Chicago Rabbi Believes Church Should Touch Lives of People and Thereby Promote Forms of Wholesome Activity.

CHICAGO, June 21 .- (Special.) -- A plan which will break with Jewish traditions stretching back thousands of years, is heing projected by Dr. Emil G. Hirsch of Sing! Temple, one of the most influential Jewish congregations in America.

The plan, which has already passed the formative stage, contemplates nothing less than the transformation of Sinal Temple into a neighborhood center, with multiform activities focusing about the central religious idea. The working out of the plan involves the abandonment of the present temple, which was erected at Indiana avenue and Twenty-first street 30 years ago, the selection of a more suitable site, probably the southeast corner boulevard and Forty-sixth street, and the erection of a new building to cost between $230,000 and $300,000.

Tribute to Dr. Hirsch.

In a sense the development of this idea of Dr. Hirsch will be a tribute paid by his congregation to the long and devoted service, covering more than a quarter of a century, of the rabbi. It will be the first time in the history of the Jewish Church that the ancient religious traditions of the race have ben modified to meet modern conceptions of neighborhood

In a general way the plans of the rabbl contemplate the creation of a radiating center of culture similar to Lincoln

Dr. Hirsch now is in Europe on his annual vacation, but his scheme for augmenting the social appeal of the church was outlined by Moses E. Greenebaum, president of the congregation.

Get Close to Lives of People.

"Dr. Hirsch has felt for some time," said he, "that the church's activities should be multiform in character, that its influence should embrace many kinds of appeal, that it should be a social institution thuching the lives of the people at as many vital points as possible.

"It is his conviction that the church should represent and promote every form of wholesome activity; that it should get as close to the lives of the people

"Ever since the Western Union defeated the telegraphers in their strike in 1882, its officers have been severe in their treatment of the men and have always refused to recognize any organization of its employes. "We have demanded four concessions on the part of the telegraph companies, as follows: A permanent advance of 10 per cent in wages, an end to existing discriminations among employes, furnishing typewriters to the operators and an eight-hour workday. The increase of 25 per cent, asked by the men in San Francisco, is desired only so long as present conditions prevail in that city, when they will be content to accept the 10 per cent raise that has been asked for all operators throughout the country."
