Beavers Go All to Pieces and Seals Score in Bunches.

ASHLEY A STAR PITCHER

Man From Texas Does Fine Work for Seals-Beavers Not Even Playing Class C Baseball in a Bush League.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11 .- (Special.)-The Beavers played ball this afternoon

The Beavers played ball this afternoon that would not do in a class C bush league, and consequently the Seals did not have to turn a hair to make it three in a row. It was the custom of the Portland in-field to go to pleces whenever the Seals put men on bases, and as this fad was in force frequently, the finish could easily be discerned after the fifth inning.

Young Ashley, the former Texas and Arlzona star, made his bow to the local fams and pitched grand baseball. The best the Beavers got off his assortment was a run and two hits. The run was the result of Moriarity's error in the first inning, followed by a sacrifice and McCreedie's timely single to certerfield.

After that, the Beavers never figured with the club. Lovett managed to sneak in a hit during the sixth, but he died on first base. Several of the Portlanders tried the stunt of waiting for base on balls, but as the recruit was there with the control as well as the speed and curves, there was no chance to beat the game that way.

Will return there, but only is but only for the purpose of putting his business affairs in shape so that he can leave that city. Henderson watched the game yesterday afternoon and later had his conference with McCredie. "It is all a question of salary," he said, before he taiked with McCredie, "It is all a question of salary," I will play ball with Portland."

There is a good chance that Mott, the former Seattle third baseman, will join McCredie received a dispatch today from Mottrelle received a dispatch today from Mottrelle, on the ground that he belongs to the Beavers.

speed and curves, there was no chance to beat the game that way.

The Seals managed to put three over in the fifth on good hitting and base-running. Ashley helping out by opening it up with a double to centerfield fence. But the seventh was the disastrous spaam for the Beavers. Staton, Carson and Califf all fell asleep, four errors, a wild pitch, a passed ball and one scratchy hit producing three runs and took the PORTLAND.

Acknowledges Conference With Fuller After Being Satisfied Car Strike Could Not Succeed.

PORTLAND, April 11 .- (To the Edtor.)-My intention was not to communicate further on the Streetcar Union controversy, but Mr. Fisher, in The Oregonian Tuesday morning, made some allegations, which, on account of public opinion, can hardly remain unanswered. His whole article, as a matter of course, is intended to refute all of my former statements. That I fully expected, but when he says:

He is also painfully aware of the fact of his own written request to President W. D. other falsehood.

I wish to say what I did do on that Monday after the tie-up. After having become public property, through my own statement, that the strike was called without my knowledge of it, knowing then how hopeless our cause would be in a popular sense, I went to consult with Mattern and Driver. consult with Matson and Price, were at that time our only active executive board members.

We agreed that if there was any possible way to undo the injury done by getting the men back on the cars, it was decided that I go to Mr. Fuller, which I did. There was not much of which I did. There was not much of any conference. I told him that, inasmuch as it had become so well known how the strike had been started, I wanted to intercede for the men who were out, feeling myself personally responsible through my siding in with the originators of the trouble.

I asked if he would be willing to take the men back to work, and I said I would use my influence in having the strike called off next morning. Mr. Fuller would not listen to the proposition with any favor.
