PUT SOCIALISM TO

Brisbane Buys Deserted New Jersey Village to Carry Out His Idea.

MAY PLAY POLITICAL PART

Hearst's Editor Will Colonize East Siders at Allaire and Become Benevolent Landlord - Makes Jersey Politicians Shudder.

NEW YORK, March 18 .- (Special.)-Ar thur Brisbane, who writes the red-hot so cislist editorials on the New York Even ling Journal, has bought an entire deserted village in New Jersey and has thereby created much excitement. The question that is agitating his followers is:

"Will Brisoane be a plutocratic land-lord or an all-wool philanthropist?"

The cellure is your the ways of the land-

The editor is now the owner of Allaire, N. J., and all he paid for it was $125,000 cash. It is understood that the Allaire Water Supply & Land Company, the former owner, believes it has got the best of the barrain

Allaire is in Monmouth County, about six miles from Lakewood and 30 from Asbury Park. It is on the Freehold and Janesburg division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, but trains never stop there, be-cause the town has not even a lonesome linhabitant

By his purchase Mr. Brisbane becomes the proud possessor of 600 acres of land a deserted iron foundry, six buildings where stoves were formerly manufactured, and the office building; $3 cottages, more or less dismantled and weather-beaten; a railroad station without any interior fixings or windows; one church building.

Once Thriving Iron Town,

Many years ago Allaire was one of the Many years ago Allaire was one of the most flourishing small towns of North Jorsey. John Allaire built great from works there, and the place was named after him. It was really a ploneer establishment, for the from work used in the construction of Robert Fulton's steamboat was made there and steamboat screws were first manufactured at Allaire. John Roach, the shipbuilder, learned his trade under the veteran ironmaster, and for many years lived hear the works. It is an interesting coincidence that the "company store," which Brisbane has editorially denounced in many editorials, had its first trial at the village the writer now owns.

The store was so prosperous that for a time the Howell Iron Company, as the corporation operating the works was known, issued its own currency to the 500 or more workmen it employed.

But the remoteness of Allaire from any of the mining centers led to its downfall. Its ore had to be shipped from Pennsylvania, and soon after Mr. Allaire's death the company found itself unable to compete with the Pennsylvania iron manufacturers, who were then just getting a real start in business. Finally the works were closed, and all of the hands moved away. For years the place has been dead to the world, but with the advent of Brisbane a new era of prosperity is promised.

Brisbane's Social Scheme.

Brisbane's Social Scheme.

It is known that the editor has taken a great deal of interest in Halicon hall, the Socialist colony founded by Upton Sincialr in New Jersey, but he believed that the Sinclair experiment is doomed to be a failure. It Halicon hall, everything is enjoyed in common by the colonists. White believing in many of the principles of Socialism, Mr. Brisbane is not convinced that all men should be placed on the same level, and he has not the slightest intention of whacking uphis salary (which by the way was recently raised to $72.000 a year) with any $2 a day hodearrier.

When asked concerning his plans re-en asked concerning his plans re garding Allaire, Mr. Brisbane simply marked that he intended to experiment model farming, but declined to give y further particulars. One of his friends said, howeved;

"At the proper time you will see a practical demonstration of practical Socialism. It is Brisbane's intention to cialism. It is Brisbane's intention to divide bis place up into small truck farms and secure settlers from the crowded East Side. I understand that Nathan Strans is interested in the project. He and Brisbane are great friends, and have been associated in a number of enterprises. The intention is I believe, to give each settler 20 to 30 acres of land, and see what he can do with it, in the way of raising vegetables for the New York market. If he makes money, he is to be charged rent. This tax is not to be a fixed charge, but a certain percentage on what he makes over living expenses. Should the farmer fall, despite his best endeavors, not only will rental he waived, deavors, not only will rental be waived, but he may receive some money. Loafers, however, are to be promptly thrown out.

May Buy Other Villages.

"Brisbane thinks the scheme is not only a good financial investment, but that it will be a boon to many persons who are now cooped up on the East Side, doomed to perpetual poverty. Should the matter prove to be as big a success as it seems on paper, I would not be surprised if he purchased some more 'deserted siles." purchased some more 'deserted village Jersey is full of them, and they can secured for a song; even a topical song.

Summer residents along the Jersey coast bitteriy oppose the Brisbane idea, for Allaire, because of its ruin and desolution, has been one of the show places of Mon-mouth County. Stage lines have done a and sightseeing automobiles have been utilized to similar purpose. With the ad-vent of the editorial landlord, of course all the picturesqueness will cease and Brisbane intended to drop journalism and take up the life of a country gentlemen, but this is scoffed at by all his friends. He is simply going to be a philanthropist of the absentee hundred variety, and, undoubtedly, will have a lot of fun out of it.

Alarm Among Politicians.

Alarm Among Politicians.

Politicians, however, are watching Mr. Brisbane's experiment with grave concern. Monmouth has been a Republican County for a good many years, but by a comparatively narrow margin. For example, in 1901, when Rossevelt swept the state, he only carried Monmouth by 10,885 votes to 9022 for Parker. Last year the Republican plurality was only 110, and Republican plurality was only 110, and nominally it is less than 300.

With the advent of the Allaire enthusiasts, it is evident that Brisbane would hold the balance of power, which would mean he would be in a position to dictate mean he would be in a position to dictate the State Senator and two members of Assembly. And as the entire New Jersey Legislature comprises only il Senators and 60 Assemblymen, these three votes might prove of value some day.

