

OREGON BOYS ARE PUT ON METTLE

Pitted Against Brigade of Regulars in Their Final American Lake Maneuver.

LED BY OWN OFFICERS

Colonel Gantenbein Will Be Given a Chance to Use His War Knowledge to Discomfit Colonel of Regulars.

BY GEORGE WHITE. GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, American Lake, Wash., Aug. 20.—(Staff Correspondence.)—Tomorrow will bring the American Lake maneuvers to an end, so far as the National Guard organizations are concerned. Today the Oregon Infantry is the one body of state troops left in camp, the Montana and Idaho men having pulled out for home this morning.

Colonel C. U. Gantenbein received recognition today for meritorious services during the past week, being selected by General Funston to command the second brigade in tomorrow's maneuvers. This appointment was made over several regular army officers, and establishes a precedent.

Only Guardsmen in Maneuver. Interest is added to the skirmishing planned for tomorrow by the fact that the Oregon infantry will be the one state organization engaged. In the same brigade will be the Fourteenth Infantry and the First Battery of Field Artillery.

The exact programme of the day has not yet been announced from general headquarters. The brigades will march into the field early enough in the morning to be ready for the maneuvers by 10 o'clock. The commanding officers will then receive sealed instructions from General Funston, setting forth a military problem to be worked out. They will have to form their plans immediately.

Thus the commanders in the field will be thrown on their resources. Promptness and decision will count for much under such conditions. After the splendid record made by them the last ten days, the Oregonians are determined to round this proud record off tomorrow with a victory over the regulars.

The command of the Third Oregon develops upon Major May, Lieutenant-Colonel Poorman having returned to his home at Dunbar today. Captain Bartlett, Dunbar and Smith will be in command of the Oregon battalions. Adjutant Johnson will serve as military secretary to Colonel Gantenbein, acting brigade commander. Major Sternberg, of the Oregon Hospital Corps, will serve as brigade surgeon, and Lieutenant Marcellus as regimental surgeon.

Oregonians Hold Practice Drills. In order to adjust themselves to the new arrangement of officers, the Oregonians held several drills today in battalion and regimental formations. These drills have occupied the day, which has been a very busy one otherwise. Forty-two secured leave and returned to Oregon on the morning train, duties compelling them to leave camp. The remaining Oregon regiments likewise took their departure during the forenoon.

All Oregon troops should be in Portland by 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, barring delay in the train service.

Gallagher was torn to pieces and Anders' remains have not yet been found. It is not known what caused the explosion.

Robbed While Buying Ticket. NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., Aug. 20.—(Special.)—While buying a ticket to leave for the west-bound passenger train this morning about 9 o'clock, Calvin Casteel, a Government engineer in the reclamation service, was robbed of his grip, which contained two checks totalling the amount of $155.

Pseudo-Employe of Canadian Pacific Succeeded in Passing Several Checks on Business Men Before Capture by Police.

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 20.—(Special.)—After posing for two weeks or more in Tacoma and Portland as a Canadian Pacific Railroad official, and after securing large sums of money on bogus checks on that company, J. W. White, a guest at the Tacoma Hotel, was arrested late this afternoon by Detective D. O. Smith.

White is known to have obtained over $200 on his checks, and he is believed to have got some money in Olympia in the same manner. The checks were drawn on the Bank of Canada and were endorsed by J. H. Drinkwater, manager of the Canadian Pacific advertising department. The checks were in large copies of the Canadian Pacific checks, and are said to have been made for White by an engraver in Portland.

The Tacoma police got their first tip on the man from the Portland police a day or so ago, or about the time White arrived in the city. The man was posing as a Canadian Pacific detective, and wore one of the company's badges at the time of his arrest. His name in Tacoma was to pose as a high-salaried employe. The checks of the checks passed were represented to be for salary or expenses.

The three checks passed in Tacoma were put off on some of the most substantial business firms in the city, though the Chief declines to make their names public for the present. Since his arrest in Tacoma, White has been stopping at the Tacoma Hotel, and has spent money lavishly. He was a great hand to ride about in automobiles, and at the time of arrest was riding on a street car in one. Indeed, he is in debt to one of the local companies in the sum of $58 for "auto" hire now.

White made no objection to arrest, simply remarking that he suspected the game was up. He had only a few cents in his pockets, but the police hope to find several hundred dollars cached somewhere by him. Besides a few photographs, a pawn ticket or two and a cheap watch, he had a dozen or so of the Canadian Pacific checks, all made out to himself or signed over to him. They are for various amounts. The three checks cashed in Tacoma were for $40, $89 and $100, respectively.

