

SAV MEMORY OF WIRZ SHOULD DIE

Veterans of North and South Declare Others More Worthy.

PRISON-KEEPER A BRUTE

G. A. R. Man Who Suffered at Andersonville Tells of Cruel Methods of Wirz—View of Daughter of Confederacy.

Members of the local organizations of the Grand Army of the Republic, Daughters of the Confederacy and United Confederate Veterans believe that there are many dead leaders of the Confederacy who are more worthy of honor than Major Henry Wirz, the Andersonville prison keeper, in whose memory a monument will be erected by the Georgia Daughters of the Confederacy.

Dispatches tell of the plan of the Georgia women to erect a monument to Major Wirz which has caused a wave of indignation to sweep from one end of the North to the other. Many of those who fought on the losing side believe that the prison-keeper was an unprincipled man, there are those who uphold him. The Oregon Chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy has never been asked to contribute to a fund for the erection of the monument and members of the organization declare that it has never been generally discussed by them.

Says Wirz Was a Brute.

Russ Chamberlain, janitor at the City Hall, was among the Federal prisoners confined at Andersonville, and he describes Major Wirz as a brute. The terrible suffering he had to pass through while confined there for several months is still fresh in his mind, and he spoke with intense bitterness when seen yesterday afternoon.

"Major Wirz was more of an animal than a man," he said. "I once saw the Confederate soldiers bring in a squad of prisoners, and while they were waiting for orders from the prisoners lay down upon the ground, as they had walked many miles that day and were nearly dead from fatigue and exhaustion. I saw Major Wirz beat the prisoners with the ends of his bayonet and kick with great force the men who tried to rest for a few moments."

"Thirteen thousand three hundred men died in that bullpen at Andersonville in six months, and yet a monument is to be erected to the man who had charge of the prison. About 2,000 men were the most they had confined there at one time. When I was there I remember one day when we counted 17 bodies they removed from the stockade for burial."

"The prison at Andersonville consisted of 24 acres of bare land surrounded by a stockade. Into this inclosure the prisoners were herded like so many head of cattle, and they were kept without shelter, sufficient food or medical attendance. Of course they died of like flies. Corn meal was about all they had to eat, and there was never enough of that."

"The National Order of the Daughters of the Confederacy has nothing to do with the matter, and I think the more importance has been attached to the affair than it merits," stated Mrs. Jennie A. George, president of the local organization of the Daughters of the Confederacy, yesterday. "But were I in such a position that my advice should be solicited, I would suggest that there are others sleeping in unmarked graves to whom the South is more indebted."

"We of the South know that at the time when there were thousands of prisoners at Andersonville, the whole South was in absolute destitution. The army was in rags and tatters, and in many sections of the South the women and children themselves were on the verge of starvation. At the very time when conditions were at their worst at Andersonville the Army of the Tennessee was compelled to make a forced march of three days with but a handful of counsel for Mrs. Nellie Sutton, in her suit for divorce against Charles F. Sutton, a Leites barber, who is now serving a period in the County Jail on complaint of his wife, because of his inability to raise bonds to keep the peace. She filed a suit against him for divorce yesterday and her complaint is a recital of brutality that hardly seems possible in this enlightened age.

The couple were married at Madison, Neb., October 23, 1892, and have three children, Florence, aged 12, Harold, aged 10, and Frank, aged 5 years, whose custody she demands, as well as $29 a month alimony for their support. Mrs. Sutton sets up in her complaint that at the time of their marriage her husband was a sober and industrious young man, but that about six years ago he became addicted to strong drink to such an extent that he has ever since been an habitual drunkard, and has been in the habit of going on violent sprees each week and abusing her according to the ratio of his intoxication. His conduct finally became so frequently violent, she says, that a few weeks ago he was arrested and is now confined in the County Jail.

Upon one occasion the defendant is alleged to have informed the plaintiff that he would hit her hard that she would "die standing," and this remark is the straw that broke the camel's back, as she not only had him arrested for making threats against her life, but has instituted divorce proceedings as well.

little known this far away. His prominence in the Traveling Passenger Agents' Association brought him in touch with the powers that be and his promotion has been rapid. He is now in the office of the highest passenger offices in the gift of the New York Central lines.

"LONE PETE" FAKE AGAIN

Practical Joker Keeps Up Correspondence With Captain Bruin.

Captain of Detectives and Inspector of Police Patrick Bruin has received the second one of a series of "foolish" letters, written by a practical joker, signing the name of "Lone Pete. The latest epistle reached police headquarters yesterday. It was written on lined paper and the writer used a typewriter. It was mailed at Sunnyside, as it bears the stamp of Station "C."

