SATS IMPROVEMENT INCREASES VALUES. — Of course, somebody in the vicinity of East Morrison street had to say some-thing against laying hard pavement on remarked a resi East Ankeny street," remarked a resi-dent yesterday. He was indignant because of what he termed the discrimina-Burnside bridge. "A hard pavement is the making of any street," he continued. "Ask the property owners on Union ave-nue and in Albina, where they are getting every street well improved. W. B. Hall said there was a graft. What does Mr. Hall represent? The Second Baptist Church. We would have had the Grand avenue improvement under way if it had not been shelved by Councilman Kellaher. You talk with persons who are ob-servant and they will tell you that big buildings and increased valuation follow a first-class street improvement every of being petty, so let it therefore put up its streets with hard pavement, and we must do the same if we want to continue in the lead. Besides it pays. But here, the minute it is proposed to make a good improvement, somebody cries graft and opposes it."

An institution to be able to afford the lowury of being petty, so let it therefore put up its little haumer and give Captain Bruin a chance to be judged on his own merits. By so doing the public may all the more quickly he resconciled "to the view that he is a fit man for his place," as you yourself express it.

THISTLES ARE EVERYWHERE.-Notwithstanding the order of the Chief of Po-lice, thistles on the East Side may be seen everywhere in the streets and on vacant property. At East Sixteenth and East Salmon streets there is half a block of thistles, and the street at this corner is filled with them. In the Ladd tract south of Hawthorne avenue some effort has been made to cut them down, but many remain. On the Section Line Road beyond East Fortieth street there are several acres covered with a heavy growth of thisties. The bull thistle, which has a persistent growth, is the variety most in evidence.

Says Horseflesh Is Good.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 24 .- Professor William H. Brewer, professor emeritus in Sheffield Scientific School of Yale, in a brief speech at the banical Association last night, advocated horsefiesh as food. About 30 years ago Professor Brewer predicted the coming of the two-minute race horse. In his remarks last night he said the race-horse has about reached the limit of its possible speed development. With regard to horses in general, Professor Brewer said they are less liable to disease than bovine cattle that are now eaten for food, and the only thing which eaten for food, and the only thing which prefents the use of the flesh in this country is prejudice and lack of knowledge of its wholesomeness.

BRUIN AND GRAFTERS.

What the Captain of Detectives Has a Chance to Do

PORTLAND, Aug 24.—(To the Editor.)—In The Oregonian Thursday It is stated eff-

"It is not the common opinion that Captain fruin is an ideal captain of detectives, and us undoubtedly got his present appointment by means of a piece of questionable strategy." by means of a piece of questionable strategy."

If such is the common opinion, The Oregonian is inrgely to blame for it, because ever since Chrisin Bruin assumed his present duties it has had its hammer out for him. Anybody who has ever seen an efficient police force must admit that our city police are, as a whole, not efficient, and anybody with an ounce of fairness in his composition must admit that Captain Bruin has done what he could to improve the force and to weed out the incompetents, although be has been hampered by many obstacless besides those which The Oregonian has continually thrown in his way.

As a taxpayers myself, my idea is that the taxpayers are entitled to the best they can get for their money—they do not always get it, but I honestly believe that, in appointing Captain Bruin, Mayor Lane considered that he was the best man for the place by reason of his previous military and police experience. Such being the case, he was quite justified in putting him there in preference to others who did not have his experience, although they might have had the advantage of a longer residence in the city or have been the possessors of names less obnoxiously Irish.

If The Oregonian had no other motive than the welfare of the city at heart it would have at least given Captain Bruin a souars deal, but it has not done so. It has endeavored to prejudice the public against him by attributing to him every blunder made by the police, and every attempt he has made to reform the force has been sneered at by it.

However, sence Captain Bruin still holds the fort, I shall take the liberty of offering The Oregonian as wond of advice. It is the

The Oregonian a word of advice. It is the leading paper of the Northwest and, generally speaking, an admirable paper. It is too public an institution to be able to afford the luxury

The Oregonian quite cheerfully accepts whatever measure of responsibility may be its due for the common opinion of Captain Bruin, whatever it is. It has performed its duty as a public journal in chronicling what has been going on in the police department, and it has told what Bruin was doing, among others. There was much discussion and comment on the manner in which Bruin got his appointment, and The Oregonian detailed the circumstances quite accurately, as the recent decision of the State Circuit Court shows. It was irregular and illegal and made a farce of the civil service. Perhaps Mayor Lane considered that Bruin was the best man for the place "by reason of his previous military and police experience"; but he never said so. On the centrary, he has gone on record re-peatedly as saying that he was in no way responsible for Bruin. Evidently, Bruin 'just happened." Bruin has held office for a year, and it is not obvious that he has done anything for the police or detective departments. He has not uncovered the real offenses Graves, of Emporia, Supreme Court Judge of the grafting detectives, but he has of the State of Kansas, was a guest this week at the Hotel Portland, accompanied by his wife. Detective Enters House in Search of Gamblers Without Success.

