

HELD UP BY PINK DOMINO

Henry Hahn Forced to Stand and Deliver on Veranda of Own Home.

SHUT UP IN HIS BEDROOM

Burglar Takes Flight After Impressing Victim and Flees Pursued by Hall of Bullets From Latter's Revolver.

The pink domino burglar, whose recent operations have been the despair of the police, visited the mansion of Henry Hahn, at the head of Loveloy street, last night, and held-up the owner, ransacking his $125 in coin, all he had in his pockets, and a gold watch.

The daring holdup occurred on the veranda of the Hahn home and after robbing Mr. Hahn the pink domino man commanded him to enter the house and march him upstairs to his bedroom. All this was accomplished at the point of a threatening blue-barreled revolver, held in the hand of the wearer of the pink domino, who expressed a desire to see what was of value in the residence contained. He had first demanded of Mr. Hahn that he bring the revolver to the family safe, but the tact merchant refused.

Disappointed in his effort to secure richer booty and probably frightened at the warning call of Mrs. Sheldon, Mr. Hahn's married daughter, the thief made his escape from the house by a rear door. Mr. Hahn emptied his revolver at the fleeing burglar. Telephone calls were promptly sent to police headquarters and Captain Batley dispatched Detective Sergeant Baily, Acting Detective Price, and Patrolman Larry Evans to the scene.

Story of Mr. Hahn.

In relating his trying experience while in custody of the burglar, Mr. Hahn told the story of the holdup in the following words: "The man who wore a pink domino mask and had towels tied around his shoes in order to keep the soles of his footstepers clean, came suddenly as I was inserting my key in the lock of the front door. He commanded me to throw up my hands, and I complied immediately on feeling the revolver pointed at my head. He took my watch and about $150 in coin—all I had in my pocket at the time—and told me to open the door and enter. I did as he directed and he followed. Mrs. Sheldon, who was in the room, heard the noise and coming to the head of the stairs caught a glimpse of my masked companion. She ran hurriedly to the room of my son, Leo, and called for him to awaken and go to my rescue. My custodian then poked the gun against my back and ordered me to stop her cries, to which I refused.

"He then came as far as the head of the stairs and commanded me to enter my room and not to move or make an outcry after which he forced me upstairs and I secured my revolver as soon as possible. When I arrived downstairs the man had gone, but I believe he must have left by a rear entrance, for he did not in sight when I gained the porch. I then walked to the southern end of the veranda and waited. The man put in his appearance in a few seconds and he opened fire on him. He dodged and ran around to the rear of the house and escaped in the shrubbery and brush on the hillside directly in rear of my house."

Evidence of the tumult directed at the fleeing robber was found on one of the pillars supporting the porch, where one of the bullets ploughed through, making a scar on the post easily noticeable.

Burglar Not an Old Hand. The burglar is believed by the police to be someone who is familiar with the circumstances and habits of the occupants of houses he selects, but who has not much experience in the criminal line. This is deduced from the fact that the robber has taken several watches and monogrammed jewelry on account of the likelihood of these articles being traced. The probability of the man being a beginner makes it hard for the officers to secure a definite trace of him, for in the operations so far conducted the culprit has left no trace on which an identification could be made. The pink domino mask, or rather its wearer, is being hunted with all the energy possessed by at least two members of Captain Bruin's secret service branch.

Detective Sergeant Baily and Acting Detective Price searched the hill back of the Hahn residence and now they are in some trace of the robber, or perhaps to discover that all of Mr. Hahn's shots had not proven futile, but up to a late hour their efforts had proven unavailing. The ground back of the house is rough, and even hillocks leading up to the heights and is covered with thick underbrush, making tracks practically undiscernible. Miss Maude Hahn, who had attended the Health Theater last night, reached home in company with her escort about five minutes after Mr. Hahn had emptied his revolver after the fleeing burglar. When they were up the hill the young couple met no suspicious characters, and it is assumed that the murderer fled towards the Lewis and Clark Fair Grounds.

SHALL OREGON GIRLS DRESS AS SQUAWS AT JAMESTOWN?

Plan of Colonel J. C. Cooper, of McMinnville, to Advertise Oregon Not Enthusiastically Received by Publicity Experts.

