

HIGHWAYMEN FIRE ON AUTOMOBILES

Bullets Fly After Chauffeurs Who Disobey Command to Halt.

BALL HITS ONE MACHINE

Chorus Girls Returning From Visit to Suburban Roadhouse Faint With Fright After Thrilling Experience on Linton Road.

Two automobiles filled with passengers, returning from Clatsop town on the Linton road, were fired on by highwaymen early yesterday morning as a result of the refusal of the drivers of the machines to halt at command of the robbers. Five shots were fired at Jack Dodd, the chauffeur of the first auto, one of the bullets piercing a pair of extra tires strapped to the front of his machine almost at his elbow. An hour later Jack Riddle, the driver of the second machine, had a similar experience. Three shots were fired at him but none took effect. Both chauffeurs agree that there were three highwaymen, and that they were armed with revolvers.

Neither of the chauffeurs reported to the police and when it came to the ears of Sheriff Stevens yesterday morning the robbers had had 10 hours to make their escape. All three highwaymen were large and wore dark caps. Chauffeur Dodd says they were dark-skinned and may have been Negroes. fired on at the same spot, about five miles from Portland and less than a mile from Cliff Inn. Dodd was hailed by the robbers at 1 o'clock and Riddle was commanded to stop shortly after 2.

"I was going at a pretty fair speed," said Dodd yesterday, "when I saw three tall men cross from the railroad. They got out of the front of their machine and must have stood close to the bank a little this side of Cliff Inn. I think they misjudged my lights and yelled at me to halt, for as soon as one called out 'Halt,' I put on full speed and was away from them like a flash.

"I'm Shot!" She Screamed. "As the lever clicked, one of the men cried out: 'Damn you! You don't stop, do you?' Then came the shots. I don't know whether only one of the men or more fired. They came pretty close to landing us, as you can see by the bullet holes in the tires. A few of the shots landed in the road and three pierced the back of the machine. One of the boys struck my woman passenger in the back and she screamed, 'I'm shot,' and fainted.

The hold-up was a well-planned affair, as the three men came from the shadow of a string of boxcars and crossed the road in full view of me. I had been commanded to halt when I first saw them and the story would have been different, as they would have had a better chance to get me, and I could not well have run the three of them down. As it was I am quite sure they misjudged my distance, not knowing the light, and called out to me too late.

"All three of them wore big fellows and wore dark enough to be Negroes or Chinamen. It was not a Chinaman's voice that halted me, neither did it sound like a Negro's. I think I could tell the voice if I heard it again. I did not get excited, probably because I did not know my spare tires were pierced until daylight. I went back over the same road again two hours later, but was not molested."

Girls Had a Good "Hunch." Riddle had a similar experience, but was fired at only three times. His passengers, through a "hunch," as one said, "that something dreadful would happen before they left Portland," had turned over their cash and jewelry to the chauffeur before leaving Clatsop town. Riddle placed the money and trinkets in the tool box of his machine.

Descriptions of the men given by both chauffeurs tally. The drivers believe the thugs were amateurs, as apparently they made no attempt to disguise themselves and used new revolvers of small caliber. At first the chauffeurs thought the shots were fired from automatic pistols, but as no empty shells were found on the road, it is now thought ordinary revolvers were used.

Sheriff Stevens and Deputy Sheriff Hollingsworth visited the scene of the attempted hold-up yesterday morning, but obtained no clue to the thugs.

BUTTER PRICES ADVANCED

Hazelwood Company Raises Quotations to 27 1-2 Cents.

The Portland butter market will advance 2 1/2 cents per pound this morning. According to precedent, prices should decline at this time of year, but precedents do not count for anything in this era of prosperity and high cost of living. The consumers' butter market is no longer not only in the Northwest but all over the country, that in the period of greatest production prices move irresistibly upward. The wholesale price of butter, as announced by the Hazelwood Cream Company, will be 27 1/2 cents this morning. In the first half of May, the market was at its lowest stage when the quotation was 24 1/2 cents. At the close of that month the price advanced to 24 cents and since June 1, 25 cents has been the ruling quotation.

The price of butter in all the coast markets is governed largely by the values current in the East. The Eastern experts have, for some time, been predicting a decline, but their calculations went wrong and instead of a drop, prices have risen there. The local demand for butter is in excess of the make of the city and Valley creameries, and these facts induced the Hazelwood directors, at a meeting yesterday, to decide upon an advance. The new price will probably be generally followed by the other city creameries in the course of a few days.

