

PLAN TO REVIVE HOLY-ROLLER MOVIES

Sampson Levins, of Corvallis, Would Succeed Creffield as Prophet.

COLONY ACROSS THE LINE

Writes Letters to Dead Leader's Dupes Inviting Them to Come to Alluvia, B. C.—Is Not Likely to Succeed in Scheme.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 8.—(Special.)—Word has been received by the authorities here that an effort is being made by Sampson Levins, a former Corvallis man, to get members of the Holy-Roller flock into British Columbia and organize a colony there.

It is not altogether peculiar and significant coincidence that the two Seelye sisters, former dupes of the Holy-Roller prophet, are located at the same place. Levins is reported as trying to make local converts at Alluvia as well as to get the Oregon aggregation to come to him.

Mrs. Creffield Denies It.

To her father, O. V. Hurt, Mrs. Creffield denied this afternoon that Levins wanted her to join him. She said she had merely contained offers of financial aid. It is a peculiar fact, however, that she did not take advantage of her father's invitation to return, since she is known to be without funds.

Corvallis people who are now in Seattle do not believe Levins can succeed in reviving Holy-Rollerism. They say he is an uneducated man, without any of Creffield's devilish craftiness or knowledge of the Bible. They believe that the notorious creed is buried with Edmond Creffield in his grave at Lakeview cemetery here.

Frank Hurt, a staunch Creffield follower and the only man to accompany the "prophet" and coterie of female followers to the last Pacific Coast camp, was looked upon by some as a possible successor to Creffield in at least continuing a semblance of Rollerism. Frank stated today, however, that he is done with the religious work and conduct it successfully.

Although he sacrificed everything and followed Creffield with the fidelity of a dog up to the time of the shooting, the notorious fanatic's influence over young Hurt is now broken.

"I am ready to go back home now to Corvallis and take up my work once more," he said yesterday. He did not believe, he said, that Levins or any other male could take the place of Creffield in religious work and conduct it successfully.

All hopes that the fanatical viper will be resurrected from the dead have been abandoned. Mrs. Creffield has visited her husband's grave on several occasions in the hope of finding it cast open and Creffield returned to the dead.

These Corvallis men whose homes were broken up by the Holy Roller, are making commendable efforts to patch up their ties with the past. O. V. Hurt, whose entire family suffered through Creffield's poisonous influence, has many things to overlook, but he has decided to stand manfully by the past. Yesterday he called on his daughter, Maud Creffield, and invited her to return home, assuring her that she would be cordially received.

Widow Hesitating to Leave.

She hesitated and would give no answer yesterday, but Mrs. Hurt has dragged her will made up her mind to accompany him before he leaves the city.

Burgess E. Starr will take his wife, one of Creffield's dupes, to Portland tomorrow. He, too, has decided to forget the past entirely.

Believing his brother George will be acquitted within the next week, Perry Mitchell has made plans to accompany Creffield's slayer to Portland as soon as he is released. He also hopes to get charge of his estate. Earlier he had returned to the old family home in Illinois.

TRIAL ENDED BY THURSDAY

Remainder of Testimony Can Be Given in Day or Two.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 8.—(Special.)—The Mitchell trial, which has dragged through two weeks, will be ended by Thursday night. That is the expectation of the attorneys for the defense and prosecution. A day or so will suffice for the remainder of the testimony, as the state will offer little if anything in rebuttal of the defense's claim. Then will follow the arguments, and by Wednesday the case is expected to be in the hands of the jury. In no circumstance is it believed the case will drag beyond Thursday; it may be ended sooner.

Principal Assistant County Attorney John F. Miller will make the opening argument for the state, and County Attorney Mackintosh will close. S. M. Shipley will open and Will H. Morris close for the defense. None of the attorneys expects to make an extensive statement and the case is simple enough to allow the presiding judge to sum up his instructions briefly.

WARNING TO THE NEGROES

Colored Pastor Gives Advice at Funeral Address of Hanged Man.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 8.—(Special.)—At a mass meeting of the negro citizens of the city this afternoon, at Shiloh Baptist Church, the fate of James Pearsall, hanged here on Friday, was used as a medium by Rev. T. Buckner, a negro, to advise young negro men and women to resolve to live better lives and become more useful citizens than he had been.

The meeting was advertised as a memorial service for Pearsall, but the ministers who had volunteered to address the meeting failed to arrive, and Rev. T. Buckner, a negro, to advise young negro men and women to resolve to live better lives and become more useful citizens than he had been.

Rev. Mr. Buckner said the fate of Pearsall, who died on the gallows in this city, should be an example for all negro men and women in Central Kentucky to lead better lives. "The law makes few mistakes in executing criminals charged with crime," he said, "and although Pearsall declared at the last moment he was innocent, his record was so bad that even members of our own race showed no sympathy with him. If the negro people in Kentucky live honest and useful lives they will not die on the gallows and will not be suspected of crime."

Ready Today in a Great Sale Fourth Floor.

"Prince Baby" has an added newness to his go-cart this season; it is collapsible. This differs from the folding style. The collapsible go-cart is full size, and so constructed that with a push here, a lift there and a twist in another place, the running gear closes in on itself beneath the body of the vehicle—and when collapsed the go-carts take up but little more space than a sitting-room chair; quite an important feature when space is limited, and a big improvement over the old room-taking build. These go-carts are made by the best known of the world's famous makers, and all come upholstered; all the springs are elliptical, making a very "elastic" vehicle—thus neutralizing jolts side-ways as well as forward and backward. Another excellent point about these go-carts is that the pusher goes to the rear, giving what is termed "ground" control of the vehicle—a more sure control by the one propelling than if the pusher were attached to the body of the cart. There's a special sale today of several makes in Go-Carts—told of below.

