Portland top ors slept with ill-becoming grace upon the bed of Procrustes all day yesterday, for the Manning lid, clamped on at 1 o'clock in the morning, fitted all too tightly, and it never budged, saved for a few trembmorning hours. Portland in a word was as Puritum as Old New England

Five reckless salconmen, believing the Manning mandate was only a "bluff" opened ouse at the usual hour, but after being summarily yanked into police headquarters and made to put up cash ball of $50 each to appear this morning, they began to realize that the District Attorney had really been serious in his order regarding Sunday

Early in the morning, it was apparent that something was out of joint. Wobbly individuals by the score with bottles of bear or whisky under their with supplies for Sunday dinner, could be seen careening along the streets in vain endeavor to catch the first morning cars for home. While accurate figures are wanting, there is little doubt that Portland passed into the shadow of the Betchanalian eclipse drenched to the skin so far as bibulous nouls were concerned. More than a score of arrests were recorded during the early morning hours and in each ing said he was screwing up his courage for the "leng day spell." Never in the city a history have the saleons done the business in the same length of time that they transacted length of time that they transacted and this edict was passed around among during the late hours of Saturday the members. This applied to the Arling-night. The bottle trade was someton, Concordia, Commercial and Uniastounding One bar not far from Seventh and Washington street sold over $150 worth of bottled goods between 10 o'c'ock Saturday night and closing time.

got his change back. The family liquor stores were rushed with orders as they never had been be-fore. Their "leaders" in the display windows were largely made up of choice brands of "booze," and the groliquors filled record-breaking orders to their regular customers.

There were more people on the streets at 1 o'clock yesterday morning than during a circus-parade at high noon, and the gentry of unquenchable thirst lingered within the palace walls of rum and rye until the final tick of the fateful hour of 1 in uncountable numbers.

"We'll Hang John Manning-"

Out of one drinking parlor there filed in lockstep at least half a hundred tipsy wags who, in befitting celebra-tion of their last and lingering draugat from the fount of gin, had improvised to the tune of "John Brown's Body" the "We'll hang John Manning to a sour appl oh, we'll hang." etc.

At another corner—Sixth and Washington—they maneuvered into a counter-march of booze-befuddled yeonen, who added to the melodious lill of the former lay the following sad refrain:

Oh, there are no calls for Scotch highhalls As in days of Auld Lang Syne. And the two parties deployed and de-filed to the nearest point where the cars stopped.

Situation Well Handled.

As for handling the situation yesterday, all city and county officials seemed to be prepared for any emergency. Some trouble was expected and the District Attorney's office and the police department acted with firmness and dispatch as soon as complaints were received.

"Saddle Cop" Joe Keller had the honor of bringing to book the first violators of the closing law. C. W. Dilg. Twenty-fourth and Nicolai, and A. E. Lodell, Nineteenth and Vaughn, some how conceived the idea that Manning was only joking and they began doling out liquor to all who came at about $ o'clock in the morning. Keller rode up and told them to close. The saloonmen smiled at him and asked him' to have a drink. A few minutes later they were escorted to the police station and allowed to deposit $50 cash bail, each, for their law-breaking penchant.

"Ace" Welch Makes Record.

Depot Patrolman "Ace" Welch sat lown hard on his corner of the lid by grabbing three saloonmen in the North End at 9:30 yesterday morning. The offenders were C. S. Stephens, $33 Glisan; B. Eschelbacher, 135 Sixth, N., and T. J. Uhlman, 134 Tenth, N. They also gave $50 ball each after being warned that future violation would go harder with them.

The most serious infringement of the law was in St. Johns, where Lewis Richards, selected by the saloonkeepers of the town as the "fall guy," threw open his doors and with two hartenders, A. Bodal and S. B. Peny, began serving famished pilgrims by the The news that his place was open was quickly noised abroad and when Detective Maher, from District Attorney Manning's office, and Constable Lou Wagner arrived, about 90 customers were being served with drinks. Mr. Manning added, "and I hope their lawyers will file demurrers against the complaints so that the legal question involved may be brought to an issue at law under which I am acting will be made not later than Wednesday or Thursday of this week."

Social Clubs at Sea.

As a result of a misunderstanding b the police of District Attorney Manning's orders, the various social clubs really didn't know "where they were at." Late Saturday afternoon, they were informed that they must not sell or dispose of liquor in any way whatever on Sunday versity clubs and the Elks. The cli raised a protest and the result was that another order rescinding the former edict was issued. All the clubs mentioned were open, but to members only. FALSE STORIES SENT OUT

Numerous Unfavorable Rumors Are Spread, It Is Said to Bolster Up Friends of Defense-State Keeps Its Plans to Itself.

