LOS ANGELES, Cal. Oct 3-(Special) -Nagle tried to pitch again today and might easily guess the result, for with the exception of the second and sixth innings, the Champions slapped him all over the lot, a number of the swats being lucky, but making runs just the same. Brashear was out of the game and Bernard was put out at third and Ellis at centre and both did good work. The fielding feature of the game was Nagle's fine running left-handed catch of a bunt over the foul line. In the second inning, with Dillon on first, Toman shot a long fly to centre, which bounded over the fence for a homer. The LOS ANGELES.

President Bert Decides That Donohue Was League Official in Game. SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3 .- (Special.)

-President Bert, of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, has been a busy man for the last few days, deciding the various protests that have come up lately. The claim which Seattle put in agains San Francisco, when Umpire Riopf re tired in the Northern city some weeks ago, was not allowed. This means that the game goes to San Prancisco, as is recorded in the official averages.

GUNNERS FIND BIRDS SHY

Even Tiny "Chicks" Flee at Sight of Sportsman and His Dog-Good Bags Made by Portland Men Up Valley.

All the Portland huntsmen who laid aside their business cares Sunday and hiked to the pheasant shooting grounds have returned. Not all are happy, but the majority of those who put 50 or 160 miles between them and the city. returned home with big bags. They found plenty of pheasants, but they were wild and badly scattered and the shooting was difficult. Only the poor marksmen, those with bad dogs, or no dogs at all, and those unfortunate ones who hunted where the farmers had been busy all season.

ported no shooting. The best shooting this year, as for many easons past, is around Albany, Halsey Shed and other points along the Southern Pacific in the Willamette Valley, Hunters who journeyed to these points all have the same story to tell. "Plenty of birds, but as wild as hawks." which goes to show how lax have been the game war-dens. Even the last broods, mere chicks, have been hunted until the sight of a dog or a hunter a mile off sends them scurry-ing through the stubble or into the brush, where they hide. Of course the rain and the wind had something to do with spoil ing the sport, but the main trouble was due to the fact that the birds have been shot

Farmers all along the line were not backward in telling the hunters that the birds have been hunted all Summer farmer who lives near Albany, stated to number of hunters that he believed there was more early shooting of pheas-ants this season than ever before. This is the report that many of the returning shooters have made, and from all ac-counts most of the killing of the birds was done, not on the opening day, but the two Sundays preceding the opening of the season.

Farmers Admit the Charge.

The farmers make no denial of shooting heasants whenever mey feel like it. No all of them ignore the game laws, nor are they the ones who do all of the early killing. A great deal of the shooting is done by the people living in such places as Albany. Eugene and other towns along the railroad. One farmer living about 15 miles from Albany told some hunters Monday that he chased a dozen hunters off his place on Sunday, the day before the opening of the season.

Another thing that the city hunters found this season, more frequent than ever before, was the trespass notices, "No Hunting on These Grounds," and "No Trespassing." These signs were stuck on the fences in conspicuous places and the farmers were out to see that they were obeyed. However, not one hunter in 10 who returned to Portland reports that he was refused permission to hunt or places where the signs were posted, when once that none of the farmers would permit hunters to work their stubble fields and swales, is groundless.

On the overland train which arrived in the city Tuesday evening, about 30 hun-

The Abbe Fouls Silico.

In the third heat Ben White, who drove The Abbe, made an attempt to get the rail near the quarter pole and The Abbe stepped into the wheel of the sulky of Silico. In an instant Silico tripped, throwing McCarthy headlong on the track beneath the hoofs of The Abbe and in front of nine other horses in the race. A murmur of pity went up from the thousands of spectators who witnessed the accident, but this was changed to shouts of applause when they saw Mc-Carthy rise apparently uninjured. Silico ran driverless around the track into a harrow, but was caught before he was injured.

McCarthy staggered back to the stand to claim a foul against The Abbe. Neither Silico nor The Abbe finished the heat. It was discovered that The Abbe had stepped on McCarthy's head, inflicting a painful wound and serious injury. The Abbe was distanced for fouling Silico, and the heat went to Lightsome in a driving finish with Fd Custom. some in a driving finish with Ed Custer The judge allowed Silico to start in the next heat, when he won with Myron Mc-Henry in the sulky from Ed. BURGLAR IN SCOWTOWN

Scares Whole Settlement, but Proves to Be Simply Drunk.

The entire scowtown below Madison bridge was awakened early this morning by loud cries of "burglars" com-ing from one of the scows. Captain Balley was notified that a burglar en-tered one of the houses and he immediately dispatched the patrol wagon with Officers Philips and Gruber to the scene. In one of the rooms stretched on a bed was the alleged burglar, who gained admittance by breaking in through a window. Taken to the station the man, who evidently was drunk, gave his name as Tom Scott. He said he went to sleep in his own bed and he was locked up for being drunk. It is probable that the owners of the scow will charge him with trespass.

An amusing incident occurred when the officers arrived at the house to ap-prehend the burglar. A woman was sleeping in another room, while her husband was outside waiting for the officers. The woman kept on crying and reproaching the man for leaving her alone while there were burgings in the house, and the gallant spouse kept saying that he was outside to see that no harm came to his "dearie,"
