The Arrival of the Encyclopedia in the Home

The Oregonian believes that there should be an Encyclopedia in every home. Not one of those cheap, trashy affairs, rehased from foreign sources, but a first-class AMERICAN Encyclopedia. Knowledge is power. The most important set of books that you can put into your home is an Encyclopedia. It gives complete and accurate knowledge on every subject, in words that all can understand.

Heretofore good Encyclopedias have been put on the market at abnormally high figures, ranging from $80 to $120—prices which only the rich could afford to pay. This is due to the methods of selling subscription books by publishers, namely, the employment of agents, general agents, and other middlemen, through whose hands the books must pass before they reach you. As a result, the retail price is usually far out of proportion to the original cost.

Realizing the necessity for an Encyclopedia in every home, arrangements were made to distribute several thousand sets of the New Standard Encyclopedia among Oregonian readers. This is being done by means of a great Co-operative Club, which entirely eliminates all middle profits, enabling those who join the Club to secure the newest and best Encyclopedia on the market at the lowest possible wholesale price and on terms within the reach of all.

In organizing this Club the Oregonian simply acts as a purchasing agent, representing both the publishers and the public. On account of its immense purchasing and distributing powers, the Club was able to secure an entire edition of the Encyclopedia at a very low price. The plan of distribution saves all the profits that ordinarily go to the agent, the dealer and the general agent. Complete sets are shipped to Club members direct from the binders; no middleman makes a profit. In this way the Club is able to save its members many thousands of dollars.

WHY IT WAS SELECTED

- Because it is the best Encyclopedia for busy men, for home use, and for school and college students.
- Because it is the work of more than a thousand scholars, professional and business men.
- Because it is full and scholarly in the treatment of subjects, but clear and simple in language.
- Because it is thoroughly up to date, having just been completed at enormous expense.
- Because it is purely American in origin, and in conformity to American educational ideas.
- Because it is the best encyclopedia for reading and home study.

A UNIVERSITY AT HOME

READ WHAT SOME OF THOSE SAY WHO HAVE BECOME MEMBERS OF THE CLUB

"The New Standard Encyclopedia meets a real want. I have examined a number of articles on subjects with which I am familiar, and find them accurate in all respects. The work is complete."—PRESIDENT HARRIS, Amherst College.

"It is a model reference work. Without surplus words or unnecessary space it presents a vast amount of information. It is worthy of a place in any library."—WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

"It supplements the education that our school system begins. The majority of our citizens do not need ponderous discussions. They want the gist of the matter and the truth of it. They can have it here in the New Standard Encyclopedia."—PROFESSOR SEARS, Brown University.

"Men and women engaged in any form of public work can hardly afford to be without this encyclopedia, while to the great army of busy, intelligent and up-to-date people it will stand as a library in itself."—PRESIDENT REED, Dickinson College.

"To the busy man of affairs, to the student and to the general reader, the New Standard Encyclopedia will be a convenient and valuable authority for reference. It will prove its usefulness and find its way into a wide field."—STATE SUPERINTENDENT SKINNER, New York.
