IN AND ABOUT OUR TOWN

How a Keen Boy Made a Quick Profit—When Aaron Holtz Ran a Race With a Motor-Boat—Mrs. Jefferson Myers a True Friend of the Birds.

E. W. WRIGHT, who lives at 734 Irving, has a young son who bids fair to become a keen business man if youthful indications amount to anything. Last week Mr. Wright purchased a load of wood which the teamster deposited in front of the residence and no one could be found to put it in the cellar. Finally 10-year-old Teddie offered to do it for a money consideration and the father, wishing to encourage his spirit for usefulness immediately offered him 50 cents for the job. Several days slipped by and the wood was not put in, and before leaving the city on a short business trip Mr. Wright reminded Ted that he was pretty slow in accomplishing the work. On his return he was delighted to find every stick carefully placed in the cellar and he hastened to pay the 50 cents to the energetic son.
"Here is your money, son," he said, "and I am very proud of you for working so faithfully. That's the way to get along successfully."
"Aw, he didn't do it," Papa," 4-year-old Billie put in. "He got a tramp to do it for 15 cents."
While Mr. Wright was properly shocked he has been chuckling not in, and before his young son worked on him and predicts he will be the original money-maker when he reaches manhood.

MANY stories have been told on Jacob Kamm, but one which dates back a good many years and is something of a joke on H. L. Pittock is one of the best. Mr. Kamm was preparing to take a trip to the Arkansas Hot Springs and dropped into The Oregonian office to order the paper sent to him while away. He emphasized the fact that he wanted all the local news but was uncertain whether to take the Daily or Weekly Oregonian.
"If you think I will get all the local news in the Weekly," he said, "I will take it, for it is cheaper than the daily. But I want to be sure that it will reach me at Hot Springs. Are you sure it will get there all right?"
"I don't see why it shouldn't," answered Mr. Pittock. "W. S. Ladd is down there now and the daily reaches him regularly."
"Oh, if Ladd's taking the daily," said Mr. Kamm, "I guess I'll read his paper, so you needn't mind sending mine after all," and he carefully pocketed the money he had in his hand ready to pay for the subscription.
Mr. Pittock is not noted for his loquacity, but that one lapse cost him several dollars without doubt.
