon, to Pullman and return, selling dates June 5 to June 9. It is understood that this arrangement will apply to not more than ten persons from each county. A one and one-third fare is announced for June 2. It is understood that this arrangement will apply to not more than ten persons from all points in Idaho and Washington and to Lewiston, Idaho, and return on account of the biennial convention of the Washington and North Idaho

Christian Endeavor Union, to be held June 28 to July 1.

Sues for False Imprisonment.

Janac McKenzie, who resides at Arleta, yesterday began suit in the State Circuit Court, against Peter Golejo for $500 for false arrest and imprisonment. On Friday last McKenzie was arrested on a warrant issued in Justice Reid's Court, for knowingly receiving a stolen horse. On the following day the case was dismissed because Golejo failed to appear to prosecute. McKenzie in his complaint sets forth that on April 27 E. M. Rheades purchased the horse from Golejo for $250 and $10 was paid down, which he, McKenzie, advanced. The balance was to be paid at the rate of $15 a week. McKenzie avers that he held the horse as security for the money he had advanced, and Golejo finding an opportunity to sell the animal for cash in order to obtain possession caused his arrest. McKenzie asserts that he has been injured in his reputation and his good name in the sum sued for.

Cow Stolen and Killed.

L. Scott, an expressman residing at Montavilla, entered a complaint at the Sheriff's office yesterday that some one had stolen and killed a cow, which he owned. He found the feet in the woods, and does not know what became of the carcass. The cow was a fine Jersey. Several like occurrences have happened in this neighborhood, and District Attorney Manning and Sheriff Word are making an investigation, and the perpetrators, if discovered, will be arrested and punished.

Methodist Church Incorporates.

Articles of incorporation of the Laurelwood Methodist Episcopal Church were filed in the County Clerk's office yesterday by E. C. Heath, C. H. Blanchard, W. J. Terry, A. A. Anthonie and I. Swetland.

COOS BAY CONGRESS

Portland Will Be Represented by Business Men.

RESULTS FAR-REACHING

Cities of the Willamette Valley Will Send Delegates to Convention of Farmers' and Shippers' and Development Leagues.

Not daunted by the "Made-in-Oregon" Fair, which will be a great counter-attraction to the Farmers' and Shippers' Convention, to be held at North Bend May 23 and 24, the business men and farmers of Coos County are bending all their energies to make the congress a great success, and, from the interest that has been aroused among the big men of Portland and the Willamette Valley, the congress will be all that is anticipated. Not knowing of the dates for the "Made-in-Oregon" Fair at the time, the dates for the congress were set for May 23 and 24, which will conflict with the Portland displays. Notwithstanding this, the men at the head of the congress are going ahead and have received the support of commercial bodies and of business men. Five hundred souvenir invitations have been made out and are issued in the form of crab shells bearing the date and place of the congress. The steamer Alliance has been practially chartered by the congress for the accommodation of those who will go to North Bend from Portland. The sailing date for the steamer was changed from Saturday afternoon to Sunday night at 3 o'clock for their accommodation, entailing an expense of $200. F. W. Leadbeter, president of the Commercial Club, and H. L. Pitcock, of The Oregonian, will head a delegation of Portlanders for the congress. Many members of the Commercial Club will be appointed to make the trip. Sixty berths on the steamer have been reserved for their accommodation. Some officials of the Harriman lines will be delegated to attend the congress, but who the official is has not yet been determined. A delegation of 20 men from Salem and Polk County will attend, as will also other delegations from Western Oregon cities. Portland commercial houses have arranged to send representatives, and the Board of Trade and the Chamber of Commerce will second the efforts to the end that Portland may be represented on this occasion. Cordial expressions of good will on the part of Portland's commercial interests have been given to the people of Coos Bay, and it is expected that as an outcome of the congress friendships will be formed between the metropolis of the state and Southwestern Oregon.

Results Will Be Far-Reaching.

"The results of the two days' gathering will be far-reaching in financial and commercial effects," said Colonel E. Hoyer, president of the Willamette Valley Development League, under whose auspices the congress will be held. "We expect that fully 2000 delegates from Oregon will attend. Many will go by way of Drain and Roseburg besides those who will leave on the Alliance from Portland. The round-trip first-class fare on the boat will be only $12. We will leave here Sunday night, and the boat will return from North Bend on Thursday."

"This will be the seventh annual convention of the Willamette Valley Development League, which has done so much to arouse interest in Western Oregon. That Portland's business men, in the midst of their own "Made-in-Oregon" week programme should show such regard for this commercial gathering in Southwestern Oregon speaks well for the incomparable spirit of the commercial bodies." Enthusiastic Over Trip.

F. W. Leadbeter is also enthusiastic over the trip, and believes that a large delegation from Portland should attend the congress. "I regard this excursion as affording an excellent opportunity to see this important section of the state," he said last evening. "It should be taken advantage of by many of our leading citizens not only because it will be worth it as a pleasure trip, but because it also will bring our people in closer touch with the Coos Bay business men, just as the Southern Oregon and Idaho trips did with the people of those districts. The Coos Bay country is noted as one of the most beautiful sections of the state, and is especially attractive at this season, when acres of rhododendrons are in full bloom. The Coos Bay cities are gaining in commercial importance rapidly, and promise to go ahead with still more rapid strides in the future. The railroad which is being constructed from Drain will be a boon to the section, as will also the deepening of the harbor, which is probably no great distance away. The people of the region are very friendly to Portland, and a visit such as the one proposed will do much towards making still more friendly the relations which exist between the two sections."

NOT "BUSTED," "BOOSTED"

Only fifteen days in which to dispose of the large and beautiful stock of pianos and organs at Ellers Piano House. See announcement on page 11.
Takes Charge of Plant.
Alexander O'Shea has been selected by Postmaster Minto to take charge of the electrical plant in the Federal building, succeeding Lloyd Stone, who resigned to become electrician at Vancouver, B. C. The position is under the civil service, but as there were no names on the eligible list, O'Shea was appointed to take the place until an examination can be held.

PERFORM RARE OPERATION

SHATTERED SACRUM REQUIRES SURGICAL TREATMENT.

Paul Kreamer, Crushed Between Freight-Cars, is Placed Under the Surgeon's Knife.

An operation not unknown to surgeons, but which is considered somewhat out of the ordinary, was performed at Good Samaritan Hospital the other day by Dr. Hamilton Meade upon Paul Kreamer, a sailor, who was crushed between two freight-cars and received injuries to a small bone situated between the pelvic or hip bones and at the base of the spinal column. The bone was entirely shattered, causing a shortening of one of the patient's legs three-fourths of an inch. The injury was probably caused, said Dr. Meade, by some blunt instrument, such as an iron bolt. The skin was contused upon each side of the injury and the right hip was somewhat dislocated.

The injured bone is known among physicians as the sacrum, and is considered to be so surrounded by muscles and the pelvic bones that it is almost immune from injury. By pressing the pelvic bones backward on each side, placing pads on each hip and pressing forward from the operating table, the leg was brought back to its normal length. The sacrum being badly fractured, there is some doubt in the physician's mind whether it will heal or not. If it does not heal, paralysis will probably result, as the sacrum forms a balance for the body resting on the hip bones. If the operation does not result successfully, the pelvic bones are liable to fall inward, causing the lower limbs to become useless. There's nothing like Hood's Sarsaparilla for keeping blood pure and giving real strength.
