Mrs. Thaw on Verge of Breakdown After Cross-Examination.

PAYS VISIT TO HUSBAND

Will Have Recovered Strength by Monday for Another Battle With Jerome-White's Letters to Be Read by Defense.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.-The principals In the Thaw trial spent the day in rest. every one apparently relishing the res pite from the scenes which marked this week's proceedings. By the time the hearing is resumed next Monday morning, it is expected that Mrs. Evelyn Nes blt Thaw will have entirely recovered her composure and be prepared again to take her place in the witness chair, On Thursday it was said the young woman was on the verge of illness and that a cup of broth had been her only sustenance for two days. She was so weakened as the result of her day's experience that she retired immediately upon reaching her apartments and did not arise until late today. The only reason that she left her bed even then was the call she had promised to make on her husband in the Tombs prison. Ordinaril, visitors are not allowed in the big gray building on holldays, but an exception was made today with regard to Harry Thaw's wife and counsel

Rush Into One Another's Arms.

It was well after noon when Mrs. Than arrived at the prison. She was no nied by Daniel O'Reilly, one of her husband's counsel, and was shown at once into the consultation-room. There had been reports in some of the early editions of the papers today to the effect that Thaw was himself in bad physical condition, but when he appeared to greet his wife, he declared that he was feeling exceptionally well and was enjoying hi usual vigorous health. As Thaw rushed into the conference-room, he clasped his wife in his arms, saying:

"My dear, brave little wife." The two talked together for a long while and then Mr. O'Rellly was called into conference Mrs. Thaw was pale and worn today, but when approached by newspaper men smiled and tried to appear cheerful. In reply to questions she said she was "feelng pretty well."

ng pretty wen.

District Attorney Jerome has gone to Lakeville, Conn., to spend the holiday recess with his family. Nearly all of Thaw's counsel remained at their homes. Several Days' Agony Ahead.

The District Attorney will keep Mrs. Thaw on the stand at least a day and a half more and may even stretch his searching cross-examination through twice that length of time. It will depend upon how Mrs. Thaw feels at the end of this period as to whether or not Thaw's counsel will go shead with their recounsel will go shead with their redirect examination of her. Mr. Delmas has been making copious notes during Mr. Jerome's questioning of the wit-nesses, and he will likely endeavor to place a different light upon some of the incidents which have been disclosed. With the cross-examination only half completed and with the re-direct and re-cross-examination still in view, there seems no way to approximate the number of days in the witness chair Mrs. Thaw has before her. If she is much fatigued at the end of Mr. Jerome's first cross examination she may be released for a time, subject to recall. In view of the fact, however, that the defendant's counsel forced the District Attorney to pro-ceed with the cross-examination against his will, he will very likely insist in re-turn that they shall also conclude with the witness before she is excused from White's Letters to Another Girl.

Mrs. Thaw on direct examination identified 42 letters as being in the handwriting of Stanford White. The letters were not written to her, but to another girl.
Mr. Delmas evidently is holding these letters for introduction during the re-direct examination and evidently hopes to have them admitted as off-setting what Mr. was expected to bring out on cross-examination. No intimation has been given as to what the letters contain or to whom they were written. They may constitute a new element of surpriswhich is yet to be injected into a case which has already been so prolific of astounding incidents. Part of Story Yet Untold.

Mrs. Thaw's associations with both hite and Thaw after her return from Europe in 1903; the interviews with Abe Hummel when was drawn up the famous affidavit, which she depied she had any part in framing; the carried she had any part in framing; the European trip of 1904; the Incident of the Cumberland Hotel and other incidents with Thaw, following her return; her marriage and the subsequent events up to the night of the tragedy at Madison-Sausez Garden to one of these Square Garden—no one of these have been nquired into on cross-examination. It would seem that the climax of sensation-alism had been reached yesterday, but it s said the District Attorney expects to oring out on Monday incidents of at least as sensational character as those of yes-

The details of the European trip of 1904 s still to be gone into. The return to America and the false announcement of Thaw's marriage to Evelyn Nesbit when the first scandal arose is still to be told. The facts of the pursuit of the young aoman by Stanford White after her marpoening days, must be brought out. The elations of the two before the marriage nust be described in detail.

Her Veracity in Question.

Of course, the actual truth of the story which Mrs. Thaw told her husband and which is said to have unbalanced his mind annot be questioned. If she told him the tory, and as a result his mind became leranged, the truth of the story is imma-erial. All that the cross-examination can levelop is a doubt as to the veracity of he witness a doubt as to whether she eatily did tell him or not. That is all the ross-examination can show—all but one hing. It is for the jury to decide wheth-constant brooding over the story which Evelyn told Harry Thaw about her treat-nent at the hands of Stanford White ictually caused derangement of his mind ufficient to make him incapable of thowing be was doing wrong when he tilled White. Did Thaw's actions after heard the story; did his relations with velyn Nesbit, covering a period of two ears after this revelation; did his treatnent of her and of White and a thousand ther things, indicate that he was brood-ng over the story or that he was taking advantage of it? SAY GOOD WORD FOR NAVY

Roosevelt's Advice to All Patriotic

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 .- Respect for the uniforms of the Army and Navy in all public places formed the principal topic of discussion at the opening session of the Navy League of the United States, which met today in second annual convention. Its member-ship numbers about 5000. General Horace Porter, ex-Ambassador to France, presided. About 150 delegates were in attendance.