It seemed for a time in the Municipal Court yesterday as though Acting Detective Smith, who, through his zeal in trying a nervous breakdown, was reported last night as resting much better. It is hoped that continued rest will greatly improve only occupants were the wife and bables Mr. Ankny's condition. of the owner, would be fined for contempt of court. The trouble lay in his cutting remarks to Attorney W. W. Banks and

Judge Cameron. It developed at the trial that Smith, sunpecting that a fantan game was being carried on at 187 Second street, broke down the door into Gum Sing's house, but found only Sing's wife with her children. Without a warrant, Smith searched the place, and in one of the drawers found a package of blank lottery tickets, wrapped in an old newspaper. The defendant declared that this package was left there by former occupants of the house, and the detective could offer no evidence that a by former occupants of the house, and the detective could offer no evidence that a lottery game was being conducted on the premises. Judge Cameron discharged Sing and warned Smith not to break in any more homes without a warrant. "If you think the law is being violated," said the Judge, "you must procure a warrant, after signing a complaint."

During the trial Attorney Ranks are.

During the trial Attorney Banks ac-cused Smith of acting suspiciously, and the detective promptly retorted that Banks tries his cases out of court. He was told to keep quiet by Captain Bruin. Then, addressing the Judge, Smith in-digmantly cried out that dignantly cried out that he does not care what the court will do with the Chinese, and might as well turn him loose.

FIFTEEN ARE ARRESTED

Martin Ready, Proprietor, and the Players Are Taken by Surprise and Fall to Offer Any Resistance.

The police authorities finally took a hand yesterday in tracing down the rumors of a poolroom running wide open in the city, with the result that Sergeant Baty, with four detectives, raided a place on Fourth street, between Washington and Alder, shortly after 2 o'clock in the

It has been repeatedly rumored that a poolroom in which anyone could place bets on horse races, and which was run as an adjunct to the Milwaukie Club, ex-isted in this city, and it is said that the exact location of the place has been known to the authorities for some time. Yesterday Sergeant Baty, with his newly formed squad of four detectives marched into a small backroom above the Warwick saldon and found 15 men in the room actively engaged in studying the sheets and placing bets.

The raided poolroom is situated in a small wooden structure, above the saloon, which was originally installed as a poolroom, but never opened, as the authorities had closed the Portland Club's poolrooms in the same neighborhood but a short time before. Sergeant Baty went upstairs and knocked on the door. The door was opened and the sergeant went in, followed by his four detectives. Race sheets were all around, and at a table, at which sat Martin Ready, the alleged agent of the Milwaukie Club, were piled several books and the tickets ready to be exchanged for money of the players eager to make an easy dollar. The paraphernalia was promptly seized by the police officers and all men found in the room arrested and taken to the station. They offered no resistance, and no attempt was made to escape. Had the door not been opened so readily, it is probable that all of them could have easily escaped on the roof of the Pullman saloon, on Alder street, but the lack of precaution taken by those arrested shows they were not in great fear of being disturbed.

Connected With Club.

Martin Ready, it is alleged, is employed by "Frenchy" Gratton, owner of the Mil-waukie Club, as manager of this down-town branch of the club. From the evi-dence obtained in the raid, it is seen that bets on the Seattle, Latonia and Windsor races were being placed by the visitors to the poolroom, and all-this evidence will be presented in court today at the trial of the arrested men.

Ready was brought into court yesterday morning on a charge of vagrancy and the case was continued until August 29. It is presumed that he thought he was comparatively safe in running the poolroom, just having been arrested and his case continued, but the police officers declare his arrest on the charge of vagrancy was a cleverly designed ruse to take Ready off his guard.

Those arrested with Martin Ready gave e room at the time of the raid.

Body of Tobiason Recovered. The body of Teddy Tobiason, the # laborer, who was drowned off a barge at the foot of Yambill street on Wednesday night, was recovered by Hugh Brady yesterday afternoon. The body had drifted beneath the barge and was lying in 60 feet of water, but a short distance from the spot where Tobiason went down. Coroner Finley buried the body at the expense of the county, as the dead man seemed to have no relatives in the city, and was without funds.
