HARMONY SHOWN AT CLUB DINNER

Splendid Spirit Dominates the Most Successful Gathering of Commercial Club Series.

RECEIVE JAMESTOWN GIRLS

"Portland and Its Relation to the Pacific Northwest," Topic Discussed by Local Business Men and the Eastern Visitors,

Oregon girls who are off to the Sameatown Exposition in the Pacific Northwest party were the guests of the Commercial Club last night at the regular monthly dinner. The presence of 14 pretty girls from all sections of the state was no doubt principally re-sponsible for the largest attendance of club members any of these dinners has called out, or perhaps it was the fact that the affair last night was the last monthly dinner that will be held until next October. Both these facts doubtless swelled the attendance; and, at any rate, the dinner was the most suc-cessful since the monthly dinner has been instituted by the club.

Harmony and co-operation was the fominant note sounded by all the speakers. The need of working shoul-tier to shoulder for the advancement of the whole Northwest, without giv-ing undue prominence to Portland alone, was voiced by all. But, better toan anything eise, was the optimism that was echoed by those who spoke and heartly applauded. The recent excursion of business men to Boise, Ida., and the interior cities of Oregon, given by the Commercial Club, has made a marked impression upon the club members, and they readily agreed last night to the importance of closer with the business men of the Inland Empire.

The long tables in the club dining-room were completely filled early in the evening, and a smaller one was pressed into service to provide for an overflow. At the head table sat George W. Stapleton, toastmaster; Phillip S. Bates, in charge of the Pacific Northwest's party of girls; Charles W. Hodson, president of the club, while W. Hodson, president of the club, while on both sides of these three dignitaries the girls sat in a long row. The presence of ladies at these dinners is a decided departure from the avowed policy which permits club members only to attend. The girls added to the interest of the affair, and seats at the head table were at a premium.

Drink Toast to Guests.

Toastmaster Stapleton introduced the girls to the club as soon as all were seated, for they were compelled to leave early to catch the $15 train for the East. He complimented the party and his remarks were followed by a toast to the girls, which the members drank standing. Mr. Bates responded briefly, saying

In part:
"These young ladies represent the most progressive and live counties of the state. We have designed this trip for the exploitation of Oregon and will distribute literature descriptive of this state at every town and city we pass through. The President has promised to give a reception to the young ladies in the East Room of the White House. ladies here and thank the Commercial Club for its courtesy,

"Portland and Its Relation to the Pa-cific Northwest," was the subject dis-cussed last night. T. W. B. London was the first speaker. He said the recent pligrimage to Boise and the other sections of the Inland Empire had impressed him with the great possibilities of irrigation and he was now assured as he never had been before that Portland is destined to be the greatest city on this Coast. He said other Coast states have many rivals for the place of the largest city, while Oregon has but one candidate for that proud distinction, and that is Portland.

Portland Without a Rival.

"Portland has had no rival since the remote past," he said. "She is without a rival and I think we can be sure that she will be the metropolis of this

We must not neglect the interior. We must keep the people of that dis-trict friendly and loyal to Portland. We must support the semi-arid portions of the Northwest in their quests for Government aid to develop their sections," Toustmuster Stapleton, in introducing Wallis Nash, said that while reat Los Angeles, he heard someone ask a merchant where he did his trading and the reply was that before the earthquake he traded with San Francisco but since then he had largely traded with Portland. Mr. Stapleton said wholesale merchants should see to it that they retain this trade and not depend alone on Portland's advan-tageous position at the confluence of two great rivers.

Mr. Nash, president of the Board of Trade, said he came here 30 years ago and remarked on the splendid progress the city has made since then. He said people of this city are too fond of it to get a true view, and that to gain a real perspective we should get farther away. He said the days when Port-land may have tried to dominate the state have passed away and the way Portland can rightly prosper is to sus-tain the most friendly and helpful re-lations with the surrounding country.

Outsider Praises Portland.

Fred H. Warren, of Detroit, Mich. was present as a guest and was asked to speak on his impressions of Port-land. He said the only modest peo-ple he has seen on the Coast are resi-dents of Portland.

