

LOUIS ZIMMERMAN'S COURAGE SQUARES WITH HIS CONVICTIONS

Third of a Series in Which Mayoralty Candidates Are Discussed

BY ARTHUR A. GREENE.
OF THE men who want to be Mayor there are an even half dozen. There are two diverging ways by which a citizen may reach the exalted seat which dominates the municipality, and those who tread either of them will reach their destination on May 3.

Louis Zimmerman.

One of these half dozen will come rejoicing bringing in the fine large majority that will settle the question as to who is the victorious candidate, and the others will eat their disappointment as they may.
I had a talk with Louis Zimmerman yesterday and learned a lot of things about him and his candidacy for Mayor which I did not know before.
First, I learned that Mr. Zimmerman has an organization back of his campaign because his office in the Fenton building was filled with log rollers when I found him there.
The second, and most important fact, that I gleaned from a meeting with him is that he is the only candidate I've met up with who had the nerve to declare himself positively on the question of polling the city which he seeks to rule.
This police matter is the one large blue hurdle which I have discovered in the way of all the Mayoralty candidates whom I have talked with. Zimmerman is outspoken in saying that he believes the present police force to be the "rottenest" in the history of the town, and that it will receive thorough shaking up if he is elected Mayor. He doesn't hesitate to say that he believes in closing the saloons after 1 o'clock A. M., and until 1 o'clock P. M. on Sundays, and that he will make gamblers hard to catch on and after the day of his election. He thinks that Sunday morning should be devoted to churchgoing or at least to rest, and feels that the saloonkeepers themselves and their employees should favor a system of control which will require them to stay closed until after noon on Sundays.
Recently Mr. Zimmerman was quoted as saying that he favored Sunday closing for the saloons. He denies that he ever made such a statement and insists that he has never advocated a suspension of the saloon business except during the forenoon hours of Sunday.
Louis Zimmerman is of German antecedents and has thousands of fellow countrymen in Portland. He is by no means a radical, but being a faithful Catholic he believes in churchgoing on Sunday morning, and furthermore in the theory at least a part of one day out of the seven should be devoted to rest even by the busy saloon men. He wants it understood that he is unalterably in favor of locked doors for the saloons between 1 o'clock in the morning and 1 o'clock in the afternoon of each Sunday. On the question of gambling, this across the Willamette, and eventually a subway, which will obviate the necessity of opening and closing draws for the benefit of river traffic. He stands for better harbor improvements and for free pilotage and public docks. His dearest wish is to see the East and West Sides cemented in a common bond and may be expected to favor anything that will bring the two great sections of the city closer together.

In the matter of franchises he takes a stand in favor of submitting all such questions which may arise in the future to the public under the initiative law to be enacted by the corporation and believes in asking the privileges that have already acquired to render a thorough accounting to the taxpayers.

Mr. Zimmerman seems to be right on the questions that are at present agitating the body politic, and if it should so happen that he becomes Mayor we may count on a reasonable administration. He doesn't go to extremes in either direction and in all probability would be neither a champion of blue laws nor a "wide open" chief executive. He was born in Germany in 1845 and came to this country in 1864 when he was 19 years old. His first employment was in clearing timber ground of stumps at Englewood, N. J. Later he went to Scranton, Pa., where he worked in the mines for two years. It will be seen that his American beginnings were humble and that he graduated from the hard school of common day labor. In the late '60s he went to California, where he remained until 1879, when he came to Portland and opened a butcher's shop at the corner of First and Taylor streets in 1880. From this beginning he branched out into the meat packing business until he has become one of the leading factors in this line of commercial activity in the Pacific Northwest. He has also devoted considerable attention to mining, and his gold properties have been among the most successful in the state, and through his efforts Oregon mining has become an enterprise of no second-rate importance.

Mr. Zimmerman is a resident of the Sixth Ward, where he and his wife live. He has been a consistent Republican since he cast his first vote for Ulysses S. Grant when Grant ran for the second term. He may or may not be nominated in the Republican primaries. That is for the voters to say; but should he get the nomination I see much reason why his party might be proud to follow him in the fight for the June election.
Louis Zimmerman has the courage of his convictions, and all the world likes that kind of a man.

SPEAKS FOR CLEAN CITY

SCANDINAVIANS URGED TO BE ACTIVE IN POLITICS.

