PRINCIPAL IN FAMILY QUARREL

Edgar A. Milner Sustains a Knife Wound and a Black Eye.

STEP-CHILDREN IN FIGHT

Head of the Woodlawn School, Wife and Her Son and Daughter All Go to Station But Prefer No Charges.

A deep mystery surrounds the cause of the family disturbance which took place in the home of Professor Edgar A. Milner, principal of the Woodlawn School, late Saturday night. Milner and his family live in a flat directly above a grocery store, at Alsworth and Union avenues, and at about 10 o'clock Saturday evening the people downstairs were alarmed by a great commotion in Milner's flat, accompanied by shrieks and calls for help. Postman Patton was informed of the disturbance and soon arrived on the scene. The trouble was practically over, but Milner was changing his clothes, the back of his coat being covered with blood. He had a black eye and was preparing to leave the house when the policeman arrested him. The whole family went down to the station, but none of the parties would lodge a complaint.

It developed that Milner quarreled with his wife and his two step-children, a boy and a girl, neither of whom is over 17, came to the rescue of their mother, and in the general mix-up which followed Milner was given a black eye and received a wound in the back with a large butcher knife. The wound, however, was not serious, and as no complaint was lodged Captain Slover was compelled to release the prisoner. No details of the cause could be learned from him, and neither his wife nor children would say anything about the affair aside from the fact that Mrs. Milner stated positively she would save her husband.

An Oregonian reporter visited Professor Milner's home yesterday afternoon and found the professor lying on a bed with a highly discolored right eye. He seemed to be ill, was apparently suffering from the effects of his wound, and positively refused to say anything. His stepson was by his side. The condition of the house plainly told the story of the combat the night before. Broken dishes were scattered in all the rooms, furniture in disorder and the general upheaval were a mute evidence of the row. The quarrel awakened the whole neighborhood, and at first thought some one was being murdered. The affair caused consternation in Woodlawn circles, as Mr. Milner is principal of the school, and doubt was expressed yesterday whether he would be able to open the school this morning. The matter is deeply discussed by the citizens in the neighborhood and will, in all probability, be investigated.

Attacks the Amendment Bill.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, again attacked the proposed amendment to the local option law. He reviewed an article published by Ralph E. Moody, a attorney of the Brewers and Wholesale Liquor Dealers Association, and answered its statements.

"A law written by saloonkeepers and for their exclusive benefit, backed by their organization and money," he said, "would not be expected to turn out much of a temperance document, and this amendment does not. No reasonable man would expect many restrictions on the saloon from that source, and this amendment lets down the bars for an untrammelled liquor traffic, and is wholly in the interest of that business. Nor would you expect it to be pushed fairly."

"This has been a campaign of misrepresentation; first the signatures to their petition were fraudulently secured by the use of a little circular misstating the purpose of the bill; then the wording on the official ballot is a deceptive argument calculated to deceive the voter in the very act of casting his ballot; then 'would not be expected to turn out much of a temperance document' and the amendment the liquor men had hired a clerk at the courthouse to fold a false and deceptive extra page in with the bill, 'would not be expected to turn out much of a temperance document' was a part of the official document."

Record of Milner.

Milner is well known in Portland, having been prominently identified with the schools for years. He came here from Corvallis a dozen or more years ago, and at one time was teacher of mathematics in the High School. His irregular conduct at times attracted public notice, although his record was good as an instructor.

About two years ago he went to South Bend, Wash., with his wife, and while there engaged in an altercation with her, during which it was charged he beat her badly. He was waited upon by a delegation of citizens, who gave him the option of leaving town or being tarred and feathered. He left.

Parls Green, Arsenate of Lead and Arsenic Sprays Are the Proper Materials With Which to Fight Insect Pests.

J. H. Reid, horticultural commissioner for Multnomah, Clackamas, Washington, Tillamook and Clatsop Counties, is preparing for an extensive campaign for the general improvement of fruit culture in his district. Mr. Reid succeeded W. K. Newell as commissioner, after he had been fruit inspector of Multnomah and Clackamas Counties for nearly two years. His work as inspector is well known, and is now bearing good results in these two counties.

As commissioner in the five counties named, Mr. Reid is allowed $100 for every three months, or $400 per year, which is 50 times less than California spends for fruit supervision and about one-third as much as Washington gives fruit commissioners, so that the work here in Oregon is mainly a matter of love for betterment of fruit conditions. Mr. Reid figures out that the appropriation will pay his expenses and that he will be up to his eyes in a man of ample means and deeply interested in improving fruit culture. He expects to give all the time possible, regardless of whatever loss he may sustain. Ten days of traveling in his district will about eat up his salary for three months. He has covered Clackamas County and most of Multnomah, and will start during the week for a tour in Clatsop and Columbia Counties, which may take up about ten days.

Campaign of Education.

The object of these tours, which will finally cover the five counties embraced in this jurisdiction, is to get into personal touch with fruit conditions, so that practical suggestions may be made to eliminate fruit pests. It is a sort of campaign of education to restore the quality of fruit. Much was accomplished the past year along educational lines, more than in former years, and it is hoped to do still