TWO STATIONS NEEDED.

East Siders Think One Police Headquarters Not Enough.

The opinion is practically unanimous on the East Side that a sub-police station should be located in that part of Portland. Councilman Rushlight said yesterday that both he and Councilman Bennett, who were in charge of the committee last year, but failed because the city lacked available funds. W. B. Hall, president of the Business Men's Club, said last evening that a delegation from the East Side will be present when the committee makes up the estimates for appropriations to be built in Holiday addition on the higher ground, probably about East Sixth street, so it would be convenient to both sections, but not a few think that in time two stations will have to be built, one in East Portland and the other in Albina, owing to the vast extent of territory to be reached both north and south.

SUES FRUIT INSPECTOR

Mount Tabor Dealer Enjoins Contention of His Apples.

Injunction papers were served on County Fruit Inspector Richard Deitch yesterday afternoon, restraining him from interfering with the apple vending business of Frederick G. Broetje, a Mount Tabor florist and fruit grower.

Mr. Deitch is charged with the duty of inspecting either to arrest him or "kerose" his fruit. The farmer then laid his case before Attorney W. Y. Masters, who secured the injunction, restraining the inspector from interfering with the vending of his fruit. The matter will probably come up in the Circuit Court Monday.

The injunction only applies to Broetje's apples. Mr. Deitch will continue to exercise his duties as a Fruit Inspector, condemning wormy or infected apples of other growers wherever he finds them.

LOCATION MAPS ADOPTED.

Oregon and Washington Directors Confer on Route of Extension. Directors of the Oregon & Washington line yesterday in adjourned special session to adopt maps showing the definite location of the new Harriman extension. A map was submitted to the directors showing the final locations for the new road between Vancouver and Chehalis. The route has been outlined for this distance and grades obtained satisfactory to the officials.

MANY HOMESEKERS HERE

Colonist Rates for This Season No Longer in Effect.

Wednesday, October 31, marked the close of the year's colonist rates, and there are hosts of people now on the way West who will become permanent settlers on this Coast. All Fall the travel on this class of rates has been heavy. On account of the longer period for which these reduced rates were offered this year the number of people coming West was much larger than during former years.

NEW ADVERTISING AGENT OF HARRIMAN LINES IN NORTHWEST

Mr. Jackson was born in Chautauque county, New York, and during his early life followed the newspaper business. He received his training on the Niles Republic, a paper published in Northwestern Michigan. Mr. Jackson went to California in 1879 and at once took up newspaper work. For four years he was publisher of the Lake County Bee. Later he worked as a reporter on the San Francisco Chronicle, a position he held for three years. He was also connected with the editorial department of the Chronicle and Post for a number of years.

A. C. JACKSON.

Mr. Jackson went with the Southern Pacific in 1892. After a long service in advertising he took up statistical work for the Southern Pacific and was Mr. Fee's right-hand man. The coincidence Mr. Fee and others high in authority with him, the Southern Pacific felt that Mr. Jackson was responsible for his being offered the place in Portland.

The new advertising man was in Portland last year, coming here in charge of the National Editorial Association as the representative of the Southern Pacific Company. He executed the editorial special from El Paso to Portland and while here visited the Exposition. While a comparative stranger, he finds many railroad men here who he has known in California. Among this number is William McMurray, general passenger agent, who will direct Mr. Jackson's work. He is also acquainted with Mr. McMurray's assistant, John M. Scott.

"While in Portland, during the Exposition," said Mr. Jackson, "I found the Northwest about as interesting a country as any I have any knowledge of. It is very attractive to me. I know as soon as I see more of it I shall like it even better."

L. W. LANDMAN IS PROMOTED

Becomes General Western Passenger Agent for Lake Shore.

News has been received in Portland of the appointment of L. W. Landman as general Western passenger agent for the Lake Shore, with offices at Chicago, vice L. F. Vosburgh, transferred to New York as general Eastern agent of the New York Central lines. Mr. Landman is one of the best-known passenger men in the country and has many friends in Portland, coming here last year as secretary of the American Association of Traveling Passenger Agents. During the convention here, Mr. Landman made many acquaintances.

Owing to his prominence in this organization, Mr. Landman has become widely known throughout railroad circles in this country. His valuable services to the association were recognized at the recent annual convention at West Baden, when he was given a vote of thanks for his work. For nine years he was secretary of the organization and for one term was its president.

A few years ago, Mr. Landman was traveling passenger agent at Detroit for the Hocking Valley, a road comparatively

HOW FOR DOMINOS

Chinese Abandon Lottery and Fantan for Milder Pastime. Finds Evidence of Gambling Orientals Having Been Advised to Play Dominos by Lawyer Who is Trying to "Line Up" Graft.