John Anderson Addresses Mass-Meeting in Behalf of Edward Nelson and C. H. Danielson.

"It is time the Scandinavians of Portland were waking up. They have been asleep long enough, and ought to come to life and get into politics. Look what is going on all around us. Dens of vice and saloons running wide open in violation of the law. Why don't Mayor Lane close them? He has not done so. I tell you intoxication is the cause of the downfall of 90 per cent of our men and women who go wrong."
These were the words of John Anderson, one of Portland's Swedish merchants, at the meeting of the conference committee held in the Chamber of Commerce building last night to report progress on the petitions that are being circulated for the new trials of Edward Nelson and C. H. Danielson.
"We ought certainly to have a temperate city," said Rev. John Oval, "no matter who is Mayor. Statistics show that $140,000,000 is spent every year in the United States for liquor, while only $30,000,000 is expended for religion."
Chairman Anderson burst forth with a fierce arraignment of the social evils of the city. "I tell you, no woman is

Woman Looks to the Future in Choosing a Home Location

Select a home that will always be pleasant; where wholesome exercise and air will insure health for you and your children—a place you will enjoy when you are old.
This picture shows a homesite in Rose City Park, overlooking the peaceful valley, which slopes gently to the Columbia, while the symmetrical cone of St. Helen's—never changing, yet ever changing—catching the first ray of morning, holding the last gleam of day, rises to give inspiration and pleasure as long as daylight shall touch mountain peak.
Improve this long-awaited opportunity of buying a permanent home lot, just far enough to be away from noise and smoke; near enough to be easily reached from business; where every restriction and provision is being made to build up a substantial, convenient home locality, including all modern improvements, schools, churches—and the kind of people who make good homes, good neighbors and good citizens.

EAST SIDE CROSSING GATES IN OPERATION

TYPE OF GATE PLACED AT RAILROAD CROSSINGS ON EAST SIDE.

THE gates for the protection of general traffic at the railroad crossings on East First street at East Morrison and at Hawthorne avenue are now in operation. Long arms are placed at the four corners of the intersections and when the man in the look-out cage sees a train coming from either direction he drops these arms across the street and sidewalks. This leaves the Southern Pacific track open for passage of trains. As soon as the train has passed the look-out man lifts the arms at all the four corners to an erect position.
The arms of the gates are operated simultaneously by the man in the elevated cage by means of levers. The arms are painted white and are visible some distance. The cage or look-out house stands on posts on the southwest corners of both intersections about 25 feet above the street. At night the arms of the gates are provided with red lanterns, so that they may be seen by street motormen when they have been dropped across the street.

CHILDREN TO SEE PHOTOS

Students Invited to View Scenic Collection at Commercial Club.

The Gifford collection of photographs of Oregon scenery made for the O. R. & N. Co., and which is being exhibited in the Commercial Club, is to be made an educational lesson to Portland's school children. Invitation has been sent to all the schools of the city for the students to visit the clubrooms next Saturday, between 9 and 11 in the forenoon and from 2:30 to 4 in the afternoon to view the photographs, which are pronounced to be the best exhibit of the kind ever shown here. The photographs are enlargements, some examples being 35x40 inches and a few even larger.
Members' families are to have an opportunity to see the exhibit during the week at the same hours as set for the students on Saturday, using the hall entrance on Alder street. Manager Richardson desires teachers to be informed that while an effort was made to communicate with all schools in the city there may have been some inadvertently omitted and the invitation is meant to include all the educational institutions whether the notice has been received or not.
The railroad company is having a catalogue made and the photographs numbered so that visitors will be fully informed of names and locations of the views.
Gifford has received a commission from the club to furnish it with 50 or 75 similar photographs for permanent installation on the club's walls. A committee consisting of J. B. Wetherbee, Hubb McGuire and R. F. Bracl has been appointed to make the selection of views for the club's collection. Mr. Gifford, the photographer, has proposed to donate to the club one-half of the amount donated for the pictures.

Commercial Club to Meet.

The St. Johns Commercial Club will hold its annual meeting tomorrow night to receive reports from Secretary George

G. Perkins and elect officers for the ensuing year.

Also at this meeting arrangements will be made to incorporate the club and put it on a permanent basis. The annual meeting was postponed from last Wednesday on account of the opening of the St. Johns library.
