SOLEMN CHURCH RITE

Aged Premier Michelsen, Who Out Bond With Sweden, Witnesses Completion of Work—Trondhjem Wild With Joy.

TRONDHJEM, June 22.—With noble ceremony, King Haakon VII and Queen Maud today were invested with the crowns of Norway. The time, the circumstances and the memory gave the occasion peculiar solemnity that produced an impressive monotone throughout the proceedings.

At the front of the aisle and near the apex, within which stood the throne facing the high altar, sat today's great man of Norway, Michelsen, in company with the grizzled statesmen forming his historic cabinet.

King and Queen Enter.

At exactly 11 o'clock the members of the Cabinet, in company with leading clergymen from all parts of Norway, with the officiating bishops, marched down the long aisle of the church to await the King and Queen in the pavilion at the entrance.

Exults in Norway's Freedom.

Norwegians, be not afraid. Let joyful hearts praise God the savior for this great hour that with us will be glorious in the saga of Norway. Six hundred years have passed since a King of our own has been crowned in our fatherland.

In the new Kingdom and beseeching them to be hopeful for its greater future, the Bishop said:

I voice the thought nearest the hearts of the people when I ask your majesties to take to the little Crown Prince a greeting from the nation. He is our hope, with him lies the future which we shall prepare for him.

Haakon Receives His Crown.

After the service a part of the cantata was rendered. Then King Haakon, preceded by the chief of the royal household, walked to the throne. He was grave and dignified. His long purple and ermine robe was borne by five young naval officers, and he presented an appearance kindly enough to satisfy any people.

Queen Maud Crowned.

Once more the orchestra and chorus broke into music, expressing invitation and welcome. Queen Maud, accompanied by one lady in waiting and three maids of honor, advanced with slightly hesitating steps toward the throne.

Mrs. B. Stanley, of 1189 Ivon street, Portland, Or., says: "Doan's Ointment is a splendid remedy for all itching skin troubles. I was annoyed some years ago with salt rheum or better on my hands. The skin was sore and tender and itched terribly at times. Different home remedies failed to have any effect on it, and I was wondering what might be best to do when Doan's Ointment was brought to my notice. I got a box and from using it found quick relief from the itching. On continuing the treatment I was completely cured and the skin was left perfectly natural, just as if there had been no trouble of the kind. I am glad to recommend so reliable a preparation as Doan's Ointment."
