BROOKLYN SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.— The pupils of Brooklyn School enter-tained a large audience last night with a dramatic entertainment in the assembly hall. "The Rescue of the Princess Winsome" was rendered. It was cleverly performed. There had been many rehears als so that each one was familiar with his part. The costumes were appropriate, and as seen on the platform were attractive. Teachers and relations had assigned to the platform were attractive. Teachers and relations had assigned in tealing the perplatform were attractive. Teachers and principal had assisted in training the per-formers, with good results. Those who appeared in different roles were Charles Boyd, King: Marian Allhands, Queen; Howard Strowbridge, Prince Hero; Ruth Pickthorne, Princess Winsome; Allen Pease, Knight; Orth Mathlot, Ogre; May Stone, Witch: Amelia Jones, Godmother; Wallace Snyder, Frog-Eye Fearsome; Freda Roeschle, Titania; Bigmarck Strow-bridge, Bewitched Prince; flower messengers, Katherine Misslich, Minnie Jones, Lydia Mozetti, Maggie Willough-Minnie Jones, Lydia Mozetti, Maggie Willoughby, Bessie Havely, Helen Hicks. There were choruses of the fairies and brownles. The big, intelligent dog of J. A. Strowbrige took the part of the Bewitched Prince, and seemed to understand just what was required of him and enjoyed the performance as much as anybody. The entertainment was given to raise money for purchase of chairs for the assembly hall, books for the library and pictures for the schoolrooms.

Women's Cura Sussion—The attendance at the Women's Club yesterday was un-usually large for the holiday season and a short but interesting programme en-tertained the guests. Madam D'Auria was the soloist and rendered the Jewel Song from "Faust" most effectively and charmed all with her singing of Del Acqua's "Villanelle." Dr. Mary Thompson, the oldest member of the club, gave an excellent address on "Yuletide Memories," which was thoroughly enjoyed. Dr. Thompson is a fluent speaker and has a marvelous command of language, and on this occasion she was especially entertaining. She advanced the theory that the true Christmas spirit is rather giving to those who have not of the world's goods rather than to one's personal friends and relatives who hav plenty. The task of looking up the friendless, the poor and unfortunate was made a pleasant one as described by the speaker, and many present determined to include the poor of the city on their Christmas lists, dividing their bounty instead of giving it all in one place.