White admits to the police that he has passed bogus checks, and he told the police he had the checks engraved in Portland. He, however, tells the officers that he has not passed anywhere near $1000 worth of the paper. The Portland department telephoned the police here today and that the "checks" were $1000.

The warrant for White's arrest was sworn out by John O'Grady, agent for the Canadian Pacific at Tacoma, who, it is understood, cashed a check for $100. White tonight at the fall admitted that his name was not White, but alleged he was trying to protect his family, who he telegraphed him for $500 and says he was wealthy and lived in Montreal.

One brother, he said, is in the newspaper business in Montreal, and he has telegraphed him for $500 and says he will pay his debts and be released tomorrow. He says he has only $300 in Portland, and adds that he landed there with $2 and that the "checks" were "dead easy," and he got money from the start.

J. H. Drinkwater, a clever swindler, passed bad checks in this city to the extent of several hundred dollars recently while posing as the son of C. Drinkwater, secretary and assistant to the president of the Canadian Pacific Railroad. Drinkwater's career here was meteoric. He introduced himself to the local office of the Canadian Pacific as an advance agent of a party of tourists, and asked to have checks cashed. The railroad people, however, refused to honor his paper. Tho forger found other people whose business acumen was not so acute, and fanned several automobile firms and taverns for about $200. As soon as his game was exposed he left the city and had not been heard from until Acting Chief Gritzmaier last night received the advice of his arrest.

TREVES GET BOL

Big Bend Sheriff Will Break Up Gang of Rustlers.

YOUTHS ARE IN THE GAME

None of the Old-Time Horsestealers Is Recognized as Having a Hand in Stealing Horses in the Upper Country.

RITZVILLE, Wash., Aug. 20.—(Special.)—At no time in 18 years has horsestealing been so common in the Big Bend country as during the last three months. Almost every day the Sheriff of Douglas, Lincoln and Okanogan Counties are called upon to locate men and missing animals, and arrests are frequent. Sheriff Lytle, of this county, has captured two during the last month.

Officers say that the class of men in this nefarious business is not the same as that which operated through Central Washington in the early days, but younger men. No offenders have been arrested recently, and while it is believed organized bands exist, their organizations are not regarded as so perfect as those of older horsestealers.

A determined and united warfare is now planned by the officers of the three counties to break up the gangs, and as there are some of the Sheriff's and deputies still in the game, the finish is certain.

DRIVEN AWAY BY TROOPERS. Seattle Campers Unable to Get Drinking Water at the Country Club.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 20.—(Special.)—A group of people who witnessed the maneuvers at American Lake Sunday have returned home with a story of rough handling by Troop E, Tacoma's crack cavalry troop.

It is claimed about 600 excursionists eating lunches about the grounds of the Country Club, at American Lake, were denied water from the fountains within the club grounds, the fact that the water had to be pumped into a tank being urged as a reason for drawing a line against the cavalry troop.

When the crowd surged through the grounds to beseege the club building itself and demand water, their only alternative was to walk back to the general headquarters or to drink directly from the lake, where bathers were in control. The children in the party were particularly insistent upon getting drinking water, and the club officials tried to drive the crowd away.

The people would not go by and the cavalrymen were summoned to the rescue of the besieged club and its water supply. The troops are accused of riding into the grounds and driving away the public at the command of their superiors. The people fled, many leaving lunches behind.

Fight for Control of San Juan. SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 23.—(Special.)—John S. McMullin, State Railroad Commissioner, and William Shultz, who has been prominent in the fight against the Interior Secretary's plan for the control of the Tacoma & Roche Harbor Lime Co., are engaged in the bitterest political fight of the State. They are battling for the control of San Juan County.

Shultz is a candidate for reappointment as State Representative, and McMullin is supporting Eugene Gould, a Friday Harbor banker, against him. Gould and McMullin have had serious differences in the past, but McMullin is supporting Gould because he is the easiest man to use in the fight against Shultz.

Jones has approved the recommendation of the Interior Secretary that the application of the North Coast Railroad for a right of way across the Yakima Indian Reservation, upon the acceptance by the company of certain stipulations relating to the bridging of the irrigation canals and other minor matters, be allowed.

Settlement of Hard-Fought Battle Involves Concessions for Both.

HOQUIAM, Wash., Aug. 20.—(Special.)—The shingle-weavers' strike between the unions in this city and the mills of the Hoquiam Lumber & Shingle Company and Mathewson & Polson, was amicably settled tonight, both sides making concessions. This strike, which has been on many weeks, has demoralized the shingle industry on Gray's Harbor and has closed down the largest mills.

The termination of this strike ends one of the hardest labor battles in the history of Gray's Harbor, and the city tonight is thankful for the arrival of the "dove of peace."
