

TEMPERATURE AT 85 IN THE SHADE

Portland Gets Sudden Taste of Real Summer Weather Ahead of the Schedule.

SNOW MELTS IN MOUNTAINS

River Rising, and Weather Bureau Predicts That It Will Reach Stage of 15 Feet in One Week.

HOURLY TEMPERATURES.
5 A. M.	53.71
6 A. M.	54.1
7 A. M.	57.1
8 A. M.	65.2
9 A. M.	80.4
10 A. M.	78.5

Summer began in earnest yesterday, and for two hours in the afternoon the thermometer registered 85 degrees. The readings of the United States Weather Bureau show this temperature at 2 o'clock and 3 o'clock yesterday. The forecast for today is fair weather and cooler. Evidence of summer was apparent on every hand. Women appeared in white and men in negligee. The ice cream stands did a rushing business, and thirst emporiums kept the cash register working overtime.

From 6 A. M. until noon the thermometer steadily climbed upward. From that time until 2 o'clock it rose seven degrees, where it remained until nearly 4. The last reading was made at 3 P. M., when the official instrument showed 84 degrees. Continued warm weather will undoubtedly cause the river to rise. District Forecaster Official E. A. Beals issued the following statement yesterday regarding the probability of high water in the river. The warm weather of the last two days will undoubtedly start some water down the river. The stage this morning at up-river points were as follows:

Station	Flood Stage	Height in feet.
Levenson	.....	11.7
Riparian	.....	11.5
Yamhill	.....	11.7
The Dalles	.....	11.8
Wanouse	.....	12.5
Kopere	.....	14.0
Albany	.....	15.0
Salem	.....	15.5
Portland	.....	15.4

I do not expect much change in the river at Portland for the next three days. It will probably rise rapidly during next week and possibly reach a stage of 15 feet within seven days from now. Beginning next Monday we will publish daily river reports from 12 river stations, and make daily forecasts of the stage to be expected as far ahead as possible. It is probable we can give more information of this character for four or five days in advance of the stages reached in Portland. Should it be needed we will add more reports to our bulletins later, as we have four more stations that can be called upon for reports.

All persons interested in the river are invited to call upon the weather office for information in person, by telephone or by letter. Questions as desired, and we will take pleasure in answering inquiries so far as we are able to do so. It often happens we have reports from up-river points that are received after the newspapers go to press, and persons interested call upon our office for them they will get them until the next issue of the newspaper.

Freight Cannot Pass Locks.

HOOD RIVER, Or., May 15.—(Special.)—High water and the swift current prevented freight boats from passing through the Locks yesterday, and freight destined for up-river points had to be transferred. The Columbia is higher today than at any previous time this year. The Spencer and other passenger boats came up as usual.

PROSPEROUS DISPENSARY

Big Amounts Spent in New Furnishings and Equipment.

The oldest pedestrians on the street have been heard to remark the past few days regarding the changes going on at the corner of Yamhill and Second streets. Investigation reveals the fact that the St. Louis Medical Dispensary has been spending money lavishly in reconstructing the big brick and in refurbishing, as well as in adding much new and costly equipment. This is not the first time by any means that the management of this big institution has gone down in its pocket and spent money to put the dispensary up with the times, if not ahead. The institution is one of the oldest of this community, being established fully a quarter of a century in the city, and 35 years in its present location. Its corps of physicians are all graduates of colleges of note, and duly licensed to practice in the State of Oregon. In speaking of their work and the character of men in charge, the chief medical director said this morning: "The fact that we make a specialty of one class of diseases, select the staff for their fitness in this line of diseases, and have a special equipment for that purpose, puts us in a position to give more expert medical service in these particular branches than any other office or institution in the city or state. We treat more patients monthly than any two institutions in the state."

Eugene to Have Streets Sprinkled.

EUGENE, Or., May 15.—(Special.)—As a result of the street-sprinkling ordinance, by which any section of the city can be sprinkled upon request of a majority of the property holders in the affected district, four petitions have been taken before the Council, outside of the business section of the city. Others will be presented at the next meeting of the Council.

Engineer Modjeski Here.

Ralph Modjeski, consulting engineer for the Portland & Seaside in the construction of the Columbia and Willamette River bridges, is in the city for a few days and is looking over the work. He expresses himself as satisfied with the progress being made.

Prominent Railroad Man Cured of a Bad Cold.

"I had a cold hang on for over two months, which developed into catarrh of the head and stomach. My breath became so offensive that I shunned people, as they did me. The mucus from my head kept dropping into my throat and I would hack, cough and spit constantly. It was disgusting and caused me intense mortification. My stomach was upset and I had no appetite. I used a dozen remedies before I tried Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. That settled it—it touched the weak spot, and effectually cured me. I used but three bottles of it, and the result was wonderful."—James K. Smith, Treasurer Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, 1708 3d Ave., Birmingham, Ala.

BENCH SHOW OPENS

Many Fine Dogs on Display at Exposition Building.

AWARDS MADE BY JUDGE

Exhibition as to Quality the Best in History of Portland Kennel Club—Splendid Showing of Boston Terriers.

Have you ever seen the dogs? If you have not, just take an afternoon or an evening off and spend it at the Exposition building, and you will see one of the finest collections of the canine aristocracy ever shown in Portland. In the kennel shows of the past given by the Portland Kennel Club, there might have been more dogs benched, but in the eight years' history of the club, it has never held a show that equals the present one for the number of really classy dogs. In the special breeds, the pointer class, the collies and setters, and the individual breeds a better showing has never been made. The best part of it is, the most of the winners so far in these breeds are local dogs.

In the individual classes, the Boston terriers of course predominate, and it is not boasting to say that there are Boston terriers benched at the Exposition building that have and can win in any show in the country. This can also be said of the pointers and English setters, and collies.

When the Kennel Club threw open its doors to the public yesterday morning, all but about 20 of the dogs that had been entered were benched and tagged, and when it is considered that over 200 dogs are on exhibition, this speaks wonders for the officials of the club who have been working hard for the success of the exhibition. Promptly at 2 o'clock the judging began, and last night when Judge Dr. George W. Clayton finished awarding cards to the winners, he had judged down to the dachshunds. This afternoon Judge Clayton will judge the dachshunds and the collies and the contest between the owners of the collies promises to be exceedingly hot, for there are a great number of very handsome dogs of this breed in the show. A number of the collies are owned by women and most of them will take their own dogs into the judging ring.

The first dog to get the blue card was a handsome St. Bernard, Glenwood House, owned in San Mateo, California. In the great dachshund class, Dr. J. C. Zan's Luff, the dachshund that killed his prize winner Dandy, won first in the limit dogs of this class. In the show last night were two happy owners, Dr. G. E. Bruere and Dr. Allen Welch Smith. Dr. Bruere's pointer King Bee, won first in the puppy class, but he did not know it until he had located his dog last night, for the prize had been awarded during the afternoon. Dr. Bruere captured a third prize, Dr. Smith won first with his handsome Dan. Mrs. J. R. Chipman's Ranger was second in the novice dogs and E. M. Lazarus' Jack Rush was third. The first in this class went to A. C. Shute's Don Harold.
