CONTRACTOR RYCKMAN IS SUED.—E. J. Jaeger has started a lawsuit in Justice Olson's court to recover $18 from Contractor P. A. Ryckman, money which Jaeger alleges defendant has undertaken to "cheat, wrong and defraud" him out of. It is set out in Jaeger's complaint that he entered into a contract with P. A. Ryckman for the erection of a double flat, to cost $200, and that Ryckman failed to put up according to contract, with some extra costing additional to the contract price, $82.50. When a settlement was made, Jaeger said Ryckman still retained $18 with which to pay outstanding claims, which Ryckman represented to Jaeger was all that was owing. Afterwards Jaeger was required to pay claims for material to the amount of $40. He now seeks to require Ryckman to pay him $25, the amount he figures he has been "defrauded" out of. In serving the papers in this case, Constable Maize had to follow Contractor Ryckman several hours to his home, where he was in the jurisdiction of the East Side Court. Finally Ryckman came to the East Side on a streetcar, when the constable got out on him. His reply has not yet been filed.

SURPRISED BY PORTLAND'S GROWTH.—"After an absence of 15 years, spent in Chicago," remarked C. E. Cooper, today, now on his visit to Portland, "I find that I must have a guide if I go beyond East Sixth street, or be in danger of getting lost. My, what tremendous growth there has been, and what a future Portland has!" Mr. Cooper is general agent for the Northern Pacific Express Company, with headquarters in Chicago, and has come to Portland for a short vacation. With W. H. Mail, his brother-in-law, he has been trying to find out how things are getting on here, and what the business prospects are. He went out east of Portland Wednesday and took in the suburbs that extend seven miles in that direction, which has no existence when Mr. Cooper left Portland 15 years ago. Yesterday he was about viewing the big buildings going up in different sections, and he said that Portland has the best outlook of any city he has visited.

GRAND AVENUE FILL FORGES.—City Engineer Taylor and George B. Simons, of the Pacific Bridge Company, which had the contract for the embankment on Grand avenue at East Stark, have figured out that a total of 175,000 cubic yards of dirt was used. This was something of a surprise, as it had been supposed that at least 200,000 would be required. The total cost will be nearly $1,000. It is said that the property-owners will not protest, but will pay for the work. The embankment seems to have settled very little in the past few weeks, and will probably be accepted by the Executive Board. Sidewalks are being laid on both sides of the embankment to make it passable for pedestrians.

SAMMY VIGNEUX, the popular little catcher of the Portland Champion baseball team of 1901, who has retired from the diamond and is now in business in this city, will throw open the doors of his new place tonight, and a cordial reception is expected. The new place, The Cafe Vigneux, is located at the northwest corner of Sixth and Washington streets, and the well-known boniface will be pleased to entertain his many friends at all times. The Cafe Vigneux will be the only place down town handling the Ambrose-Punch beer, and the celebrated Michelob's, and the finest brews are on draft. Hot lunch will also be served to the patrons.

Judge Webster and County Commissioners Barnes and Lightner yesterday desired to advertise for bids for feeding prisoners confined in the County Jail. The law giving the County Court such power was enacted by the Legislature 10 years ago, and since that time the Sheriff has been permitted to be the bidder without opposition from outsiders. The Statute permits the Sheriff to bid.

The rate paid the Sheriff for several years past has been 17 1/2 cents per meal for each prisoner, but the members of the County Commissioners' Court think they can do better. The County officials desired to board the prisoners without entering into a bid with anybody, and to deprive the Sheriff of the privilege.

Sheriff Stevens objected, and for July presented a bid of $3 per week under the old law, which Auditor Brandes cut down to the 25-cent per day rate. Sheriff Stevens has not drawn the warrant at the requested figure, and he still declines to talk for publication upon the subject.

When T. M. Word was Sheriff, the County Court desired to take the boarding of prisoners away from him, but he resisted because Mr. Word was a Democrat and the members of the board were Republicans, and the Commissioners thought the public would gain the impression that politics was behind the move.

The bids in course of erection at the Kelly Butte for the rock-pile prisoners will soon be completed. These prisoners will be kept in the jail, and the County will feed them. They will not be included in the bids advertised for. The bids will be opened April 28.

The law provides that if an outsider gets the contract, the Sheriff shall afford him all facilities for carrying it out. The Sheriff will have to comply with this clause of the Statute, but he might harass a contractor by examining every article of food and by taking into the jail, to ascertain if hidden saws, poison or other contrabands were concealed in plates of stew, loaves of bread, pots of beans, etc.

It is now Sheriff Stevens' turn.

THE police headquarters received an urgent call yesterday morning at 7 o'clock to send the patrol wagon and all the reserve officers to capture a big chimpanzee which broke into the house of Marka Rybke, a tailor at 495 Clay street, and began to make things lively by breaking everything in the kitchen. The big monkey belonged to J. Lambert, a milkman at Chapman and Jefferson streets, and being tired of home decided to explore the house of Rybke.

Several said get a club, others advised Inskeep to put a little salt on the monkey's tail, but to Jaller Anderson is given the credit of giving the most sensible advice: "Make a noise like a Dog."

Inskeep had little trouble in catching the intruder and turning him over to the owner, who promised to present his grateful charge to the Portland News.
