To a considerable extent the play in this instance is the thing but its chief character entrusted to a weakling would be ruinous. Mr. Edeson has achieved so well that the carping faultfinder is disarmed. He is identified and definitely placed. If he should never do anything else in his career he will be remembered as the man who held an unclouded mirror up to nature and gave the stage a sincere portrayal of the modern American aborigine. Never once does he chappen his work or sound out of tune and to do that is the highest art. In a distinct line of acting he surpasses and it is enough. He is still a young man, but whether He is still a young man, but whether he will do anything else better or so well is a matter of speculative interest. For some years he has been known se a good actor. He may have struck 12 and he may not. It is only of present importance to us that he gave a masterly performance in Portland last night.

EXPANSION JUSTIFIED

The expansion which the OREGON TRUST & SAV-INGS BANK, of Portland, has lately indulged in is evidently justified by the totals which it has now attained. IT HAS OVER A MILLION OF DEPOSITS. Two years ago they were forty thousand. The bank has shown a great deal of taste in the fitting up of its new bankingroom, which occupies one of the most central locations of Portland. IT MOVED INTO THE LOCALITY WHERE THE BUSINESS IS, AND, BY FITTING UP SUPERB BANKING QUARTERS, DI-RECTED BUSINESS TO ITSELF. Their publicity matter is always of the first class. The total resources of the bank are a million and a quarter. W. H. Moore is president; E. E. Lytle, vice-president; W. Cooper Morris, eashier, and H. A. Graves assistant eashier. - Chicago Banker, Nov. 10, 1906.

That the refreshing comedy of the piece is brought well to the fore is largely to be credited to Frank J. McEntire as the fat senior and center of the Columbia football team. Mr. McIntire's manner of playing telling humor is delightful. As Nelson, the girl's brother, Francis Bann made a favorable impression, as did Sidney Ainsworth in the part of Thorne, a gentlemanly crook of the type all too familiar to college life. Mary Boland, sometime since a member of the Baker Company, is a pretty, win-

The second act, which occurs in the dressing room of the football team during the progress of a game is a disappoint-It lacks dramatic force. author would have done better had he made it a bit more melodramatic, regardless of the danger of being stereo-typed. He should have disabled another Columbia player in the last half and made it necessary for "Strongheart" to go in and make the winning touchdown, instead of giving him a descriptive monologue as an onlooker from the dressing-room door. The act doesn't thrill one as it should—it lacks "go."

The intense situation of the third act, when the inherent feeling against color overcomes the feelings of friendship in which "Strongheart," "Nelson," "Livingsion" and the "Dorothy" skirmish with ston" and the "Dorothy" skirmish with their emotions when the love of the In-dian for the girl is made known to the others, the beautiful wooing of the two, as they huddle about the gratefire as they once before had sat by a campfire, the parting in the last act when the young chief decides to do his duty by his peo-ple and give up his love and the finale with Strongheart, as he says it, "standwith Strongheart, as he says it, "stand-ing in the midst of a desert-all alone"-are the incidents which make the play a dramatic triumph.

We should be grateful to De Mille for giving his play a logical ending rather than a conventional one. It proves him honest and faithful to the tenets of art. The company's scenery did not arrive and last night's production was a make-shift one but the house scenery made shift one but the house scenery made little difference,—a bare stage would have made little difference.

"Strongheart" will be repeated tonight, tomorrow night and at a Saturday mathee. The regular production is expected today and will be used in the subsequent performance. Don't miss a rare treat.
