The Beavers fell before Virgil Garvin's shoots yesterday, 3 to 1. The lanky Texan and ex-Portlander had everything necessary to a pitchers' category, and he was best at critical moments. On the other hand, if he had been given first-class sup-port, Ben Henderson might have pitched till doom's day without a run being chalked against him. Benny allowed only three hits, but two of these came in the fifth, when he was still wobbly from the effects of a hard fall at first base.

The disaster in the fifth came in this manner: Householder hit an easy chance to Lister, who fielded it neatly. Instead of covering the bag himself, however, which he could have easily done, Pete chose to play the ball to Henderson, who was sprinting to make the sack. Pete tossed the ball wide and Henderson was taken off his balance in an attempt to reach the sphere. Just then Householder hit him with the speed of an express train, and both went down, Henderson not to

The big fellow pluckfly went back into the game, but he was weak and badly shaken up. Strelb laid one down in an effort to sacrifice, but Pete Lister, to whom the ball went, preferred to play the leather to second to catch Householder, but instead he almost hit the cenholder, but instead he almost hit the center-field fence and the Siwash right-fielder scored. Mott, next up, smashed one clear and on this Julie crossed the pan. Smith, the Schiller recruit who Russ Hall picked up to fill in at left field, got life because Lister handled his attempted sacrifice to second and cut off Mott. Then little ishell, to the surprise of himself, his friends and admirers, drove a pretty two-ply swat into left. Smith tailled, making three, but Garvin and Croll, next up, were easy outs. Henderson held the visitors safe the rest of the way, but one lone single going to their credit.

Portland's run came in the third, the direct result of a base on bails given to McHale. Jimmy stole second and came in the grandstand.

It is surprising that Henderson was able to do so well, considering his injury. In the second, while attempting to stop one from Homeholder's bat, he nearly tore a finger. Add to that his later experience in acrobatics, it becomes a matter of wonder that he could have held the Siwash batters to so few hits.

wash batters to so few hits.

McLean was the only Glant who could locate Garvin's benders. Three times out of four was his record with the stick. Mac has fear or favor for ne pitchers nowadays and he bids fair soon to surpass Mitchell and McCredle in the race for slugging honors. Donahue caught a neat game, his throwing to second being particularly effective. He also picked out two hits, the last for two bases in the ninth. Jimmy McHale and Van Buren were both at their best in the field, tak-ing down some pretty lits.

Jimmy and Bill Sweeney alternated in receiving bouquets from fair friends—and Goss by defeating Agar, of Great Falls, Mont., yesterday played to the finals, and Beilinger made his way to the last round by winning from Fenton. Goss and Lewis won their last preliminary from McAlpin and Agar, entitling them to play the present holders of the state doubles championship. As expected, the local crack, Goss, got away with Agar, but at times it almost seemed as if the Montana man might seemed as if the Montana man might pull out the match. He played with de-cision and accuracy and succeeded in winning one set. Bellinger put up the best game of his career against Fenton and if he is in the same from today will without doubt give Goss the hardest test he has had this season. This closing singles match should be a great exhibition of tennis. As for the doubles, little need be said except that the teams matched are both veterans. Goss and Lewis have held the title now in possession of Bel-linger and Wickersham for two years and now they are anxious to get it back, while the present holders are as desir

Davis, of Seattle, reputed lightweight champion of Puget Sound and the State of Washington. Simmonds has met nd easily defeated all comers about the city and he is willing to meet any man at his weight, 160 pounds, catch-as-catch-can.

Davis was handicapped by his light weight, being outweighed by his opponent at least 10 pounds. At that he put up a game fight and succeeded in winning the first fall in 15 minutes by a double nelson. Simmonds' superior endurance told in the next bout, which he won on a half nelson and crotch hold in 15 minutes. The carman also took the third and deciding fall in much easier fashion after 10 minutes' work, by the same hold as had given him his other decision. The match was a lively one, and the hall was filled. A good many sports from the city journeyed out to see the match, played in the Longwood tennis tournament today, and the expected happened in each contest.
