

SOLEMN RITES FOR THE HONOURED DEAD

Body of Late Judge Boise Laid to Rest in Family Plot at Salem.

JUDGE WILLIAMS' EULOGY

Funeral Services at Home of Deceased, Where Friends, Fellow-Jurists and Pioneers Follow to Do Him Honor.

SALEM, Or., April 12.—(Special).—With all of the honors, dignity and respect that mortal being could bestow, and to which one in his late exalted station in public and private life was entitled, the last sad rites and religious ceremonies were performed over the remains of the late Judge Reuben Patrick Boise, at the old home place at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and they were laid away to eternal rest in the family plot, in Odd Fellows Cemetery, where they will follow out the dictates of the laws of nature—"ashes to ashes and dust to dust"—but the history of his life and deeds will ever remain fresh and ineffaceable in the hearts and minds of his relatives, friends and fellow citizens to be handed down from generation to generation of posterity.

Though simple and without the slightest degree of ostentation, the obsequies were conducted in the home in the presence of about 200 persons of high and low station in public life, life-long friends and fellow jurists and pioneers, with great solemnity and dignified beauty. These services consisted of a brief religious sermon by Rev. P. S. Knight, the pioneer Presbyterian minister and minister of the Pacific Northwest, who has conducted all of the funeral services of the Boise family since their residence in Salem, for 40 years, and an impromptu address, of a remembrance and eulogistic nature, by the Hon. George H. Williams, of Portland, a pioneer of 1853 and now the oldest lawyer in the state.

Honor Memory of the Dead.

These venerable and time-honored citizens paid many a compliment and sounded praises of the good deeds their deceased friend had accomplished during the 57 years of a life of honesty, thrift, integrity and public usefulness, and their kind recollections of warm associations of the past caused many a tear to well up and overflow in the eyes of those within hearing distance.

Musical for the occasion was furnished by the Thielson Quartette, composed of Professor and Mrs. Francisco Selez, Mrs. W. Carlton Smith and F. G. Deckebach, who rendered the Episcopal burial chant and a selection from the Gospel Hymns. Mr. Deckebach rendered a baritone solo, entitled "Rest," by Mrs. J. W. Bliss.

"My friends," said the Hon. George H. Williams, who arose slowly and feebly, at the close of the Reverend Knight's eloquent and touching sermon, to address a few remarks in behalf of his departed friend. "I have had a few words to say concerning Judge Boise, that would be as well as I as a man whose entire life was filled with fidelity and the highest ideals of honor. Judge Boise acted with his past on every possible occasion and for this reason he was entitled to all of the praises and honors due him."

"Judge Boise has been more fortunate during his life than has been the lot of many of us in earning and gaining the respect and confidence of all. He was fortunate in his choice of friends, and especially in retaining his faculties unimpaired to the very close of a long and useful life. When I came to Oregon, about 20 years ago, Judge Boise was engaged in the active practice of law, and I have had the pleasure of seeing him occupy seats of the highest honor the people could confer, the bench of the Supreme and Circuit Courts, and as a judge he has been absolutely impartial and upright; his private life irreproachable, and in public, above suspicion."

Was Oldest Lawyer in State.

"But a few days ago Judge Boise was the oldest lawyer in the state of Oregon. Now he has gone and I am the oldest and left to tread down the weary path of life alone, and I feel like one left alone without anyone to look up to in point of years and experience in the line of practice. When a man reaches the age that was attained by Judge Boise he has no occasion to regret to depart this earth, and there is no occasion to mourn his loss. It is as natural as the rising of the sun, the growth of the tree, the flower, the grass, the shrub and fulfill their usefulness on earth and after they have done their duty, wither and perish, and the same is true of mankind, and it is his duty to rest and view as cheerfully as he can the end of this life which is inevitable."

