CHICAGO, Oct. 1 .- (Special.) -- The Methedist Book Concern will grant an eighthour day, establish the open shop and withdraw from the Un. ed Typothetae of today at the Rock River Conference. A remarkable scene followed the reading of the report, which had been signed by both the Eastern and Western divisions of the concern. Ministers and lay delegates cheered for 15 minutes.

The resolutions commending the action of the concern were adopted at once. This action is considered a victory for labor, but not wholly so, because of the recognition of the open shop. The fight against the Book Concern has been for an eight-hour workday. At last year's conference the Book Concern was criticised for the stand it maintained on the labor question. The new working day and open shop will go into effect on No-vember 1, but the secession from the Typothetae becomes effective immedi-ately. Presiding Elder White, in charge of the shop meetings which have been held here and elsewhere, praised the ac-

"At some of the shops we have been barred from holding meetings because of the Methodist Book Concern's position relative to labor," said he. "The union men have become antagonistic to our meetings in some of these places because of the concern's attitude. Now I believe all shops will be open to us."

"The Store's Assemblage of Millinery Is Matchless" We've taken the consensus of femihead of our announcement today. This unequaled millinery exposition of ours excels in picturesque ensemble and in the style and beauty of the hats individually. Our justification of this assertion comes from careful analysis of public comment and the opinions of hosts of competent judges who've been 'round 'mong the city stores and viewed each at its best with unbiased judgment. We are our own severest critics, but we dare not expect to influence your judgment in the matter. The truth that heads this story is as actually viewed thru the eyes of a composite critic-the public and our own expert milliners. Don't you think such a display well worth seeing?
