ABKENY MEN DID MEET

Aberdeen Paper Reiterates Statement Regarding Situation.

ABERDEEN, Wash., April 11.—(Special.)—The Aberdeen Bulletin tonight says of the recent article concerning the Ankeny conference at Walla Walla: "The Bulletin must reiterate all that it stated in Tuesday's article. The allegation that a meeting of Ankeny men was not held at Walla Walla is incorrect. The meeting was held and there were 15 prominent politicians present. While not all were classed as out and out Ankeny men, the Bulletin is reliably informed, by one of the gentlemen present, that Ankeny's friends were vastly in the majority at the conference. The Senator was not present, but it has not been stated that he was in attendance. The Bulletin's informant says the question of the Senator's candidacy two years hence was thoroughly discussed, and it was decided that he could not be re-elected. The conference agreed that it would be necessary to groom some other man, even at this early date, and there was a unanimity of sentiment in favor of Congressman Jones. One of the conferees declares on receipt of the Bulletin that the Ankeny followers of the meeting declared their willingness to support Jones for Senator, but that the Western Washington candidate, Albert E. Mead, must be some other than Albert E. Mead. The Bulletin's informant stands by his original statement, and as he was present, his narrative may be regarded as accurate, despite the Senator's heated denial.

FALLS FROM HIGH BRIDGE

Portland Peddler Meets With Perhaps Fatal Accident.

OREGON CITY, Or., April 11.—(Special.)—An accident which may prove fatal occurred at the site of the Clackamas street railway bridge north of this city at an early hour this afternoon. E. H. Wright, a peddler, who was walking from Portland to this city, while crossing the bridge, lost his balance and fell into the ground below, a distance of 30 feet. The accident occurred between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock, but it was not until nearly 2 o'clock that Lou Himmier, who happened to be passing the place, was attracted by the groans of the man and went to his aid. Mr. Himmier at once telephoned Dr. Norris to this place, the name of the accident. Dr. Norris then called the Chief of Police of Portland and asked if the man might be taken to one of the city hospitals, where he would receive medical aid, but was notified that the accident occurred here and therefore he should be cared for by local authorities.

THE OREGONIAN THIS MORNING
The Oregonian this morning respecting the late Judge Boise, it may be of interest to note his first appearance in Oregon in his professional life. This was in The Oregonian, Vol. 1, No. 4, December 28, 1850, in these words: "Law Notice—Reuben P. Boise, Attorney-at-Law, Office in the Oregonian building, in the rear of the Printing Office." The printing office at this time was on the corner of Front and Morrison streets, the northwest corner, it is believed.

Captain Stream Not to Blame.
ABERDEEN, Wash., April 11.—(Special.)—Captain Stream, who recently gave up command of the steamer Quinault, received word today that the United States Inspectors, who held an investigation here into the causes that led to the schooner Endeavor going on a spit near the mouth of this harbor, have decided that Captain Stream was not at fault. The Quinault at the time was going out to sea and the Endeavor was being towed by a tug belonging to the Northwestern Lumber Company of Hoquiam. The owners of the Endeavor have since brought suit against the tug company. The damages to the Endeavor were about $10,000.

DOUBLE-TRACK INTER-URBAN
Improvements Planned for Seattle-Tacoma Electric Line.
TACOMA, Wash., April 11.—(Special.)—Among the new work the Stone & Webster have planned for this season is the completion of the double-tracking of the inter-urban line between Tacoma and Seattle.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 11.—(Special.)—Carroll Wiley, a son of a former Mayor of Ballard, fell across a knee boiler machine this afternoon and the saw cut his right arm off below the elbow. Young Wiley pulled the sleeve of his shirt over the stump, picked up the severed hand and ran unattended to the office of Dr. C. S. Emery. He fell from exhaustion after the stump had been dressed by the physician.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 11.—(Special.)—Among the new work the Stone & Webster have planned for this season is the completion of the double-tracking of the inter-urban line between Tacoma and Seattle. As soon as the company's steam shovels can be released from other work they will be used in widening the cuts through the hills preparatory to laying the new double-track. The earth taken out of the cuts will be used to build other portions of the roadbed.