H. L. Austin, one of the Democratic Jeaders in Jersey City and an ex-Assemblyman, said today;

"If Brisbane gets this colony going right, he is liable to be a factor in poli-did in Zion City.

Should he be anxious to cut ice in poliics, I don't know anybody who would top him. We are rather shy on leaders ust now, and one with money and ideas would be welcomed.

Would be welcomed.

It wouldn't surprise me one bit if Brisbane's socialist colony should be the means of sending him to the United States Senate some day. He would certainly make things hum at Washington, and I, for one, would like to see him go there.

Trying to Find a Name.

And in the meantime there is naturally great excitement on the East Side. All agree that the name of Allaire must be changed, but they cannot decide on the substitute. At present Brisbania is in the lead, with League Junction, Anti-Monopoly and Extra!! fighting for the place.

ATTRACT CASH TO STATE

Ingenius Nebraska Scheme to Exempt Bank Deposits From Taxes.

OMAHA, Neb., March 18 .- (Special.)-If you are a rich man with a big lot of ready cash in the bank, on which you do not wish to pay taxes, go to Nebraska. A bill is now before the Nebraska Legisa law, the provisions of which will enable any man who has a large amount of ready cash to avoid paying taxes on money which he may have deposited in banks banks.

Of course any law would be uncon stitutional if enacted with a provision for the cancellation of taxes or containing any provisions for the giving away of state funds, but there is nothing to prestate funds, but there is nothing to pre-vent the state from paying salaries for services performed, and that is the precise intent of the proposed law. New Jersey is said to be the home of trusts, and South Dakota bids for the divorce immigration, but Nebraska is going them all one better by bidding for the rich men with the ready cash.

The bill, which in itself is simple enough, was introduced at the request of John O. Yeiser, a prominent Omaha atterney and has advanced to its leaf John O. Yelser, a prominent Omaha attorney, and has advanced to its last reading. It has for its title "An act to create a Board of Immigration, Commerce and Industry, to be composed of the Governor, State Treasurer and Attorney-General, and defining its duties; providing for the appointment of advisory secretaries, defining their qualifications and duties and providing for their compensation." The idea and spirit of the bill is simply this. That a man may come to Nebraska declare himself at once to be a citizen of the state and ask for an appointmen on the advisory board. Upon being ap-pointed, he shall be qualified to draw as compensation for his services an amount equal to the sum paid by him as taxes on his bank deposits, as compensation for his services upon the advisory board. These services will be principally confined to recommending his wealthy friends to pursue the course which he himself is

The framing of such a law which would be constitutional was not easy. This bill, however, covers the ground, because it does not provide for the cancellation of taxes nor the giving away of state funds. Legal talent has been employed by the Legal talent has been employed by the commercial bodies of the state to define the ilmitations of such a law in order that it may stand a test in the courts. While the movement originated in Omaha, the law will work equally to the advantage of the small towns. The idea of the proposers is that it will give the of the promoters is that it will give the ready-cash resident of outside states an

X-RAYS ON THE GOVERNOR

New Mexico Legislators Accuse Hagerman of Land Fraud.

SANTA FE. N. M., March 18.—The fight in the lower house of the Legislature culminated this afternoon in the adoption by a vote of 13 to 10 of a report to investigate the Governor's alleged connection with the disposal of 7003 acres of timber by the territory to the Pennsylvania Development Company, of Pittsburg. The report, which is bitter in its arraignment of Governor Hagerman finds that he signed is bitter in its arraignment of Gov-ernor Hagerman, finds that he signed 23 deeds conveying part of this timber land and affixed the seal of the Com-missioner of Public Lands thereto without warrant of law, concluding that the disposition of the land in the manner mentioned was a fraud upon the people of the territory and its in-stitutions.

the people of the territory and its institutions.

The report recommends that the District Attorney bring action to set aside the deeds on the ground of lilegality and fraud in their procurement, not only in the case of the Pennsylvania Development Company, but also those deeds made by the previous administration, which involve the title to almost 100,000 acres of the best territory timber land.

During the adoption of the report a personal encounter took place on the floor of the House between the leaders of the opposing factions, Representatives H. B. Bolt and A. J. Hudspelp, but they were quickly separated.

Great Yolo Levee Floods Town and Threatens Bridges.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 18.-Th Sacramento River at this city is booming tonight and in the past 12 hours has riser almost three feet. The flood waters from the American, Feather and Yuba Rivers are jouring into the Sacramento and while the flood crest has not reached this city, all indications are that a new high-water record will be made.

The overflow pouring through the break in the Yolo levee at the Kripp ranch across from this city has backed up into the south and west end of Washington and all the residence portion of the town is from two or three feet under water with a constant rise. Several hundred acres of farm and fruit land are covered, but the damage is slight.

The American River at the Sacramento County bridge above this city has overtopped the high-water mark and the bridges of the Northern Electric and Western Pacific Railway Companies are language of the Sacrament of the in danger of being carried away by the flood. The bridges were weakened early yesterday by the floods and, with the large amount of driftwood and swift current pounding on their plers, fears are entertained that the structures may go out before morning. The Fair Oaks bridge on the American River, 17 miles above this city, is reported in danger, the water being within a few inches of the floor. At Folsom the river registered 18 feet, the highest ever known.

No apprehension is felt here, as the levees can withstand ten feet more water than is now flowing in the river. The gauge is at the 24-foot mark, three feet and a half less than during the high
