Beaver Bridegroom Easy Mark for Seals and They Win, Six to One.

ASHLEY IS HARD TO FIND

Several Times Beavers Are Knocking at the Door, but the Needed Hits Are Wanting—Hawtitan Will Pitch Game Today.

San Francisco, 6. Portland, 1. Many Califf, the bridegroom, held a donation party yesterday afternoon and in spite of the fact that he received seven of the invading army, he showed his twisters down the groove so nicely and evenly that in two innings the Seals had clouted his offerings for five biffets, two of them good for extra cushions and nesting in all five runs. Then Manager Mac chased him to the clubhouse and as he entered into retirement Pat Donahue sagely remarked that Califf hadn't recovered the writer's cramp with which he was afflicted while in the Southland. Anyway, young Schimpf was sent to the mound, and in the two remaining innings, he did as pretty a bit of Seal skinning as could be wished for.

There was not anything much to the game but the way in which Captain Mohler's hired men cottoned to Califf's underlings in the fifth and seventh innings. Up to this stage it stood one all for Portland rammed one home in the second canto, with a two-ply awat by Mott and which was registered on a passed ball. The Seals got busy in the third and Bealo's pass was presented for collection, when Mohler's slam to the left garden was juggled by Bassey just long enough to make him safe. After this two spams were rolled off without need of consulting the suicide doctor. A rapid-fire double-play from Shinn to Casey to Carothers, heaven it to Street, in the third, but in the fourth, Califf became lavish and did a one-act free-transportation stunt and the tie-running was broken when Wheeler hit a two-bagger to right, brought Hildebrand home under wraps. Pa Irwin planted one safe and Wheeler scored, making it 3 to 1.

Runs Enough and to Spare.

This would have been enough to have won, for Ashley's pitching flipper was earning his salary and he was keeping his biffets and his biffets for the day. Mott found him for two, Shinn for one and Carson for one. The rest of the locals drew blanks. Several times during the hour and 45 minutes of play, we had players knocking at the door, but it was not the season of Beaver-house building. In the sixth, just as things were looking up and Bassey had drawn a walk, Mott lammed one to center. The curly-headed Williams plucked the ball out of the atmosphere, heaved it to Street, doubling Bassey, who, thinking the swipe was safe, had ran into second. In the ninth Mott's second biffet was a play for a moment, but the hope of a rally was blighted, for Donahue butted into a double from Mohler to Street and closed the game with a slam that hurt. With two down in the sixth, Hildebrand walked and Wheeler's wallop to right for two stations brought him home. Pa Irwin scored Wheeler with a single. In the seventh, with Williams in cold storage, Street biffed, Murphy followed suit and Bealo trumped with a thump for two bases. McCredie relieved the ball and in throwing a double, pelted the Seal backstop in the floating kidney and while Shinn was scrambling for the ball Bealo took third. He scored on a pretty double steal, in which Mohler, who had walked, started. Donahue's peg to second was just off enough to make the score safe. This ended the lesson.

Hawtitan Ladies' Day Pitcher.

Today will be the first ladies' day of the season and the Seals will use Barney Jay, the Hawtitan, as pitcher. This is the first year that the Sandwich Islander has been away from his home, but all baseball experts join in the statement that the Hawtitan is a wonder. He has a good reputation for the games he has pitched this season, and no doubt will do good work today. The score: Portland, 1; San Francisco, 6.

WEST SIDE HIGH SCHOOL WINS

East Siders Defeated in Interscholastic League Contest.

West Side High School 5, East Side High 3.

Talk about league ball! Well those two high school teams, the East and West Side public institutions of learning, have teams that can put up the real gift-edge variety of baseball. And the West Siders won. It was mean, too bad for the large number of East Side lads and lassies who crossed the river, with the expectation that their team would do up that older institution. But the East Side boys put up a good game, far better than the majority of the followers of the games expected.

The East Side High School started off poorly this season. At first nobody thought that the players would have a chance in the pennant race. But they surprised their opponents, and have shown everybody that they can play ball. The East Siders made a good beginning yesterday. In the second inning they chased a man over the pan, and turned the same trick in the third. But that was all, and while the men reached third base in later innings, yet no one was able to score. West Side High School made four runs in the third, and another in the sixth. Bunched hits and several bad miscues on the part of the East Siders were responsible for the runs. The score was: EAST SIDE.

HARTMAN & THOMPSON BANKERS - CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

to Henderson and McHale is to be commended, for both were on Portland's reserve list and belonged to Portland. Both of them tried to hold up Manager McCredie, and when he refused to stand the gaff they joined the Stockton team. When Secretary Farrell receives Manager McCredie's letter, both Henderson and McHale will be suspended, and until this suspension is lifted by Manager McCredie they cannot play with any club that is in organized baseball.

Manager McCredie has given both players a chance to report, and he should see to it that they are permanently outlawed, for if ever two ball players deserve what is coming to them, they do.

McHale was canned by Seattle because he failed to make good at the bat. He was picked up by McCredie and given a chance when he was about down and out. He landed on a winning team and made good. Henderson amounted to nothing until he joined Portland.

BOTH MEN ON BLACKLIST

McCREIDIE ATTENDS TO HENDERSON AND McHALE. Writes Secretary Farrell, of National Association, Explaining His Attitude Toward Recalcitrants.

Benny Henderson and Jimmy McHale, the two Portland players who have refused to join Manager McCredie's team, have been placed on the blacklist. A letter from Manager McCredie is on its way to Secretary Farrell, of the National Association, fully explaining the attitude of these two players and their refusal to report to McCredie when ordered to do so. Henderson and McHale have joined the Stockton team in the California State League, which is just enough of an outlaw organization to force their retirement from organized baseball.
