Unveiling of McKinley Statue Marred.

RUSH TO SEE MRS. LONGWORTH

President's Daughter Has a Struggle to Escape Crush.

Hurried Lifting of Veil by Mrs. Longworth Averts Disaster to 40,000 People at Columbus. Justice Day Speaks.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 14 .- With a panic threatened in a crowd estimated at 50,000 people surging about the stand erected in the Capitol grounds, frantic to secure a glimpse of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, the President's daughter, the exercises arranged for the dedication of the bronze statue of President McKinley were suddenly terminated this afternoon after the statue of the martyred President had been hurriedly unveiled by Mrs. Longworth,

The prompt action of the committee on arrangements was regarded as most fortunate, for the crowd was beyond control and the shricking of women and children who were caught in the crush was rapidly working the crowd into a

Many women fainted and were carried out of the crowd by the police. Two were so badly hurt that they had to be removed in an ambulance, Both will recover.

Throughout the exciting scenes Mrs. Longworth remained cool and self-possessed, but afterward she said:

"It was the worst crush I ever witnessed. I have seen nothing like it in my trip around the world." Fights Her Way Through Crowd.

Mr. and Mrs. Longworth had an exciting experience in escaping from the crowd at the Capitol. From the speakers' stand they went through a window overlooking the platform into the Governor's office, but they were scarcely inside when the people began to surge through the doors. Then they attempted to reach an automobile which was waiting for them on the street, but The Legislature appropriated $25,000 of once outside they were caught in a surging crowd. Finding no immediate avenue of escape, they fought their way out of the Capitol grounds and across Broad street into the Outlook building. There they remained until a carriage was secured and the police cleared a way to it and they were driven to the #### Police Are Powerless.

The committee on arrangements had expected an enormous crowd on acworth, but in view of the solemnity and dignity of the occasion they believed the crowd would easily be kept in restraint. Under ordinary cfrcumstances the police arrangements would have been adequate, but the officers found quickly that they were powerless to cope with the crowd, Tiers of seats had been constructed across the entire west front of the Capitol, with the speakers' stand in the center. Four thousand tickets were issued for these seats to invited guests, and all were occupied.

The McKinley monument stands at the west entrance to the grounds, facing the street, and the crowd was packed into this space between the speakers' stand and the monument, The exercises were set for 2:30 and began promptly.

Vain Attempt to Quell Panic.

It was not until the band was playing the overture that the panic became apparent. Suddenly women in the crowd next to the speakers' stand began to scream for help. Then several women fainted and were carried up to the stand. Dr. Washington Gladden roseto deliver the invocation, but he had spoken only a few sentences when the roar of voices forced him to stop, Governor Harris then attempted to quiet the crowd.

"Keep back," he shouted; "you are crushing those people in front to

The Governor's voice could not be heard 20 feet away, however, on account of the

The commotion became so alarming that those on the stand asked Mrs. Longworth to come forward, in the hope that a glimpse of her might satisfy the crowd. She came to the front of the stand, and it was seen at once that something must be done, and it was decided to unveil the statue at once. Mrs. Longworth then pulled the ribbon attached to wires which drew the flags covering the statue aside. A man hoisted on another man's shoulders grasped the ribbons and the wire. and they were quickly torn into frag-

Hisses Mingle With Cheers,

The crush was stopped for a few moments, but it was soon renewed and Mrs. Longworth again came to the front of the platform and bowed to the throng. In the meantime, however, the committee on arrangements had decided to defer the addresses until evening at Memorial Hall, and as soon as Mrs. Longworth retired the announcement was made. The people struggling for their lives in the crowd around the stand cheered, but a storm of hisses came from people on the outside of the crowd who did not understand the cluding an eloquent address as follows: in the fullness of life, with a message of kindness yet on his lips, meeting the people who delighted to testify that affection and appreciation which was his highest reward for faithful and unremitting service, he was felied to earth for no other offense than that in his person he represented the head of the Nation and stood for liberty regulated by law and not for that unbridled license which knows no respect for the laws of God or man. not for that unbridled license which knows no respect for the laws of God or man.

So gentle, kind and true had been this life that not even his slayer could strike at him. With this gentleness, what mighty strength! Death meets all on equal terms. The man as he then stands is unveiled. With so much to make life dear, this gentle man did not falter when the summons came. Looking forward to retirement in the home he loved, sure of the affection of his countrymen and the respect of the world, holding the hand of his loved companion, whose welfare had ever been the first purpose of his life and whose returning strength had made the last Summer one of his brightest, he entered the shadow
