the day previous. On the night of the collision Nolan said he went on the bridge at 5:30 o'clock. He knew the usual course of vessels near Westport, passing down river. It was at time of taking the bridge that he first saw the dredge Columbia and tender McCracken. The Manzaulta was heading down for the Westport beach light, which showed two points on the starboard bow. He saw white lights on the dredge and pontoons. He sent for glasses to see where the pontoons lay. The Manzanita stopped about a quarter a mile from the dredge and blew two Nolan could not say how much time elapsed before the Manzanita struck, after her course was changed. The Manzanita was making about three knots an about when she struck the dredge's cutter. The mate reported to the captain that the vessel was sinking and then launched the boats. By order of the captain he later secured lanterns and placed them on the masts of the sunken vessel. When he bourded the dredge, the McCracken was still under way.

C. F. Smith, the next witness, said he was in the employ of the Government engineers, but had never taken the usual Government service oath. While Mercury and Potash may mask the disease in the system and cover up the outward symptoms for awhile, they cannot cure Contagious Blood Poison; when the treatment is left off, the disease will return worse than before. Mercury and Potash eat out the delicate lining of the stomach and bowels, produce chronic dyspepsia, cause the teeth to decay, make spongy, tender gums, affect the bones and nerves, and often cause Mercurial Rheumatism, the most hopeless form of this disease. Thousands have taken the mineral treatment faithfully for years to find, when it was left off, that the disease had only been smouldering in the system, and the old symptoms of ulcerated mouth and throat, falling hair, copper-colored spots, swollen glands, sores and ulcers, etc., would return in all their hideousness, and they were no nearer a cure than when they first commenced the treat-ment. S. S. S. is the only certain, safe and reliable treatment for Contagious Blood Poison. It is the one medicine that is able to go into the blood and cure PURELY VEGETABLE the disease permanently, and without injury to any part of the system. S. S. S. does not cover up anything, but so completely removes the poison that no trace of it is ever seen again. This medicine will also remove any bad effects left by previous mineral treatment. S. S. S. is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks; we offer a reward of $1,000 for proof that it contains a particle of mineral in any form. Write for our home treatment book, and if you desire special medical advice, our physicians will be glad to furnish it, as well as the book, free of charge.
