BIG PARADE HELD BY LABOR UNIONS

Four Thousand Participate in Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone Demonstration.

MASS MEETING AT ARMORY

Drill Hall Crowded, and Many Are Turned Away, Unable to Gain Admittance—Socialist Delivers the Principal Address.

Nearly 4000 representatives of the labor unions and the Socialist organizations were in line last night and marched through the streets voicing their protest against the holding of Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone in the Idaho jails without trial or release on habeas corpus writs. The parade made a strong showing. At its close a mass meeting was held at the Armory, where addresses condemning the conduct of the case were made.

The parade included two bands, which played the Marseillaise on the march around the city. The American flag together with some union banners were displayed, and the Socialists wore small red pennants on their lapels, together with the Socialist button.

The parade formed at Second and Stark streets at 7:30 and was headed by President Cameron, of the Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone League, a local organization, which planned the demonstration. After marching south on Second to Morrison, the parade moved to Third, down Third to Alder, up Alder to Sixth, thence to Washington, up Washington to Tenth and to the Armory at Tenth and Couch streets.

The most conspicuous feature of the parade was a number of banners, printed in glaring red letters, which showed sympathy for the imprisoned miners and denounced their prosecution. They bore such legends as follows: "We want justice for Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone and we will have it"; "Labor has rights which must be respected"; "To Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone—fear not, united labor is onto the game and will see you through"; "Justice McKenna, of the United States Supreme Court, says we are right"; "If you hang Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone, hang us—we are just as guilty."

Great Crowd at Armory.

When the parade had filed into the Armory the auditorium was crowded to the doors. The aisles were filled with standing people and many could not gain entrance. J. W. Yarrow presided and Vincent Harper, of Seattle, made the principal address.

W. E. Pitschke, secretary of the Oregon State Federation of Labor, made the first speech. He said the demonstration was for the purpose of promulgating justice, which is not necessarily law. He denounced the period of martial law in Colorado and said that one-tenth of the outrages and indignities to union miners in the Cripple Creek district during the labor troubles there have never been published. The speaker reviewed the opinion of Justice McKenna, of the United States Supreme Court, who dissented from the opinion of the other justices in the habeas corpus proceeding appealed from the Idaho courts.

He told of the kidnaping of Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone from their Colorado homes and the spiriting of them away into Idaho. "That may be law," he said in conclusion, "but if that is law, I do not want any of it."

A song, dedicated to Heywood's little daughter, was sung, after which a recitation, "It's Good for You," was given.

Vincent Harper was introduced and made a strong address. He was carefully listened to and received frequent applause. He said in part:

"The death of men in a good cause is nothing. It is not because of the impending death of three miners in Idaho that we are gathered here. It is not sympathy, that greatest feeling of the human soul, that brings us here. It is easy enough to die for a great movement. If Theodore Roosevelt had not been wise and adjusted the strained relations with Japan, no doubt there are 200 fools in this hall who would gladly give up their lives to protect the American markets in the Orient. In their willingness to die, these men would think they were giving their lives for their country, but we know they would be dying to preserve our trade interests in the Orient.

"Each age has slaughteed men to advance its progress. Out of death comes life. Therefore it cannot be the mere threatened death of these three miners that could arouse the entire country in their behalf. To die is nothing. Ninety-nine out of every 100 men here tonight are being slowly killed by the embittered lives they have to live.

Significance of Gathering.

"Do you know the significance of this meeting then? It means that now, at last, the working classes of the United States realize there is a noose tightening around the neck of every working man.

"Our threat is not to judge or jury, but our protest means we have seen in the person of these men a tragedy which makes it plain that in the United States here and now no working man has any rights which even the United States Supreme Court is bound to recognize.

"No man has any rights which he has not the power and brains to insist on getting. In the churches we hear a good deal about the rights of man as the son of God. Your lodges and unions give you inter-related rights, dependent upon duties to each other. Men have gained such rights only as they have seized and held them and have died to hand them down to their successors.

"No governor in the United States would call out the militia to compel an employer to keep the law. All laws are made for the protection of the present system, but you have long remained in ignorance of this. But by your labor organizations you have raised wages, inch by inch, and you have shortened hours.

"Of course the constitution says man has the right of habeas corpus, but the courts have snapped their fingers in the face of organized labor. In Colorado, it was done away with and the capitalistic press and pulpit laughed at your protest. The picayunish sheriffs in Idaho played you a game of hocus pocus. Then you did a wise thing; you hired bright lawyers and took the case to the Supreme Court of the United States. You thought that with those old gentlemen in black gowns to decide on the case, the constitution would be upheld.

"Read the history of eight of the Supreme Justices of the United States Supreme Court, and you will find that they got their jobs because they gained fortunes as corporation lawyers.

"Justice McKenna's dissenting opinion said that the Governors of the States of Colorado and Idaho, together with the officials of the Idaho courts, were the criminals, not Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone. Justice McKenna said the provisions of the constitution and the habeas corpus have been trampled under foot in this case and denied to these men.

"If it be true that the rights of the working men of this country have been taken away, a crimson tide of protest, like the rebellion of 40 years ago, will rise and sweep such things off the earth."

Resolutions Adopted.

Resolutions declaring that Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone had been kidnaped, thrown in jail without due process, denied a hearing and the rights of habeas corpus abrogated and were held in prison for a year, while they are imprisoned on perjured testimony, secured through the collusion of the Governors of Idaho and Colorado, who are declared to be as corrupt a pair of sycophants as ever disgraced a state executive's chair, were unanimously passed. The declaration demands a fair and speedy trial and expresses sympathy for the three prisoners, saying the Portland gathering will aid them in every possible way.

Copies of the resolution will be sent to President Roosevelt, Governor Gooding, of Idaho, Secretary Taft and the official publication of the Western Federation of Miners.

C. B. STEUNENBERG IN TOWN

Declares Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone Will Receive Fair Trial.

C. B. Steunenberg, brother of the late ex-Governor Steunenberg, of Idaho, for whose murderer Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone are awaiting trial in Caldwell, is a guest at The Perkins. Mr. Steunenberg is in Oregon on business and will leave in the morning for Eugene. He is well-known in Portland, having worked on The Oregonian at one time as a printer.

Mr. Steunenberg declined to discuss the approaching trials of the officials of the Western Federation of Miners, who, according to the confession of Harry Orchard's, were responsible for the conspiracy which lead to the death of his brother. "There seems to be an impression that Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone will not receive a fair trial in Canyon County, but this is not so," he said. "I do not know whether a date has been set for the trials or not, but I am of the opinion that they will come up early in March. The trials will be held at Caldwell. The people of Idaho, and especially those of Canyon County, are good citizens and the public at large can rest assured that the men will receive as fair and as impartial trial as they could in any state in the Union.

High School Athletic Association.

The Portland High School Athletic Association held a meeting yesterday afternoon in the school building to elect five new members to the association to fill vacancies that were made by the retiring of Miss Hedin, Miss Rogers, Mr. Meier, Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Moore. The new members are Miss Hochuli, Miss Miller, Mr. Breeding, Mr. Shaver and Mr. McGuire. Mr. Lewis was elected manager of the baseball team. Manager Roberts, of last year's track team, will again hold the office this season.