"His beloved family and friends need not grieve over his departure from such a long life of toil and high accomplishment, for they can look back upon his record with pride and full satisfaction. Spring is a most appropriate time for an old man to take his departure from this earth, when the flowers are springing, birds and everything to brighten and cheer him on to the end with their sweet fragrance and cheerful song, symbolic of a life of happiness, joy and prosperity. When the sun goes down and sheds its golden hues over the earth which is about to be clothed in darkness, so an old man like Judge Boise dies with all the glories of a setting sun. And when it is all over we can all join in saying: 'Well done, good and faithful servant. Rest in peace.'"

Not a Dry Eye in Assemblage.

When Judge Williams closed his remarks, so simple yet full of feeling and pathos as they were from lips trembling with age and tenderness, there was scarcely a dry eye in the whole assemblage. After the rendition of a song by the quartet, and the crowd filed to take a look at the deceased statesman and jurist, the funeral cortege wended its solemn way to the cemetery, where the remains were laid to their final rest after brief services and prayer conducted by the Rev. Mr. Knight, and all that was earthly of the late Judge Boise was a thing of the past.

The beautiful array of floral offerings gave mute testimony of the high esteem in which the deceased was held by the community and commonwealth, while representatives of the state and Federal judiciary and state officials were in attendance upon the ceremonies which marked the close of one of the most brilliant careers in the state's history.

The honorary pallbearers were: Hon. A. Bush, Hon. George H. Williams, Hon. T. M. Ford, Hon. W. B. Bessman, Judge P. S. Knight, of the United States District Court of Portland, Chief Justice R. S. Bean, of the State Supreme Court; Judge Alfred P. Sears, Jr., of the Circuit Court for Multnomah County; ex-Governor J. F. Moody and ex-Governor W. P.

Lord. The Multnomah and Marion County Bar Association and the State Supreme Court were all represented at the funeral, as were all of the offices of state and county located at the seat of government.

Memorial services to the memory of the late Judge R. P. Boise were held by the Multnomah County Bar Association in Room 4 of the Circuit Court yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The courtroom was crowded with members of the bar, distinguished jurists, gray-haired Judges and friends, who listened attentively to the words of tribute spoken by Judge C. U. Denton and Judge Rufus Moriarty. Each of the speakers paid an eloquent tribute to the high character and standing of the dead statesman and to his great judicial ability.

FOR PAVING STATE STREET

Salem Propertyowners Plan Much-Needed Improvement.

SALEM, Or., April 12.—(Special).—An ordinance is being drafted and will be presented at the next meeting of the City Council providing for the improvement of five more blocks of State street, with bituminous pavement, in addition to the three blocks already provided for. This will make a total of eight blocks and will extend from Commercial to Twelfth, which latter is traversed by the Southern Pacific Railroad. The cost will average $3000 per block or an aggregate of $24,000.

The Late Judge R. P. Boise.

The Legislature appropriated $5000 for improving the street along the capital building and grounds and the Willamette University will take advantage of the bonding act to meet its assessment for three blocks and the city will have to pay for three blocks, including the block occupied by the Federal building and will trust to the next Congress to reimburse it for that amount.

The property owners on Court street held an informal meeting tonight and took preliminary steps toward paving about five blocks of the thoroughfare which runs parallel to State street.

COLLEGE PAPER AN OUTLAW

WASHINGTON STUDENTS REPUDIATE PACIFIC WAVE.

New Paper Will Be Outcome—Wave Had Made Attack on the Faculty.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 12.—(Special).—The Pacific Wave, the college weekly published at the University of Washington, which attacked the faculty in its latest issue, charging its members with not practicing what they preach, was last night declared an outlaw publication by the Board of Control, the student governing body.

Further, the board decided that an editor of a new publication, which is to be a representative student paper, shall be elected from the student body by a popular vote at an election to be held in a couple of weeks.

The journal at present is run and managed by a corporation called the Pacific Wave Publishing Company, and its editor was elected by the trustees of that body rather than by popular vote. It is called the official organ of the collegians, but it is in the hands of a close corporation.