"Here your people are uncertain as to how many inhabitants you have, but down in Los Angeles if you meet a child 3 years old, he can tell you how child 2 years old, he can tell you how many people Los Angeles has," he said. 'In fact, down there they do not teach their children to lisp their parents' names first but the earliest thing they learn is to speak something about Los Angeles. You have here a beautiful city and a beautiful state. Every resident of it ought to be a 'rooter' rul city and a beautiful state. Every resident of it ought to be a 'rooter' for Oregon and the city of Portland."

E. W. Wright spoke on the importance of the position of Portland in relation to the country with which it deals. He said the city acts as the commercial and financial agent of the Pacific Northwest. This was said to be due largely to the impregnable position the city occupies geographically. Her situation made Portland from the earliest days the natural distributing point. In the pioneer days traders came here for their goods; now dealers come here for money with which to do business.

"Our relations have not changed," said he, "with the interior from the first. The trading center has become the financial project.

The Portland library would put up the building, as it would be a good investment. The Portland investment. The Portland investment to maintain the main library and its branches, and the East Side branch would be considered the main branch.

O. M. Scott, Joseph Buchtel and H. H. Prouty were appointed a committee to confer with the Portland Library Association as to plans and cost of building, about $10,000. Mr. Brewster said that the building, as it would be a good investment. The Portland if brary would put up the building, as it would be a good investment. center and the relations with the upper country continue, as always, of the est friendly character.

Natural Advantages of City.

"Portland was made the metropolis of he Northwest, not by the hand of man, ut was destined by the Almighty to be he commercial metropolis of the North-vest. Where the ships can reach farthest inland, there will be found the spo where ocean freights will be discharged and received. It would be folly, however, to relax efforts to retain the prominence Portland gains by her vastly superior position. These excursions into the In-land Empire are of the greatest benefit. It is of course important to be acquainted with those with whom you do business. And fair treatment and honest dealing of our people are appreciated throughout Portland's wide distributive

J. Thorburn Ross spoke of the inter-relations between Portland and the sur-rounding county and said Portland should be the leader in working for the best interests of Oregon. In working for irrigation and harbor appropriations for the good of the whole state Portfor the good of the whole state, Port-land should be first.
"Not alone in commercial interests but "Not alone in commercial interests but in higher and better education, Portland should also be at work." said he. "In all that makes for civic righteousness and purity and strength, Portland should stand first. It seems to me the note that should be sounded is that of co-operation. She should win the support of all the men in all the counties of the state. There should be no stabbing in the back; nor should the stiletto be laid aside to grasp the hammer of be laid aside to grasp the hammer of the knocker."

George W. Fowles, of Detroit, Mich., sald that when he stood on Portland Heights yesterday morning, he said to his friend he had traveled a great deal and had been all over the old country but the sight was the grandest he has ever seen. He said if the attractions of Portland were known in the East the people would come out here in such numbers as to overwhelm the city. R. M. Hall spoke on the good work accomplished by the excursion to the Interior lately undertaken by the Com-mercial Club. He said the interests of Portland are districted with those of the Portland are identical with those of the whole Inland Empire.

W. B. Judson, of Chicago, spoke briefly and said he wanted to agree with a former speaker in saying that the view from Portland Heights and Council Crest is the finest thing he has S. Jackson told some good stories

Growth of Commercial Club.

C. W. Hodson sald Monday was the high-water mark in the history of the Commercial Club, for 272 members took luncheon on that day, a larger number than ever before.

C. K. Henry referred to the railroads of the state, which retain their land grants, as blights upon Oregon. He said these roads not only give inadequate service to isolated sections, but hold on to their land grants to the determinent of the state's grants. detriment of the state's growth. He contrasted the policy of the Northern Pacific, which has sold its land and induced settlement, with the policy of retrogression that characterized the Harriman lines.

Colonel R. A. Miller spoke of the Colonel R. A. Miller spoke of the infusion of country blood into the cities, and told of the returning Shriners, who said they liked Oregon better than California, and Portland better than Los Angeles. He said this kind of advertising will do much good.

