He is not only one of Portland's best business men, but a good speaker, and a very popular employer." Mr. Olds congratulated the young people upon being so fortunate as to enter the business world when everything was so prosperous. Success in business, he said, was largely due to some cardinal principles, which he would term the foundation upon which to build a successful business life: Good health, which all could have by the right use of fresh air, exercise and simple living. Ideals were another foundation stone, for to be successful it was necessary to have a high ideal of what one's work should be. Enthusiasm and cheerfulness were valuable friends for us and life worth living.

At the close of the address Chester Lee, on behalf of the students, presented W. H. Brown, who returned to the college from the teaching profession, with a handsome set of brushes.

SALEM MAN COMMITS SUICIDE AT HOTEL HERE.

E. O. Omley Drinks Fatal Draught of Carbolic Acid After Writing a Note Telling His Troubles.

E. O. Omley, formerly of Salem, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in a room in the Rheinfels Hotel at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, because of domestic trouble, according to a letter written by him, which he said could be published "to show what a woman can do to ruin a man and drive him to death." It was such an unintelligible epistle, however, that it was not published.

MUCH-SOUGHT ABSCONDER MAY STILL BE IN PORTLAND. With Pinkerton detectives and the police throughout the country on his trail day and night, William F. Walker, wanted in New Britain, Conn., for embezzling $380,000 from a savings bank, managed to conceal himself and retain his liberty. While it is not positively known that Walker is in Portland, it is believed that he is, and every effort is being made to effect his capture. A reward of $2000 hangs over his head, and this has caused every officer in the country, as well as large numbers of private citizens, to watch closely for Walker. The Pinkerton detectives declare that Walker registered under an assumed name at the Hotel Portland, February 18, but that he left here, for where they will not state.

ever, that Acting Coroner Arthur I. Finley thinks the man must have been insane when writing it.

That Omley had committed suicide was not known until 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the chambermaid wished to enter the room on her rounds and found it locked, with the key in the door. She called a bellboy, who climbed over the transom and found the body already cold in death. A bottle, labeled "carbolic acid," purchased from the store of Graddon & Koehler, First and Main streets, was lying on the bed, indicating the manner of the man's self-destruction.

Acting Coroner Finley took charge of the body and the effects of the suicide, among which were a letter and postal card and a lead pencil scrawled on an envelope. Omley seemed to have been at least very much agitated when writing the letter, and his words indicate insanity. He mentioned the name of a Charles Fox, who, he said, was responsible with Mrs. Omley for his death, inasmuch as they had committed acts sufficient to drive him frantic, he wrote. He evidently intended the newspapers to publish the letter in full, but it was so vile in places that its contents could not be printed. He made it clear, however, that he killed himself because of his wife's alleged unfaithfulness, and said she would be glad to know he was out of the way.

Omley was aged about 50 years old, as near as the coroner could judge, and was a man of powerful physique and fully six feet tall. He had been engaged in peddling patent illuminated signs. He appeared at the Rheinfels Hotel at 1 o'clock yesterday morning and asked the bellboy, Archie Wold, to let him have a room and said he would pay for it after closing. He then retired, and at 5 o'clock young Wold was called to investigate screams that issued from Omley's room. The boy peered over the transom and saw Omley squinting his arms wildly about, but the man, who was actually dying, soon quieted down, and the boy left, little thinking a suicide had occurred.

Knowing that Omley retired late, he was not called until the chambermaid made her rounds in the afternoon. Mrs. Omley is still living in Salem.

OMLEY HAD BEEN INSANE. Wife Had Sued Him for Divorce Only Few Weeks Ago.

SALEM, Or., March 1.—(Special.)—E. O. Omley had been employed by S. A. Manning, a Salem implement dealer, for some time prior to November 15, on which date he was committed to the State Insane Asylum as a result of a protracted spree. He was released in January in Multnomah County, and the papers were served on him here. Officers here do not know the grounds for divorce nor what trouble may have existed between Omley and his wife, but it is supposed that after this suit was brought he went to Portland and falling to effect a reconciliation, committed suicide.

On February 15 his wife, who resides in Portland, brought suit for divorce in Multnomah County, and the papers were served on him here. Officers here do not know the grounds for divorce nor what trouble may have existed between Omley and his wife, but it is supposed that after this suit was brought he went to Portland and falling to effect a reconciliation, committed suicide.

LECTURES ON THEOSOPHY. M. Heindel, of Los Angeles, Gives Talk at Alisky Hall. M. Heindel, of Los Angeles, delivered the third in his series of theosophical lectures at Alisky Hall last night. Theosophy views were used to illustrate the speaker's subject, which was "Chloroform as Viewed by Theosophy."

"Occult science is not definite and exact as physical science," he said. "It had, through clairvoyant investigation, obtained much important information about the condition of life after bodily death. There is nothing miraculous in the ability of the clairvoyant to forecast events. It is merely the seeing of certain causes that have been set going on the occult side of the universe, but that in material life, but that by physical expression. It is not a process of judging the results of given tendencies. It is an actual seeing of events not yet manifested in material life, but that they are seen with distinct, unaltered vision to be always reliably interpreted."

The subject was discussed from the viewpoint of the scientific man and the lecturer sought to show that it is scientifically reasonable that we continue life in a world invisible to physical sight. Replying to an inquiry about the desirability of theosophy toward the churches, he said that theosophy is a philosophy that explains the great fundamental principles underlying all religions. It does not try to take people away from their churches, but it is concerned only with inducing people to live the highest and most unselfish life and it is immaterial to what church they belong.

O'BRYAN PAYS ALL REBATES. Refunds Ordered on Insurance Premiums Returned Before Orders to Cancel. Insurance agents who took advantage of the circular issued February 14 by the Portland Board of Fire Underwriters to refund the additional premium of 25 per cent on policies issued between May 1 and January 1 are now congratulating themselves that they are no longer in Portland. The impression was given in the original circular that only two agencies in the city succeeded in completing their rebates, should be corrected.

REPORT ON FOODSTUFFS. Chamber of Commerce Sends Senator Bourne List of Importations. Secretary Gilmer, of the Chamber of Commerce, telegraphed United States Senator Bourne yesterday the result of the Chamber's investigations as to the aggregate of food product importations received in this city. These statistics were compiled by Deputy Collector of Customs Pike. Accompanying the telegram was the information that there are not to be had available quarters in the Government buildings here for the proposed pure food laboratory.

State Food and Dairy Commissioner Badley, however, has written the Department of Agriculture offering the use of his offices, laboratory and complete equipment and his library for the temporary accommodation of the laboratory until more suitable quarters can be procured. The accommodations at Mr. Badley's office, together with its equipment, are believed to be adequate to meet the needs of the proposed laboratory.