The convention voted a recommendation that the governing board place the league on record as favoring the settlement of all international disputes resolution was adopted calling upon the Secretary of the Navy to consider, in the plans of the vessels to be built, the desirability of including some space where enlisted men may read undisturbed, and that some such pace be assigned on ships already in

A resolution was adopted asking for the passage of laws to prevent dis-crimination in public places against sersons wearing the uniform of the Army and Navy.

This afternoon the delegates were received by the President, who addressed hem as follows:

I take great pleasure in greeting you here. hecause it is eminently true in a democracy that what is everyone's business is apt to be no one's business, and you are here on everybody's business. There is plenty of pressure of local interest for public buildings, plenty of pressure for local improvements in the river and harbor bill, but there is no special interest that is seeking to bring pressure to bear as if ought to be brought to bear for matters of great National con-cern, per-eminently the Navy. The Navy has no one to speak for it save those who speak for it because of their devotion to the honor and the interest of the United States, and I ask that you and those like you make your voices heard for the general welfare amid the din of voices that speak only for spe-

JUMPS TRACK ON CURVE

Pennsylvania Limited Wrecked and 29 Passengers Are Injured.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 23.-Twentynine persons were injured when Pennsylvania Railroad train No. 29, westbound for Chicago from New York, left the track at a sharp curve near Mineral the track at a sharp curve hear athera. Point, eight miles from here, at 12:10 o'clock this morning. No one was killed, although many of the passengers had narrow escapes. The three rear sleeping cars went over an embankment into the lonemaugh River.

Relief trains from Johnstown and Altoona brought physicians, who are working with the injured, some of whom, it is said, will die. The track is torn up for a distance of 500 feet. Conductor McFord, who was in charge of the train, is reported to have been unhurt. The cause of the wreck is yet unknown, but it is said that the speed of the train was too great for the rounding of he curve. Train No. 19 is the 18-hour special limited between New York and Chicago. It left New York at 355 P. M. yester-day and, when it pulled out of Altoona for Pittsburg, was more than an hour behind schedule time. When the accident happened, the train, it is said, was running at terrific speed. In leaving the rails, the train tore down all telegraph and telephone poles for a distance of 500 feet and the Pennsylvania Railroad itself, in order to get information, was obliged to send yardmen from Johns-town with a yard engine.

Cleveland Tells What to Do With Ex-Presidents.

TURN THEM LOOSE TO FISH

Only Living Ex-President Speaks in Veln Both Grave and Gay at Chicago-Bemoans Neglect of National Holidays.

CHICAGO. Feb. 22. - Ex-President onight at a banquet at the Union League Club, sharing the post-prandial bonors with Richard Watson Gilder, of New York, and Howard L. Smith, dean of the University of Wisconsin law school. In introducing Mr. Cleveland, Judge Cut-ting, toastmaster, referred to the question as to what the United States should do with its ex-Presidents, and declared that the solution of the difficulty stood before

"The only ex-President which the United States possesses," said he, "has so absolutely, so creditably, so happily disposed of himself that there is nothing left for the country to do in his behalf. What more could man ask? He has Princeton, he has a family of children which he loves and, more than all, he has Mrs. Cleveland."
When Mr. Cleveland arose, he was greeted with applause which lasted for several minutes. He said:

Our toastmaster has referred to a deli-cate and tender subject, "What shall be done with our ex-Presidents? It has been suggested that they be taken out in a five-acre lot and shot. It seems to me, however, that an ex-president has already suffered that which should give immunity from any such thing. I think the best place for an ex-president is in the water, especi-ally water where there is plenty of fish. I have always understood that an afterlinner speech must be in a kind of merry and complimentary mood. Now, I am an essentially sober man and I do not think that I am altogether to blums for this. I think the voters of the United States are truly impliented as accessories before the fact because they put me in a position where I contracted selemnity a good deal as the boy caught the measles—by sitting next to it. I would not have all our peo-ple somber. I would have them thought-ful and I would have them patriotic. In the midst of all their hopefulness I would have them remember that, more than all this, there is a duty, a stern duty, always resent that they owe to their country, an this duty is pairiotism. When we belie we are merely contributors to this fur of patriotism and that this fund is a fur fairness and a fund of American opportu-nity, then we have the right idea of Ameri-tan citizenship.

PATRIOTIC VIRTUES NEEDED

Cleveland Speaks on Decay of What Washington Thought Essential.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22 .- In an address before the Union League Club this aft-ernoon on George Washington, ex-President Grover Cleveland deplored the National indifference to commemo-ration of great men and events in American history. He attributed the fact partly to the absorption of the fathers of the Republic in their constructive work, so that retrospection became an extinct faculty, and this tack became hereditary. He also sug-gested as a cause, that single-hearted come necessary to the perpetuity of our institutions. He then said:

But after all why should we attempt to delude ourselves? I am confident that I pleading can frame an absolutely creditable excuse for our remissness in appropriate holiday observance.