Tom Richardson wondered why there is a strain of pessimism in Portland.
"We are constantly pointing to California and Washington" said he. "No other city on the footstool of God of its population does the business this one does. We sell more goods in Washington than any city in Washington. We handle more lumber than any other city in the world, and no other city of 200,000 people has the number of traveling men out on the road that Portland has. In her building operations for the past month, Portland is the seventh city of the whole country. Let us get together and cut out this pessimism. Let us confine our speeches to Portland, and let us refuse to applied these prophets of evil when they speak. I don't know why these pessimistic speeches are made. You can pile together the parks of all the cities, pick out the selected blocks of all the prettiest cities of all the world and then stand on Council Crest and one look from there will make you forget then stand on council crest and one look from there will make you forget them all. We are advancing like the wind, and on our own money. We should get in the habit of saying so; let's' do that."

ciub.

Considerable time was devoted to a discussion of the proposed charter amendment. J. B. Laber spoke at length upon the subject, and personally agreed to send copies of the proposed amendments as published by the city, to each club member, that they may be voted on intelligently at the next meeting.

The subject of the dumping of garbage promiseucusly about South Portibage promiscuously about South Port-land was discussed, and the secretary was instructed to make the proper complaint to the Board of Health and Chief of Police.

GIVEN A LIBRARY SITE

East Side People Called Upon to Erect Building.

At the meeting of the East Side Imat the meeting of the East Side Improvement Association last night, W. E. Brewster announced that the quarter block on the southeast corner of East Eleventh and East Alder streets had been given as a site for the East Side Branch library, provided the people would erect a suitable building. He said that the Lisuitable binding. He sat that the Di-brary Association trustees consider the proposition a good one, and that the Elast Side branch would be very important, in view of the new East Portland High School. A suitable building would cost investment. The Portland library would put in 1000 volumes at the start and in-

At the Theaters

What the Press Agente Say. "A Contented Woman" Scores Hit.

"A Contented Woman," the Hoyt comedy "A Contented Woman," the Hoyt comedy which the Baker Theater is presenting this week, is filling the house with record audiences every night and proving one of the decided hits of the year. The play is one of Hoyt's best and the fact that it is a satire on woman suffrage and politics makes it especially appropriate to Portland, where the issue has been before the public. Maribel Seymour, in her original songs and dances, carries the house by storm. All week and Saturday matines.

"The Singing Girl" Tonight.

The verdict in the San Francisco Opera Company's performance of Alice Neilsen's beautiful comic-opera success, 'The Singing Girl,' is one of highest praise. Ask anybody who has seen the Marquam show this week and he will tell you it is the biggest amusement bargain of the vertice. amusement bargain of the year. Aida Hemmi's beautiful soprano, Maude Beatty's gorgeous contraito, and Carl Haydn's mu-sical tenor voice charm all music-lovers, while Teddy Webb, George Kunkel and Joseph Miller, the comedians, are the crack laugh-producers of the time.

"Wicked London" Matince Today.

At today's matines at the Empire Theater the Seaman Stock Company will give an extra performance of the melodramatic sem. "Wicked London." This is by long odds the best production of the Empire season and should not be overlooked by any admirer of the best in theatrical attractions. Miss Pitt. Mr. Whitaker and the others of the company are, at their best. Curtain at 2:15 P. M.

"Knobs o' Tennessee."

Hal Reid has written no play more exciting than "Knobs o' Tennessee," which the new stock company at the Star Theater is presenting this week. The company is excelient and the performances are well attended. For excitement, sensations and surprises, "Knobs o' Tennessee" has few equals.
Tomorrow there will be a matinee and there will also be matinees Saturday and Sunday.

New Bill Makes Hit.

"The Counterfeiters," the new bill at the Lyric this week, is making a great hit. Miss Verna Felion and the other favorites that are in the Allen Stock Company have important roles and are working hard to please. The drama is thrilling, has an abundance of good drama is thrilling, has an abundance of good comedy and a touching heart interest story. Matiness tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday.