Posse Finds No Trace of Unknown Fugitive.

Eccentric Old Man Believed to Be Seriously Wounded—Two Poses Search for Him, but Without Any Success.

EUGENE, Or., April 12.—(Special).—After a desperate fight with Mel Fenwick, the unknown desperado who has been operating in the Lorane neighborhood, has left the place and the neighbors seem unable to locate him. Tuesday night the robber took some meat from Gray's smokehouse and cached it in the Gibson cabin, which is about 16 miles down the Siuslaw River from Lorane.

When Fenwick entered the cabin next morning the unknown man met him with a revolver, which Fenwick knocked aside and the two clinched. Fenwick finally getting away and wounding the robber with his rifle, and then the former went to the phone to call for help.

The old man quickly bandaged his wound and made his escape through a window, leaving a pool of blood on the floor and bloody tracks for some distance from the cabin.

Indications are that the old man was shot in the chest and he may have died by this time. He was tracked some distance from the cabin, when his shoe tracks changed to a less noticeable track like that of a moccasin, soon after which his path was lost entirely. Two posers are hunting him, but so far no success has been reported.

DRAIN POSTOFFICE IS ROBBED

Tramp Who Enters Store Gets Little and Is Caught Next Morning.

DRAIN, Or., April 12.—(Special).—For the second time within the last six months Benton Mire's store and the Drain postoffice, which is in the same building, were burglarized last night. The burglar broke open the door in the building, and after rifling the several tills in the store and postoffice of a small amount of money, he filled a gunny sack with a lot of provisions, shoes, etc., from the store.

This morning the burglar was found hiding in the Oddfellows Hall, with the stolen goods in his possession. Marshal Butrick arrested him about 10 o'clock, and he is now in the county jail. He is 37 years old and can scarcely speak English. He gave his name as William Kohn and told several stories of his history, one of which is that he has been working as a brick mason for several years, another that he was convicted of burglary in California last year, and sentenced to San Quentin for 15 years but escaped from jail after sentence was imposed.

No arms were found upon him, but he had a number of revolver cartridges in his pocket, which excited suspicion that he had a gun but must have hidden it. He has been taken to the county jail at Roseburg to await the action of the grand jury.

MAKE DASH FOR LIBERTY

Two Convicts Seek to Escape From Oregon Penitentiary.

SALEM, Or., April 12.—(Special).—Fred Kapp and Thomas Burke, two convicts working with a crew of ten men making excavations at the Insane Asylum for the new wing, made an attempt to elope yesterday, but were overtaken before they had proceeded a mile on their way to Portland and taken back to the penitentiary by Guard John Busick.

Kapp is serving two years for larceny from Willam County, and Burke one year for larceny from Union, and both have completed the major portion of their time.

The men were headed off in their flight by Guard Busick, who has a wheel, and took refuge in a hop kiln on the W. N. Savage place. Kapp surrendered without making further effort to escape, but Burke was pulled out the stove in the kiln where he had crawled to hide.

The object of his coming was to look into the conditions relative to organizing a company at this place. A meeting was called at the Masonic Hall, and it was in every sense very enthusiastic. Nearly every young man who signed his name to the petition was there ready to launch in the work. Captain Hammond stated that he was gratified at the interest displayed and would recommend to General Fenner favorably for a company to be established here.

SHEEP INSPECTOR AT SALEM

Lytle Confers With Steusloff Regarding Enforcement of Law.

SALEM, Or., April 12.—(Special).—State Sheep Inspector W. H. Lytle, of Pendleton, arrived tonight to confer with Commissioner W. H. Steusloff regarding the inspection of sheep in the valley, which will begin soon, and to make arrangements for the printing of the law and the meeting of the Commission and inspectors which will take place in Portland next week.