OFFICER BATY RAIDS GAME

Detective Sergeant Baty, in charge of the plain-clothes staff under Inspector of Police Bruin, received information Wednesday evening that arrangements were being made to open up gambling in Chinatown, and that the Chinese had been advised by a local attorney who wishes to erect $200 a month for himself and some unknown associates to change from fantan and lottery to dominos and authors.

The Chinese have always played dominos, but they have never gambled in that manner, and the grafting attorney who advised them to resort to the game was to beat the anti-gambling ordinance evidently thought to deceive the police by this ruse and to carry out his scheme to extract the coveted $200 a month from the Chinese, thereby, without interference from the police.

Acting upon information secured by rigid investigation in Chinese circles, Detective Sergeant Baty last evening strolled through Second street and kept a close watch on games of dominos. Everywhere he went he saw such games in progress, he not only he reached the Sing Lee store, 83 Second street, did he discover a game where evidence of gambling was in sight. There the sentry was off his guard for a moment, when Baty rushed past him and seized a box of cigars and a large pile of small change that were on the table in front of the players. He then arrested eight Chinese, but four brushed past him and escaped, but he managed to hold four, besides carting his evidence to headquarters along with the prisoners.

It has always been most difficult to secure evidence of gambling, and it is seldom that the police are able to seize money found on tables, as the Chinese usually hide the evidence before officers are able to get in, but in this case Sergeant Baty believes he has a first-class case, and much interest centers in the arrangements and trial, scheduled to occur in the Municipal Court this morning.

Sing Lee furnished bail for himself and three companions, and all were released to appear in the Municipal Court this morning. Great excitement prevailed in Chinatown last evening following the arrest of Sing Lee and other players, as the gambling tables were closed and the police scheme had been exploded on the opening night and the news spread from end to end of the district in quick time.

THREE BIG REALTY SALES

Quarter Block on First and Salmon Brings $75,000.

Three more large realty transactions yesterday were added to the list for the present week. The sales involve a combined outlay of $110,000 and affect parties living in different parts of the city. They fully demonstrate that the market is keeping up well, and other negotiations under way assure additional large deals for the remainder of the week.

The largest deal yesterday was the purchase by Charles K. Henry of the southeast corner of First and Salmon streets, through the agency of Isaac W. Bannister. The holding is a quarter block, and was owned by Daniel Kunkel. The price was $75,000. There are two buildings on the corner, one a two-story and one a three-story building, each two stories in height.

"I purchased this property because I have great faith in that portion of the city," said Mr. Henry last night. "The population of the East Side is growing rapidly, and First street is certain to increase its present large business, because of its central position. The holdings along this street will also be greatly benefited by the advent of the Portland-Salem electric line."

It is thought to take an active interest in the improvement of First street, and the appearance of the street is not all that it should be. If property-owners along the thoroughfare would put their buildings in better condition, it would help the district and the entire city."

Mr. Henry said yesterday the lot which he owned at the southwest corner of Fifth and Couch streets. The price was $25,000, but the name of the purchaser is withheld at the present time. There is a two-story frame building, 20x100, on the corner, which is under lease to the Star Brewing Company.

Louis A. Wild purchased yesterday from Edwin Sweet a quarter block at the southeast corner of Twenty-third and Everett streets. E. J. Daly made the sale, and the consideration was $10,000. The property is at present unimproved, but the new owner plans erecting soon two buildings. A handsome residence will be built on the corner, and a large apartment-house on the inside lot.

Mr. Daly has just purchased 160 acres of Hood River apple land from A. M. Cunningham. It is located five miles from Hood River. The new owner will cultivate immediately and plant the entire acreage with choice varieties of apples.

Among the large realty deals yesterday was one for a big North Portland site announced last week. This was the transaction in which L. H. Lewis transferred to Percy H. Blyth the quarter block at the southwest corner of Sixth and Broadway streets. The consideration was $109,000. A deed was also recorded by which Thomas Connell transferred to J. O. Elrod vacant lots in Ravenswood amounting to $25,000.

Box Contained Infernal Machine.

AKRON, O., Nov. 1.—Andrew McIntosh, aged 46, a Baltimore & Ohio engineer, yesterday had a narrow escape from death by an infernal machine. A 25-caliber revolver, packed with powder in a small box and ten sticks of dynamite were concealed in a foot-box in his coal house. The trigger of the pistol was fastened to the lid of the box.

When McIntosh opened the lid the trigger was pulled and the bullet struck him in the chest, imbedding itself. McIntosh was thrown by the powder and the dynamite was burned to all parts of the
