pretty accurately foretold in another ten days.

Only half a foot has been gained by the encroaching waters in the last three days, and last night the official gauge at the weather bureau registered 18.1 feet. Relying on the accuracy of figures from points up the Columbia and Snake Rivers, Mr. Beals predicts a single of 19 feet by Wednesday. Intervenies weether and the vicinity, but he couldn't for the life of him remember where it was.

The Chicago players, though, soon brought the big fellow out of his dreamy condition by jeering taunts, and this got Cy so angry that all his nervousness vanished like a flash. Gritting his teeth, he took his position in the pitcher's box, with the stern determination to win that game in order to show the "sassy Westerners" that he wasn't so green as he looked.

Nerved up to this pitch, the ungainly Wednesday. Intervening weather condi-tions in the mountains at the headwaters of the Columbia must determine if it will remain stationary after that or will con-remain stationary after that or will continue to rise.

At an 18-foot stage, the flood crest in the Williamette River is already higher than for two years past, when the highest point recorded was 13.6 feet, reached June 15, 1905, and is in class distance of the 20.8-foot mark of May 27, 1904. Strangely this same height marked the crest of the floods of 1901 and 1902, and it was reached each year before the end It was reached each year before the end of the first week in June. Since 1990 the highest water that has visited the city came on June 19, 1965, when 24 feet was attained. At 21 feet, the river is over Front street in one or two places.

When the crest of the great flood of 1894 reached Portland the water piled up 33 feet and the record mark was attained on June 7. Only under extraordirange on June 1. Only under extraordinary conditions, says Mr. Beals, could such a flood recur again. Unusually hot weather over a wide area of country and deep snows in the mountains at the source of both the Snake and Columbia Rivers would be necessary.

It is on conditions in these two very rivers that Mr. Beals is keeping the closest watch. At Rivaria on the Snake

"Baseball fans can make or break a team," says Manager Ed Hanlon. "Last season they assisted materially in Cincin-nati in landing us further down in the race than we deserved to be through their severe criticism of some of our players. However, these criticisms convinced us of what we had thought for a long timenamely, that some of the old players had worn themselves out with the Pales and Warnatches for a foot, at Umatilla 4 and Warnatches for the closest watch. At Riparis on the Snake and Northport on the Columbia yesterday, the water was stationary, but steady rising was recorded farther down. At The Dalles it amounted to 6 of a foot, at Umatilla 4 and Warnatches for the closest watch. At Riparis on the Snake and worn the Snake and Warnatches for the closest watch. At Riparis on the Snake and Warnatches for the closest watch. At Riparis on the Snake and Northport on the Columbia yesterday.

So, while the weather bureau is not Captain Fred Johnson, which sailed making any positive predictions and this morning with a cargo of lumber admits that any prediction must be some-thing of a guess, the records of former years as given seem to indicate that the river at Portland is not due to reach a dangerous height this season.