Dr. Lytle says he has encountered no opposition to the new law from any experienced or intelligent sheepowner, and that the only ones who are dissatisfied are those who "live in the backwoods and neither dip nor feed because both are too expensive." He predicts that the strict observance of the law will increase the profit on Oregon sheep and their product 25 per cent within the next year.

Y. W. C. A. IN CONVENTION

COLLEGE WOMEN OF TWO STATES AT CORVALLIS.

Twelfth Annual Meeting of Oregon-Idaho Associations Largely Attended.

CORVALLIS, Or., April 12.—(Special).—The twelfth annual convention of the College Young Women's Christian Association of Oregon and Idaho was opened at 9 o'clock this morning in the college chapel. Miss Constance McCordie, of Portland, led in the devotional exercises. Her five talks during the convention will be lessons taken from the life of Abraham.

Mrs. Stacy, of Seattle, opened the Bible studies on "The Importance of God in Bible Study," illustrating one phase with the character of Abraham. Reports were read from 14 associations, which showed a great increase in the work. Luncheon was attractively served by the O. A. C. household science girls in the domestic economy rooms. During the noon hour the delegates inspected the college and grounds. A special military drill was given by the cadet regiment for the benefit of the visitors.

A session at 4 o'clock was opened by Miss Montgomery, of Portland, representing the Consumers' League. She explained the origin of the League 20 years ago, its outline of work in Portland, especially the Saturday holiday closing during the summer and the pure food law. Mrs. Baldwin, of the Travelers' Aid in Portland, gave a very interesting talk relative to the work of the society in finding employment for girls. The competency of women in their work and the urgency for college women to embrace all their opportunities were militant points in her address.

The afternoon session was closed by Miss Isom, of the Portland library, who outlined the qualities necessary for a young woman to become a professional librarian. The profession is commended as one particularly open to women. The evening session opened with an address by Miss Frazer, of San Francisco, on the subject, "Alien or American." The fact that the present foreign immigration is inferior to that of former years calls for missionary work among them for their Christianizing. The evening session closed with an address by President McGrew, of Newberg College, on the subject, "The College Women's Opportunity." A hundred and twenty delegates arrived today. The convention closes Sunday evening.

HURT THE SCHOOL SYSTEM

UNIVERSITY REFERENDUM IS TURNED DOWN WITH A BANG.

Grant County Superintendent of Schools Vigorously Denounces Movement.

CANYON CITY, Or., April 12.—(Special).—County School Superintendent C. J. McIntosh received this week copies of the State University appropriation referendum petition, accompanied by a circular letter from C. H. Walker, corresponding secretary of the Linn County Council, Patrons of Husbandry. Mr. McIntosh at once re-broadcast the petition, accompanied by a vigorous protest against the movement. He stated that he is opposed to the proposed use of the referendum in this case, and will do all he can to defeat it.

"In reply to your declaration that public school officers ought to stand in with us on the referendum," says McIntosh's letter, "you must permit me to think differently. We recognize the State University as the logical and legal head of the public school system, and to see how it can be crippled without damage to the whole system. The elementary and secondary schools of the system have been granted increased appropriations, and so should the head."

"Taxpayers some two years ago were held up on measures less popular, and are now paying the cost—over $35,000. I cannot be a party to further pillage. I take pleasure in calling your attention to the fact that other branches of your truly noble order are taking broader views of the movement, and have repudiated your ill-considered action."

It is not thought likely that many more can be secured in this part of the state.

Explosion Takes Away Steps.

OREGON CITY, Or., April 12.—(Special).—A portion of the steps leading from Sixth street to the top of the bluff were carried away today by an explosion of dynamite. Workmen were planting telephone poles and were digging holes for the purpose and had three heavy timbers fastened together placed over the hole in order to prevent portions of rock being hurled into the air. It is probable that a larger charge of dynamite was used than the men realized, for the timbers were thrown into the air and struck on the stairway, the explosion being felt in houses many blocks distant.
