SUBSCRIPTIONS POUR IN TO ALASKA FAIR STOCK

Directors Will Not Receive Any Contribution That Has a Condition Attached.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 3 - (Special.)-Fifty thousand dollars in subscriptions to which conditions were attached have been rejected by the directors of the Alaska-Yukon Pacific Exposition. Most of these subscriptions will probably be amended, but the fair directors will not accept any contribution for stock that imposes any condition upon that management.

One $25,000 contribution was turned down by the board before the subscription books were opened. Though the fair management does not say so, it is understood this was the proposed subscription of the Central Labor Union. The fair directors did not object to their request that union labor be employed on fair buildings, for that will be done, but refused to accept any donation with a string tied to it, Since that time other subscriptions, running from small amounts up to $2500, have been turned back because they are not free from restrictions.

An actual count late tonight showed $579,070 of accepted subscriptions checked and recorded and enough of other contributions in process of auditing to run the fund up to $608,530. In addition, there were everal large steamship and railway cor-orations to be heard from and a large nail on the way. Last night's estimate of $650,000 in subscriptions will be realized

TWO CANDIDATES ARE UP

Mrs. Additon, Who Has Held Office for Two Years, Has a Strong Competitor for the Office in Mrs. Unruh.

NEWBERG, Or., Oct. 3.—(Special.)—It coes without saying that the W. C. T. U. is almost a unit on the question of woman suffrage and this probably accounts for the good-natured logrolling that is going on among the delegates in attend ance at the state meeting, in anticipation of the election of officers for the coming year, which will take place at the morn-ing session tomorrow. If women are to have the right of suffrage they must get into the political swim sooner or later, and why should not the leaders among women get their first stroke at one of their state meetings?

So far as appears on the surface the only contest where generalship will be shown will be in the election of president. The friends of Mrs. Additon, who has held the office for the past two years, are rallying to her support for a third time, while Mrs. Unruh, a worker of national reputation as a lecturer, has a strong following. A poll has no doubt been taken by both sides with the resuit tucked away in a sleeve, but since other delegates are booked to arrive be-fore the fray begins some slates are lable to be broken.

The leading feature of last night's ses sion was the annual address given by the president, who in a very able paper re-viewed the work of the past year and gave loving words of cheer for the future, closing with the words:
