COWLITZ DESIRES DEEPER CHANNEL

Washington Delegates Call on

Most of Party Represent Logging Interests and Reach Agreement Relative to Floating Logs in River at Certain Times.

A delegation of 19 prominent business men of Kelso, Ostrander and Cas-tle Rock, three towns on the Cowlitz River in Washington, visited the office of Colonel S. W. Roessler yesterday afterucon and laid before the chief of the United States Engineers for the district of the Columbia claims for the improve-ment of the Cowlitz River in order that ment of the Cowhitz River in order that the stream may be made navigable for a greater distance than it is at present. The delegates are all more or less in-terested in the logging industry which is a considerable factor in the Cowlitz County products and in addition to ex-pressing a desire for the deepening of pressing a desire for the deepening of the river channel, the delegates de-sired some sort of an amicable under-standing relative to the floating of their log rafts so that such work would not interfere with the navigation of the stream has the steambarts encented the stream by the steamboats operated by Captain Joseph Kellogg and the Kellogg Transportation Company. In respect to this latter contingency, it seems that the steamboat captain had frequently complained of the chan-met helps blocked her drifting lags. had frequently complained of the chart-net being blocked by drifting logs, which were practically running wild, and at yesterday's conference with Colonel Roessler the representatives of both sides expressed a willingness to get together and frame some means of setting the situation relieving the situation.

The discussion on the question of how The discussion on the question of how the loggers and steamboatmen were to arrange matters so that the boats would not be interfered with by the logs occupied most of the afternoon. Both sides by making concessions final-ly managed to frame up an agreement which is conditional on its operating successfully, whereby the loggers are to cease driving their booms at noon on the three week days the steamer is scheduled to visit the Cowlitz above Castle Rock, and the work of driving is to be discontinued until the river craft shall have passed above the logging point. This arrangement was made after both sides had thoroughly argued the question, and as the rival rivermen seem likely to get along by arbitration in the future no further articulon is the question, and as the rival riverment seem likely to get along by arbitration in the future no further agitation is anticipated on either side. After the logging question had been amicably adjusted Colonel Roessler was importuned for his indorsement of a proposal to deepen the Cowitrs in order to permit of the stream being visited by coasting schooners as is said to have been the case in years past. At present the stream is only naviga-ble for a very few miles by the lightest draft of the river boats, and this situa-tion the Keles delegation glaim is not sufficient to accommodate the demand for transportation facilities. In his of-ficial capacity Colonel Roessler stated that he could offer no assistance un-less the river was covered in one of the river and harbor appropriation bills. In he latter event he stated he could report to the head of the War Department that money available for dredging and deepening the river was insufficient to meet the requirements, and in this manner have the attention of the department called to the stream. The Cowilts County delegation stated of the department called to the stream. of the department called to the stream. The Cowlitz County delegation stated that Senators Piles and Ankeny had both visited the stream and also Con-gressman Jones, and that all three leg-laiators had agreed that the stream was of sufficient importance for the Gov-

toward the Orientals, for they refused to work any vessel on which the Japs were employed, and in accordance with this mandate the operators of the vessels be-lieved it best to accede to the demand, and have commenced discharging the little own men. As soon as they became assured that the ficers of the vessels had acted in good faith the longshoremen commenced load-ing the two steamers, and no further trouble is anticipated in setting them away with their lumber cargoes.