He then spoke of the commemoration of Independence Day as having "nearly degenerated to a revel of sense-less noise and dangerous explosion, leaving in its train far more of mishap and accident than lessons of good citizenship or pride of country." He said the original meaing of Thanks-giving Day was "smothered in feasting and social indulgence," Christmas was celebrated "much as a day of commemorating the birth of the redeemer of mankind than as of gifts." While he did not deprecate "light-hearted mirth and joility," but advo-cated "every kind of sane, decent, social enjoyment and all sorts of recre-ation," he felt that to allow them an incongruous possession of our commen orative days was "symtomatic of a popular tendency which was by no means reassuring." He then culogized the Union League Club for keeping alive the memory of Washington, and delivered an elegant sulogy on the virtures and public service of the father of his country. He then continued:

Virtues Republic Needs.

Three months before his inauguration as first President of the Republic which he had done so much to create, Washington wrote a letter to Lafayette, his warm friend and revolutionary ally, in which he ex-pressed his unremitting desire to establish a general system of policy which, if pur-sued, would "ensure permanent felicity to the Commonwealth"; and he added these the Commonwealth"; and he added these words:

"I think I see a path as clear and as direct as a ray of light, which leads to the attainment of that object. Nothing but harmony, honesty, industry and frugality are necessary to make us a great and happy people. Happily the present posture of atfairs and the prevailing disposition of my countrymen promise to co-operate in establishing these four great and essential pillars of public felicity."

Such considerations as these suggest the thought that this is a time for honest self-examination. The question impressed upon us with a demand for reply that will not be denied is: "Who among us all, if our hearts are purged of misleading impulses and our minds freed from perverting pride, can be sure that today the posture of affairs, and the prevailing disposition of our countrymen, co-operate in the establishment and promotion of harmony, honesty, industry and frugality."

Where These Virtues Are Lacking.

Where These Virtues Are Lacking.

The self-examination invited by this day's commemoration will be incomplete and su-perficial if we are not thereby forced to the confession that there are signs of the the confession that there are signs of the times which indicate a weakness and relaxation of our hold upon these saving virtues. When thus forewarned it is the height of recreancy for us obstinately to close our eyes to the needs of the situation and refuse admission to the thought that evil can overtake us. If we are to deserve security, we will carefully and duffully take our bearings and discover if we can take our bearings and discover if we can how far wind and tide have carried us away from safe waters.

If we find that the wickedness of destructive agitators and the selfsh depravity of demagogues have stirred up discontent and strife where there should be peace and harmony, and have arrayed against each other interests which should dwell together in hearty connectation. If we find that the other interests which should dwell together in hearty co-operation; if we find that the old standards of sturdy, uncompromising American honesty have become so corroded and weakened by a sordid atmosphere that our people are hardly startled by crimes consider for the victory of his team.

in high places and shameful betrayals of trust everywhere; if we find a sadiy provalent disposition among us to turn from the highway of honorable industry into shorter crossroads leading to irresponsible and worthless ease; if we find that wide-spread wastefulness and extravagance have discredited the wholesome frugality which was once the pride of Americanism—we should recall Washington's admonition that harmony, industry and frugality are "essential pillars of public felicity," and forthwith endeavor to change our course.

Hatred Born of Party Feeling.

Hatred Born of Party Feeling.

It is our habit to affiliate with political parties. Happily the atrength and solidity of our institutions can safely withstand the utmost freedom and activity of political discussion so far as it involves the adoption of governmental policies or the enforcement of good administration. But they cannot withstand the frenzy of hate which seeks under the guise of political earnestness to blot out American brotherhood and of cunningly persuade our people that a crusade of enty and malice is no more than a realous insistence upon their manheod rights.

Political parties are exceedingly human; and they easier fall before temptation than individuals by so much as partisan success is the law of their life and because their responsibility is impersonal. It is easily recalled that political organizations have been quite willing to utilize gusts of popular prejudice and resentment; and I believe they have been known as a matter of shrewd management to encourage voters to hope for some measure of relief from economic abuses and yet to "stand pat" on the day appointed for realization.

We have failen upon a time when it behooves every thoughtful citizen whose political beliefs are based on reason and who cares enough for his manliness and duty to save them from barter, to realize that the organization of the party of his choice needs watching, and that at times it is not amiss critically to observe its direction and tendency. This certainly ought to result in our country's gain; and it is only partisan impudence that condemns a member of a political party who on proper occasion submits its conduct and the loyalty to principle of its leaders, to a court of review over which his conscience, his reason and his political understanding preside.

The land we live in is safe so long as we are dutifully careful of the land that lives are dutifully careful of the land that lives in us. But good intentions and fine senti-ments will not meet the emergency. If we would bestow upon the land that lives in us the care it needs, it is indispensable that we should recognize the weakness of our human nature and our susceptibility to temptations and influences that interfere with a full conception of our obligations; with a full conception of our obligations, and thereupon we should see to it that rapidity and selfshness do not blind our consciences or dull our efforts.
