

California Yield Only Half What Was Expected.

DELIVERIES TO BE SMALL

Prices of Other Nuts Will Also Rise High This Season—Plan of Sonoma Hopgrowers to Elevate the Coast Market.

WALNUTS—California crop one-half short. HOPS—Only moderate buying. WHOLESTALE—Expectations of shipping movement.

As stated some time ago, the opening price on California walnuts, announced by the Walnut Growers' Association, was regarded as very low in view of the probable shortage in the crop.

Representatives of the association, which express the attitude of the growers, are: J. W. Gibbons, secretary; C. J. Gibbons, president; J. W. Gibbons, secretary; C. J. Gibbons, president.

It was just in receipt of letters from the various walnut associations which we represent and the general one of all these letters would indicate that the crop would be very much shorter than last year.

From all appearances now the deliveries will be made pro rata and possibly as low as 50 per cent of last year's crop.

It is, of course, better to advise you of this condition, but we feel it is our duty to do so in order that you can advise the retailer that you will not be able to make full deliveries on your orders, providing you have the orders for the full amount.

Not only are walnuts going to be high, but still prices are looked for all through the rest of the season.

Only exporters are buying hops. Plan of Sonoma Growers to Take Advantage of the London Market.

All the hop buyers doing yesterday were on an expert account, so far as could be learned. Particulars were withheld, but it was reported that for one lot in the Dallas exchange 40 cents was paid.

A brief telegraphic outline was given in this paper Wednesday of the plan of Sonoma growers to ship their hops to London.

It is expected that 30 cents per pound will be secured for the hops, which is a high price for the crop.

BOY OF 11 STAR STUDENT

Most Remarkable College Youngster Just Dates on Philosophy.

Albert Wiener, 11 years old, is the youngest college student in the United States, if not in the world. He will be graduated three years before the average boy thinks of entering college.

"I don't see why any one is interested in me just because I am young," he remarked to a reporter. "I don't see any thing wonderful in being fond of study. Philosophy is more interesting to me than fairy tales. In fact philosophy is infinitely fairer to me."

"Do I play? Of course I do. Swimming is my forte. When I have participated in the boys' games, I like to rest, and then I turn to my Huskey or my Soccer."

"Comparative philosophy, of course, he has done, and many of the sciences. Mathematics is an open book to him. He has done geometry, trigonometry, and he has mastered analytics. He knows more about higher mathematics than the average graduate who has made a specialty of them."

"Zoology, botany, chemistry, physics—he has them all. But it is always to philosophy that he turns. For instance, the study of chemistry interests him most."

"The classics? Oh, they are simple enough. He has done Homer, Virgil, Ovid and Vergil, and now he is taking up Greek. He knows German. He is taking it up at Tufts for the literary side. But don't let any one think we are forcing him. We are not. He is lazy and doesn't study as much as the average boy of his age. He learns by reading, reasoning and remembering."

"At the moment this youngster is tackling Latin, English, mathematics, physics, chemistry, biology, mental and moral sciences, philosophy, Greek and German. He was a post-graduate B. A. at Harvard before he is 15."