BOISE, Idaho, June 16 .- There is no ground for the apprehension felt by ome persons yesterday respecting the case of the state in the Haywood trial. The announcement that the state would finish the introduction of its testimony on Wednesday was at the bottom of the feeling, as it had been supposed the introduction of corroborative testimony would continue much longer. The state was asked to name a time when it would be through, and it had to make a statement in order that the defense might get its witnesses here, but there is no probabil-ity that it will be through Wednes-

There are many witnesses in corroboration yet to go on and some of these will be among the strongest. Further, the redirect examination of Orchard may come this week, though that is not settled. If he goes on redirect the state's case will scarcely be concluded this week.

State Keeps Own Counsel.

The prosecution is keeping its plans o itself as closely as possible and numerous witnesses will go on the stand whose names have not been mentioned. There is no doubt that a great many people fail to catch the theory of the case and what it is necessary for the state to prove. It has to prove the conspiracy and the connection of Hay-wood therewith; it does not have to connect Haywood more directly with the murder of Steunenberg, as so many seem to think. One in a position to know made the statement today to the writer that if Haywod had not joined with Moyer and Pettibone in sending Orchard on this mission his responsibility would be as great, since the conspiracy will be even more fully proved and Haywood will be connected with so many points that his re-Orchard not stated that the defendant was in the conferences held with the

The witnesses have come forward far more generally than had been noped for, and several have turned up during the progress of the case who were not known of before. There has been only one disappointment, and that is of minor importance. In at least one case the state has declined proferred testimony because of the sacrifice the witnesses would have to make in giving it. Another story is that the defense has at least two men on the jury who will stand out. There is no reason to believe there is foundation for that story. It is believed the defense has been circulating all these statements solely for the purpose of bolstering up their own people.

THREE IDAHO MEN ARE FOUND GUILTY

Jury's Verdict in Land Fraud Cases.

END OF HARD-FOUGHT TRIAL

Lewiston Bankers Convicted of Conspiracy.

JURY OUT FOR 34 HOURS

Court Officials Had Given Up Hope of Agreement and the Men Were Locked Up for the Night-Verdict at 8:45 Last Night.

MOSCOW, Idaho, June 16 .- (Special.) Tae jury in the North Idaho land conspiracy cases returned a verdict of guilty on two of the five counts of the indictment, the defendants and co-conspirators, George H. Kester, William Dwyer and William F. Kettenbach, being acquitted on the three remaining counts. The jury reached the verdict at 8:45, after the court officials had given up hope for the night.

J. W. Robinson, the sick juror, was carried into court on a cot attended by a trained nurse, his head being wrapped in bandages and his form covered with blankets. After polling the jury, Judge Dictrich examined the verdict and ordered the clerk to read it. The defendants were acquitted on counts one, two and five and found guilty on counts three and four. Jury Was Out 34 Hours.

Count three is known as the Corey indictment, and four as Guy L. Wilson count, they acting with the defendants, each filing on a quarter section of timber land in 1904, for which they re-ceived approximately $5 an acre.

The prosecution regards the verdict as a signal victory which paves the way for the prosecution of similar cases which will be tried at the Fall tern of the Federal Court. The jury was discharged, but ordered to report at 8:30 to-morrow morning It is said notice of appeal to the United States Court of Appeals will soon be filed by attorneys for the defense.

The jury was in consultation a few minutes less than 34 hours, having gone out at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. At 8 o'clock tonight no verdict had been reached and the 12 men were again locked up for the night, with little prospect at that hour, of a verdict before tomorrow morning. In a few minutes, Judge Deitrich at once notified. Dramatic Close of Long Case.

The dramatic close of the case was marked by the remarkable rally of J. W. Robinson, the aged juror, whose Illness caused an interruption in the trial last week. Propped up on a cot and cared for by a trained nurse, he was more comfortable than his fellow jurors, who sat in a gloomy jury room without material

All day the jury remained in its room talking quietly, evidently carefully weighing evidence. Report has it that the jury for hours stood nine for conviction and three for acquittal.

The defense was confident of acquittal, out a mistrial would not have displeased them, as they believed a second trial would result in a speedy acquittal. The prosecution were said to have a mass of troduced.

In the closing long-drawn-out legal battle, each side exhausted, every means of introducing testimony having a bearing on the case, and now that a verdict of guilty has been reached, it means a hard fight on the part of the Lewiston National Bank officials to escape sentence on McNeil's Island.