PORTLAND people and for that matter a great many of the residents in every section of the state do not enthusiastically receive the plan of Colonel J. C. Cooper, of McMinnville, who proposes sending 40 young women, dressed in Indian costume, from this state to the Jamestown Exposition. The idea of Colonel Cooper is to have this detachment of young women represent the state at the Exposition and appear publicly in drills and dances in exemplification of Indian life in Oregon at an early day.

The practicality of such a plan for advertising Oregon is doubted. There exists with the average citizen no objection to sending any number of young women to the Jamestown or any other exposition, for a more creditable exhibit could not be sent. But the proposal to have these young women dressed in Indian gowns is not approved and by many is severely censured. The main objection against sending young women as Indian maids is the fact that it will serve to strengthen the impression so prevalent throughout the East that Oregon is infested with Indians. This is a belief with which Oregon has had to contend for many years. The idea has been displaced, practically, it is argued that a mistake would be made in sanctioning anything that would tend to revive this erroneous impression among Easterners.

The idea is an original one with Colonel Cooper, who is a pioneer of the state and lived in Yamhill County when Indians were still in the state. Colonel Cooper is the author of an Indian novel, "The Yamhill," which is a well-written picture of Indian life in this state many years ago. His friends explain that Colonel Cooper recognizes in the scheme of representing the state as he proposes an opportunity to do an event associated with the early history of the state and at the same time give an attractive entertainment. They declare the promoter of the plan is enthusiastic for sending the delegation of young women, who will in themselves, being bright and accomplished, refute all unreasonable ideas that may exist in the East as to the prevalence of redskins in this state, while at the same time the exposition visitors will be treated to an entertainment of great interest and attractiveness. The costume, it is claimed, is merely an in-

McCabe to Bore First Long Tunnel on Tillamook Road. LENGTH TO BE 1400 FEET Must Be Drilled Through Solid Rock, and Work is Expected to Require Six to Eight Months at Least.

E. E. Lytle, president of the Pacific Railway & Navigation Company, has let the contract for the construction of a long tunnel on the road to Astoria, and George McCabe, Portland railway contractor. This is the first long tunnel to be driven on the Lytle road. A number of miners will be built as soon as the work progresses sufficiently. The contract just let calls for a tunnel 1400 feet long at a point five miles almost directly west of Buxton, the place to which the road has already been completed. The work is heavy rock drilling and a compressed air drill, driven by a gasoline engine, will be set up. An electric light plant will be installed and the work prosecuted day and night. Three shifts will be worked, with the intention of finishing the job as fast as possible. It is expected to have the tunnel completed in six or eight months. The contractors have had experience in this kind of work and no delays are expected. President Lytle hopes to accomplish much work during the coming season. Increased forces will be put on as soon as the weather is sufficiently settled and construction work all along the line will be pushed while the weather is favorable for outdoor work.

WITHDRAWS ITS OPPOSITION

Government Will Permit Railroad to Build Up Deschutes. Opposition by the Government reclamation service to plans for the construction of the Oregon Trunk Railroad up the Deschutes River, has been removed and work is now expected to proceed without delay. The reclamation service, which was in charge of the work, that the railroad's right-of-way had been granted. The work was completed last year but after work of grading the line had been carried on for a time, notice was received that the line encroached upon the present reclamation service and that work must stop. It was then supposed the railroad would not be allowed to proceed, but representations were made to the government, setting forth the desirability of a railroad in this isolated country, and it appears the matter has been reconsidered with the result that permission has been given to build the road.

Colonist travel to Oregon from the East and Middle West continues heavy. A careful record of the number of tickets sold at colonist rates to points on the Northwestern line of the Harriman system is kept in this city. Figures have just been made up for the week ending March 31. The totals show a slight decrease in the number of tickets arriving here in comparison with the first two weeks of the season, but the week has a creditable gain over the week preceding. Homeseekers coming to all stations on the Harriman lines in Oregon during the last week in March numbered 1469. This does not include a large number of settlers who came during the same period from the Northern Pacific. The figure for the week is an increase of 227 over the corresponding week of 1905.

