SUMMER SCHOOL OF ARTS AND CRAPTS. The Portland Art Association has engaged Miss Mildred Watkins, of Cleveland, C., to come to Portland and conduct a Summer school of arts and crafts. As this will be Portland's first effort in this direction the project will probably meet with hearty support. The plan is to secure as a workroom one of the Exposition buildings, many of which are admirably adapted for the purpose. Miss Watkins is one of the most experienced teachers in metal work in the country, and the beautiful examples of her art exhibited at the museum have attracted a great deal of attention. She has been associated with Miss Jane Carson, who is associated with Aliss Jane Carson, who is also an accomplished metalworker. The school will remain onen for several months, and if it is a success it is not unlikely that it will become a feature of the art life of Portland. The arts and crafts exhibit and exhibition of paintings by American artists now at the Art Museum will be on view for the last time Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5 P. M.

PLEA FOR LASTING PEACE

Rabbi Wise Deplores Warlike Tendency of Modern Times.

An eloquent lecture on "Universal Pence" was delivered by Rabbi Jonas Wise, at Temple Beth Israel last night. He urged the peace of nations at all cost, deployed war as a savage and ancient custom, denounced countries whose treasirles were depleted and people kept in abject slavery as the result of continual hostilities, and pointed to the only solution of peace in man harmonizing with man, the arbitration of nations, and the wiping out of race hatred and selfish-

"The call to battle has always stirred the souls and blood of men." said Rabbi Wise, "and it is the lightest part of a man's duty to go to war. The world just now turns to Israel and asks for faith, and the answer of the people shall be universal peace. When one nasion hates another, and is unforgiving, when enmity another, and is unforgiving; when enmity of long standing causes the discord of unhappiness in people, the only solution is the hope of yeace. When one country by means of war tries to overcome another before they can live in peace, then surely will that nation how in shame in the end, and suffer the consequences of an ancient savagery only equaled by that in Rome. "The military of today appeals to us only as a relic of those times when the rule of the sword was supreme, and ale of the sword was supreme, and rute force counted for victory. That is brute force counted for victory. That is the reason we go to war.

"War gives for the time the flush of victory, but in the end is a terrible task master. Look at the countries of Europe, Germany, Austria and Russia-with depleted treasuries, and an impoverished people, kept close to the ground, the serts of the earth, by war, war that chains men down in ignorance and gives little reward. Wars have never settled difficulties, or created a lasting peace. difficulties, or created a lasting peace.

"And we in this free country who elect our own people to the great offices of the land, and love liberty, bow in servial worship to the ancient god of war. "May the time soon come when we may cry, the sixe us everlasting peace." When God give us everlasting peace." When man deals justly with man, when the master treats kindly his slave, when the love of the world grows stronger, and vocal selection at the close of the sermon.