SAILOR KEEPS LATE HOURS

Rooms Streets With Companion and Two Young Girls.

Herbert Nelson, a seaman on the cruiser Charleston, Otto Neumeyer, a citizen who says his home is at Tenth and Burnside streets, and two young girls were arrested by Patrolman Suttler at Fifth and Alder streets at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, and brought to the police station to explain to Captain of Police Bailey. The members of the quartet said they were on their way to Second and Columbia streets, where the two girls reside with their parents. When asked why they were at Fifth and Alder streets they were unable to give satisfactory answers.

The girls, Edna Baldwin, aged 15, and

Ellen Knowles, aged 16, informed the captain that they had just left Miss Knowles' mother, who had given them permission to remain out a little longer with the sailor and Neumeyer, but this explanation did not satisfy the officer and he ordered Patrolman Suttler to take the girls to their homes and inform their parents of their escapade.

In the meantime the captain lectured Seaman Nelson severely, after which he ordered Patrolman Abbott to escort him to the foot of Stark street and see that he took one of the launches for his ship. Captain Bailey also informed the sailor that his conduct in keeping two young girls out on the street at such an unseemly hour was censurable and that the matter would be reported to Rear Admiral Swinburne in accordance with the orders issued by Chief of Police Griffithmacher.

This order, which forbids the arrest of any of the visiting sailors, was issued previous to the arrival of the warships, and was the result of an unfortunate affair which occurred about one year ago and which resulted in the summary discharge of Patrolman O. F. Isaakson from the force for having assaulted sailors from the cruiser Chicago, which was in port at that time.

After escorting the girls home and interviewing their parents, Patrolman Suttler reported that the mother of the Knowles girl admitted having been in the company of the young people until 10 o'clock, and that she had accompanied them to the Oaks, where the entire party spent the evening dancing. The attention of the juvenile court is to be called on the girls, and Judge Fraser may deal severely with the parents.

Neumeyer was locked up on the charge of roaming the streets after hours, and will have an opportunity of explaining his conduct before Judge Cameron this morning.

WESTERN ACADEMY EVENT

CLOSING EXERCISES AT HEILIG TONIGHT.

Closing of Seventh Successful Year of Portland's School of Dramatic Art, Elocution and Music.

An event of unusual interest will be the closing exercises of the Western Academy of Dramatic Art, Elocution and Music, to be held at the Heilig Theater tomorrow night.

These exercises mark the closing of the seventh year of the academy, which has passed the tentative stage and has become one of the recognized educational institutions of this metropolitan area of the Northwest. Each year has added to the number of its pupils and improved facilities for accomplishment of its work. Heretofore the seating capacity of the large auditorium of the academy has been ample to accommodate those who were interested in programs presented by the institution, but it was necessary this year to secure the Heilig Theater to make provision for all who expressed a desire to attend.

Professor W. M. Rasmus stands at the head of the academy as its founder and principal, and its artistic and financial success is due in large measure to his untiring energy and executive ability. Associated with him in the dramatic and elocutionary departments are Professor J. Lester Evans and Miss Edna Buchanan.

Mr. Paul, an experienced actor and stage director, came to the academy three years ago. The number of his pupils who have gained recognition in professional work evidence his undoubted worth as an instructor. He has been no less successful as a public reader and entertainer, his services in this line being constantly in demand.

Miss Bode is also an experienced teacher of expression. She has been under the personal direction of Professor Rasmus for several years, and is a graduate of the academy. Her literary ability has been recognized by many of the leading magazines. She is the author of some fine verse, and the sketch, "After Tonight," one of the numbers on tonight's program, is from her pen.

Mrs. Rose Dunford, director of the department of vocal music, has not only a charming voice, but knows how to use it to give artistic expression to her songs. She is, moreover, a most competent instructor, and a very delightful woman off as well as on the concert platform.

These artists will appear on the program at the Heilig tomorrow night, and the feature of the program will be the feature of the program will be the home and forum scenes from James Sheridan Knowles' powerful tragedy, "Virginia." The characters will all be correctly costumed, and the scene setting will be complete and appropriate.