NEW STOCKHOLDERS TO MEET

Will Consider Future of Astoria & Columbia River Road. The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad, the new Hill project, will be held at Astoria April 9. It is understood that the new stockholders will consider various important matters at this meeting. J. C. Mayo, general freight and passenger agent for the road, has filed his resignation in other business. Ralph Jenkins, chief clerk in the office of F. H. Fogarty, assistant general freight agent for the Northern Pacific, will take his place. His headquarters will be at Astoria. No successor to Mr. Jenkins has yet been named.

It is also planned to change the handling of Astoria & Columbia River freight from the Southern Pacific freight house to the Northern Pacific freight sheds in the terminal yards. This is a natural result of the change in ownership.

By Rail to Pyramids.

Something decidedly new in railroad travel is being offered by the Railroad road yesterday. It is a large poster announcing the attractions of the Egyptian State Railway, and was sent to F. R. Johnson, general agent for the Canadian Pacific, by a man who had just returned from the pyramids and the Nile. The poster is a masterpiece of art and the new has actually been accomplished and the rumble of the modern locomotive now starts the echoes among ruins of untold antiquity.

Fish Plates Out of Date.

Continuous rail joints are being put in on the Oregon City division of the Oregon Water Power & Railway company. The old-time fish plates are being superseded by more modern devices. Part of the line already has been remodeled and the work will be completed during the coming summer.

Club at its luncheon April 12, his subject being "The Empire of the North West" in which he will treat of the commercial outlook of the Pacific Northwest. On the morning of the same day he will also address the public school teachers at their monthly meeting at the Portland High School. During his stay here he will address other educational institutions, among them being Columbia University and St. Mary's Academy. Mr. Monaghan was professor of economic geology at the University of Wisconsin for several years and during Cleveland's administration was American Consul at Mannheim. Upon the election of President Roosevelt he was made chief of the Bureau of Consular Reports. Mr. Monaghan will also deliver a public lecture in the Woodmen of the World Hall, Elevator Building, at 10 o'clock on the evening of April 15. His subject will be "The French Situation from a Layman's Standpoint." As he was for a long time a resident of France, Mr. Monaghan is especially well qualified to speak on this subject. He is also a National authority on matters of commerce and labor.

While in the city Mr. Monaghan will be the guest of Archbishop Christie. week's tour of Southern Oregon. They will appear at Eugene, Corvallis, Salem, and McMinnville before their return. M. Rosenbaum, one of Portland's best-known traveling men, who was ill for a year or more, has once more taken to the road. He left last night on an extended trip through Oregon, Washington and Idaho, and will represent a well-known New York clothing house. James R. Thompson, international industrial secretary of the Y. M. C. A., arrived Wednesday morning from San Francisco. He left last night for Salt Lake City. On his trip through the Northwest he is working for the establishment of a number of associations. C. P. Bishop, who retired from business in Portland last January, expects in about a month to make a trip to Europe of indefinite length. Mrs. Bishop, who is now quite ill with grip in this city, will accompany him, and the start will be made just as soon as she recovers.

Motormen Discover New Use for Soap

PORTLAND motormen on the city streets have discovered an entirely new use for soap. Formerly it has been supposed that the chief, if not the only value this substance has, is as a cleanser. But there are other valuable points about the article which are almost as indispensable a part of the equipment of the car as the controller wielded by the man on the front end. During the present rainy weather a motorman is often seen rubbing a cake of soap on the outside of the window of his vestibule. Thoughtless passengers might attribute this act to a laudable desire to keep his car clean but the "juice-jerker" has an entirely different end in view. When driving in the face of a rain-storm, the drops persist in sticking on the outside of the glass vestibule directly ahead of the motorman in a manner that partially obstructs his view. The beads of water collect until they form rivulets down the glass and this still further taxes the motorman's eyesight in the effort to get a clear view of the track ahead. This is where the soap comes in handy. It is a part of the used substance is rubbed on the surface of the glass. It makes the pane slippery and the drops do not stick to the microscopic irregularities of the glass but quickly run down to the bottom and drop out of the motorman's way. During Oregon's rainy season, much soap is used for this purpose.
