THE second and last week of the Zinn company's engagement at the Baker opened yesterday, the bill being "The Telephone Exchange," a musical mixture, embodying a number of jingly song numbers and some comedy calculated to drive away dull care on a warm Summer's night.

THE big feature of the Zinn show is always the chorus, which in "The Telephone Exchange," does most of the work and deserves most of the credit.

There is not enough plot in the piece to keep anybody's guess, there being never an interval of more than three minutes between songs and dances.

Among the principals Frances Grey again demonstrated that she is a woman of much versatility and a valuable factor in the musical show business.

THE number that made the biggest hit was the upside-down dance, done by Miss Grey and the chorus in the second act.

Maurice Rena Coste sings "The Palms" acceptably, and the competitive cakewalk by the girls brought round after round of applause.

THE show is just as represented, a frivolous hodge-podge of music, dancing and fun, and as such, is worthy of patronage. It will run all week.