CANNON AIDS WEST

Blocks Diversion of Reclamation Fund.

NO DRAINAGE OF SWAMPS

Speaker of the House Opposes Senator Hansbrough's Bill, to the Surprise of Many.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, July 8.—Thanks to Speaker Cannon, the Hansbrough bill diverting $1,000,000 from the reclamation fund to drain private swamp lands in North Dakota, was not allowed to come before the House at the recent session. Had the bill been given consideration it would almost certainly have become a law, for it had already passed the Senate, was endorsed by a majority of the House committee on public lands, and only a handful of Western members were in a mood to oppose the bill in debate.

Speaker Cannon was the man who defeated this onslaught on the none too large reclamation fund, for it had been altogether unexpected, too. When Congress was framing the reclamation law, and in the years previous, Cannon was one of the strongest opponents of the proposed legislation. He believed it would deplete the treasury and interfere with other Government work; furthermore, he contended that irrigation of arid lands could be carried on by private enterprise under the Carey act, and therefore saw no necessity for utilizing public land receipts in this great work.

Since that law was written on the statute books and has been put into operation, Speaker Cannon has traveled through the West, has observed the vast benefits that are resulting from it, and today he is as staunch a friend of the law as any man from the arid West. Indeed, Cannon has proved himself a better friend of the law than many men who helped to frame it.

In the closing days of the session an effort was made to rush through the Senate a bill to take a part of the reclamation fund for draining the Dismal Swamp, but the bill was refused consideration, a number of Western Senators having been aroused to a realization of the danger that lurks behind bills of this character, and notice was served by Senator Fulton that no more distributions of the session fund for draining the Dismal Swamp, and the bill was dropped.

The Senators behind the bills providing for the drainage of the Dismal Swamp, the Florida Everglades and the big swamps along the Mississippi River, on the other hand, are determined to force through their respective bills, and it is to be expected that they will unite at the next session. The West is not strong enough in numbers to outvote the South, which is sure to stand together in behalf of these drainage propositions, and the only hope, so far as the Senate is concerned, is in arousing adverse sentiment among men from the Northern and Eastern States.

On a fair presentation of the case, the men from the West ought to be able to win out, but they can only win by standing together, and those who in the recent session voted for the Hansbrough bill will have to renounce their former vote and declare themselves against all legislation that will deplete the National reclamation fund.

The Western men in the House will have to do the same thing. It is strange that some of the strongest supporters of the Hansbrough bill are men who are eternally clamoring for a larger slice of the reclamation fund for their own states and men who would make the first objection if work in their states should be curtailed on account of the diversion of a million dollars out of the big fund for draining the North Dakota swamps.

The Hansbrough bill will probably figure in the campaign this fall in a number of Western states, and those who advocated the passage of the measure may be called upon to explain to their people. This bill is unjust; it is contrary to the spirit of the reclamation act, and it would work great injury to every state where Government works are now under construction; for every dollar in the fund at the present time has been allotted, and if the Hansbrough bill should become law the Secretary of the Interior would be compelled to recall a portion of the money allotted each project in order to get the million demanded by the bill.

Representative French, of Idaho, is one of the few Western men in the House who has opposed this bill from the start. It was erroneously stated in these dispatches a short time ago that Mr. French voted for the bill. Mr. French not only voted against the bill, but opposed it in committee and during the last days of the session. His record is on file against it, in which three other members concurred.

KILLED THE BLOODHOUNDS Escapes From Colorado State Reformatory Are Recaptured.

PUEBLO, Colo., July 8.—A special to the Chieftain from Buena Vista says an attempt to escape from the State Reformatory this afternoon resulted in the death of two prison bloodhounds and the capture of the fugitives. Leslie Eastham and W. F. Ryan by a law as today he is as staunch a friend of the law as any man from the arid West. Indeed, Cannon has proved himself a better friend of the law than many men who helped to frame it.

ROODING HOUSE RAIDED

CELLS OF CITY JAIL ARE WELL FILLED.

Peerless, Kingston and Plaza Apartments Entered Early Yesterday Morning and 28 Arrests Made.

Raids by the police on three lodging houses between 3 and 4 o'clock yesterday morning filled the cells of both the men's and women's quarters in the city jail. Preparations for the raids were carefully made, and they were carried out with such secrecy that contrary custom, not of the inmates of the places escaped.

In the first raid, on the Peerless lodging house on Morrison street, five women and two men were arrested and bundled to headquarters in the patrol wagon. Charges of immorality were placed against them, and in default of bail, they were imprisoned.

Following the raid on the Peerless, the Kingston lodging house at Third and Taylor streets was entered. Eight women and two men fell into the hands of the police. To the tune of "John Brown's body lies moulding in the grave" but substituting "Tom Kay's name, the victims of the raid went singing to jail. Kay did not appreciate the music and made deprecatory comments on the vocal powers of the vocalists. The Kingston lodgers were placed in cells, but some of them managed to procure bail and were later released.

The Plaza lodging house was the last to receive the attention of Kay and his followers. Here the haul was not so large as from the Kingston, but it added sufficient numbers to tax the quarters of the City Prison. The raiders were adopted in seven to the station. E. Burke assisted Kay in the success.
