OUTLOOK FOR FRUIT

Authentic Information as to California Crop.

SEASON IS A LATE ONE

Cherries. Plums and Prunes Will Be Light, Peaches and Pears Prom-

fruit prospects:

Clerries—The early varieties, such as Chepman, Advance and Guinge, will be Best. Tartarians that blossomed early will slob be light. The later blossoming Tartarians, Higgereau, etc., and Royal Anns will be fair to heavy crop. This is particularly four in regard to Royal Anns. The first box of cherries this year will go forward several days later than last year, although last year was somewhat late. In other words we expect the first box of cherries to go forward this year about the 24th inst.

Apricots—Practically a failure, although there are more than last year. This is saying very little because the crop in the deciduous fruit shipping districts will not approximate one-eighth of what there should be.

Peaches—Generally very fair crop. There are some districts that have a shortage in some varieties, and some districts that are short I nother varieties, but, speaking as a whole, fram a fresh fruit shipping standpoint, prospects are very fair, much better than last year, which procless us a better assortment and better quality of stock for shipment.

Wheat Not So Easy to Buy.

Wheat is coming down from the interior in a way that is more satisfactory to the boast trade, and it is evident that had the movement been as good in the height of the season the country would now be practically bare of aupplies. As it is, some sections are closely sold out and buyers are beginning to find it difficult to secure needed supplies. These conditions naturally hold the market in a firm position.

PRICES DRIFT IDLY IN NEW YORK MARKET.

Uncertainty Over the Future Outcome of the Crops Is Repressive Influence.

NEW YORK, April 24.-The scanty dealngs in stocks today were heavily congested in two or three individual securities and the idle drift of prices in the general list seemed to be nothing more than a sympathetic response to the movements of the select few which were upward at first and then down yard. It was not apparent that conditions ound reflection in the day's dealings beround reflection in the day's dealings be-youd the repressive infuence on any specu-lative venture of the quite general uncer-tainty felt in the financial world over the future course of affairs. An important factor in determining this feature is recog-nized to be the outcome of the year's crops and the stock market shows some sensitive-beau to the objective even reports. The short and the stock market shows some sensitivehess to the shifting crop reports. The admitted existence of unfavorable conditions and the late season for the wheat crop add to the general feeling of uncertainty over the whole business future.

The lack of decided response in the stock market to the downward tendency of money rates, which has now become westlands.

rates, which has now become worldwide, deprives the advocates of higher prices of one of their main sources of reliance for bringing about a recovery in stocks and a revival of demand for them and for bonds. The easier conditions for money, in fact, are owing in large part to the liquidation of securities which has taken place and the puestion is left open whether effective case of money could be maintained if resources were to be replaced in stock holdings. On he side of foreign markets, especially, the juestion has features of interest. It is uite generally expected that the Bank of England, and probably the Bank of France will follow the Imperial Bank of Germany in reducing their official discount rates thi n reducing their official discount rates this week. The fall in money rates all over Eu-rope is pronounced, yet the market for for-eign exchange in New York has continued conspicuously strong and rates here ad-vanced in a way which gives rise to a disussion of a probable outward movement of cold. The demand for remittance from New fork raises the question whether Europe has attained ease of money by liquidation of American securities, for which payment is being made through the medium of the exchange market. How far the railroad note issues, supposed to have been placed abroad, are affected by this movement is a subject of interest and importance in determining the

A factor in the foreign influences upon the stock market today was the substance of the military estimates of the German gov-ernment and the character of the re-marks of the War Minister in presentmarks of the war minister in presenting them. For the most part, however, the day's influences were confined to special movements. Very large transactions in Union Pacific left opinion divided as to whether operations intended to further accumulation or distribution were going on.
The gossip concerning the stock was of a very favorable showing of not expring for wery favorable showing of net earnings for March and of a rumored new company to take over holdings of stocks in subsidiary companies, with a distribution of stocks in the holding companies to be made to Union Pacific stockholders in the form of a bonus. The market closed weak
