STIRRING UP WEST ON LAND QUESTION

Roosevelt's Eastern Enemies Seek to Undermine Him by Attack.

DRIVING THEM INTO OPEN

President's Policy to Use Resources of National Forests-Officials Will Defend It and Welcome Improvement.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, June 4.—The practical unanimity with which the people of the entire West indorse President Roosevelt and his course is extremely annoying to President's Eastern enemies. They find that his popularity, instead of waning, is increasing and it is evident that the peo-Mr. Roosevelt's popularity is to under-mine him in the West. If the West could be convinced that he is a dangerous man, it would be comparatively easy to control sentiment east of the Mississipp

There is to be a meeting at Denver June 16, when public land and forestry quesms are to be discussed. There is some dissatisfaction in parts of the West because the administration has been so free in the creation of forest reserves, but this sentiment is not general, and recent reports indicate that it is dying out. An effort inspired in the East will be made at Denver to arouse antagonistic sentiment among Western men on ac-count of the public land and forest re-serve policies, in the hope that this issue can be used to destroy the confi-dence of the West in the President and thereby check the growing admission that he shall be renominated. It is realized in the East that the movement in favor of renominating Mr. Roosevelt is more enthusiastically indorsed west of the Mis-sinelppi River than it is east of it and, if the West can be turned from its course, there is considerable hope that all talk of renominating the President will stop.

Eastern Schemers at Work,

It developed at the recent ression of Congress that certain Western Senators are decidedly opposed to the administration's forestry policy. It was declared on the floor of the Senate that the people of the West did not approve of the extension of forest reserves, as they interfered with legitimate developments of the West. In the face of these declarations, the President created a large number of new reserves just before Congress adjourned, and it was prophesied by his opponents that this action would do much to under-mine his popularity throughout the West.

Whether the charges made in the Senate were true or false, the adminis-tration is not unaware of the fact that powerful interests in the East are planpowerful interests in the East are plan-ning to arouse adverse sentiment through the West because of the forest reserve extension. When the opponents of the administration appear on the scene, they will be met in public by Secretary Garfield, Land Commissioner Ballinger, Gifford Pinchot, of the For-est Service, and Mr. Newell, of the Reclasmation Service, and the adminis-tration's side will be presented in its Reclamation Service, and the administration's side will be presented in its true light. These officials, who are thoroughly familiar with the public land policy of the President, are going west for the specific purpose of counteracting the evil effect of any misrepresentation that may be attempted by the opponents of the administration, They will explain the true purpose of the forest policy; they will make it plain that it is the practice of the plain that it is the practice of the President and of the administration to make reserves for two purposes only-to protect the timber and other forest lucts, and to protect the water sup ply in states where water is immensely valuable for irrigation.

Using Forest Resources.

The forestry policy as first outlined was crude and open to objection, but it is constantly being improved and every effort is being made to encourage proper use of the resources within re-serves. Thousands of permits have been granted to persons desiring to establish homesteads on agricultural lands in reserves. All areas suitable for graz-ing of livestock have been opened to sheep and cattle, except in a few cases where reserves are created primarily to protect the water supply of cities. An-nually the department is selling mil-lions of feet of matured timber in forest reserves to interests that desire to manufacture lumber for the market. Millions of feet of reserved timber are being given away annually to settlers living in the vicinity and to miners who have located within the limits of The department is encourage ing the utilization of water power in forest reserves, and is in fact encouraging all proper use of all resources within forest reservations. It merely insists upon the protection of the for-ests as such, and the protection of timber which has not reached a merchant-

It is true that the forestry policy is w perfect, but it is far superior to what it was a year ago, and changes e constantly made as practical sug-stions are offered by men interested In the development of the West.

West Rallying to Roosevelt.

In view of the President's attitude and in view of the practical manner in which reserves are being administered, and in further view of the willingness of the administration to make practical changes which improve the Forest Sar. In view of the President's attitude which reserves are being administered, and in further view of the willingness of the administration to make practical changes which improve the Forest Service, the opposition inspired by the an-tagonistic political element of the East show's good throughout. vice, the opposition inspired by the antagonistic political element of the East will probably not make much headway. Advices received in Washington Indicate that public sentiment throughout the West is far more favorable to the forestry policy today than it has ever been since reserves were created. The individual stockmen are becoming reconciled and in a great many cases are heartily commending the policy of Praser and Thompson River Canyon, the forestry policy today than it has ever been since reserves were created. The individual stockmen are becoming reconciled and in a great many cases are heartly commending the policy of Government control of the public range. Except in a few instances, the lumber men of the West are now ready to concede the fairness of paying a to concede the fairness of paying a lars apply at the local office, 142 Third reasonable price for raw material which they are permitted to cut on Government land, and individual set.

BUSINESS ITEMS. tiers who have taken up land within reserves are awakening to the fact that they are not unduly hardshipped, but on the contrary are afforded a protec-tion in reserves that they would not have if they located on the open public domain. The President fully cognizant of the unfriendly attitude of Eastern interests and their plan to undermine him in the West, will force them to seek in the open, fully confident that, when the issue is understood, the peo-ple will side with the Government and against the men with a grudge.

RIVER WILL FALL SATURDAY

Cooler Weather Predicted for Next

Few Days in Eastern Oregon.

Cooler weather is predicted for the rest of the week, and flood conditions are not as bad as they were several days ago. Yesterday the Weather Bureau gave out the information that the water would not go above a 19.7-foot stage, and that on Friday. East of the mountains the rivers are either at a standstill or are falling, and showers are producted.

List danger of an excessive flood, because there will be an enormous runoff during that time.

VIOLATED POLICE RULES

Detective Hawley Admits Having Acted as Election Officer.

Charges will probably be preferred against H. H. Hawley, a member of the Portland Police Department, with the rank of detective, and also a probation officer in the Juvenile Court. Hawley acted as a judge and clerk of election Monday and admits so doing, but declares he did not know it constituted a violation of the rules of the department or a general order issued Monday morning by the Chief.

morning by the Chief.

During Monday's voting, Detective Hawley acted as judge of election in Precinct 48, Ward 9, at 418 Union avenue north, and at night he acted as clerk. He admits this, but when asked for a statement last night declared that he did not know he was violating any police rules or the general order of the Chief prohibiting members of the department from taking any part in the election except to preserve or-der and vote.

"I had served as judge of election be-fore, and had no idea I was doing anything contrary to the rules," said De-tective Hawley. Chief of Police Gritsmacher was surprised when informed yesterday that Detective Hawley acted as judge and clerk of election, and at once took up the matter with Mayor Lane and Chair-man Thomas G. Greene, of the police committee of the executive board. Detective Hawley talked over the case with Mayor Lane yesterday.
