

"TONY" APACHE IS DECLARED NEGRO

Deceives Smart Set in New York City and Portland.

ARTIST DISCOVERS FRAUD

While Supposed Redskin is Posing Painter Snatches Wig From Model and Discloses Several Marked Ethiopian Characteristics.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, July 5.—Portlanders who two Summers ago opened their houses to Antonio Apache, supposed grandson of Chief Cochise, and those who otherwise met and admired this brilliant red man during the Lewis and Clark fair, will be surprised to learn that the New Yorkers who had dealings with this same Apache, after careful investigation, declare him to be a fake, and not an Indian, as he poses, but a negro, the son of a former actor, Mrs. Russell Sage. Apache was in Portland during the whole Summer of 1905, was a conspicuous figure at the Portland Hotel, and was much in evidence at the exposition and in other prominent places. But if Portlanders were taken in, New York's 400 was sold even worse.

According to a dispatch from New York, Apache has been able to exploit the credulity of the smart set for the last 10 years, because he made deception an art. In physical appearance, but also studied the habits and language of the redskin. On top of his African curls he has been accustomed to wear a wig of coarse black Indian hair. Least the natural ebon of his features should disprove his claim of Indian ancestry, he is said to have covered his face with bronzed paint, doing it so skillfully that he has frequently posed to artists for "color."

Society Is Duped. Society first began to entertain the alleged grandson of Cochise two years ago, when Mrs. John R. Drexl invited a select number of guests to meet him. At once invitations from the most exclusive homes of New York and Philadelphia began to be showered upon him. For a time he dropped out of the social horizon, only to appear a still greater favorite last Winter at a ball at the home of Mrs. John Jacob Astor. President of the ball he was, and continued with this "Indian" hon. Antonio told the President that he was a graduate of Harvard, and aroused such interest in his host that he subsequently married him earnestly with questions. Antonio's answers were always so prompt that the President said: "Here certainly is a fine type of American; the kind that can be developed out of a race which is so generally considered to be decreasing."

The President had it said, had talks with Antonio at the White House, in which the two have discussed Indian affairs. In order to become versed in the habits and history of the Apaches, this fellow, it is said, went down into the Southwest and lived among them. He took a young Indian to New York from the Catholic Indian School, and had the youth call him "uncle."

This young Indian was received with such favor as the nephew of the brilliant Antonio, who he subsequently married the sister of a prominent artist.

Disguise Is Penetrated. "I am absolutely certain that this social lion is a negro," said William M. Carey, the well-known New York artist. "When I was painting a picture entitled 'The Buffalo Painter,' I sent for Antonio. He was tall, statuesque and strange as it may seem in the light of subsequent events, he possessed that sort of Indian color that I wanted. But as I studied his face, I became suspicious. It was not an Indian face. My suspicions became acute when I saw sticking straight out from my model's forehead an elastic loop. It concealed the impulse and, leaning forward, I gave the elastic such a vigorous jerk that I scalded him right then and there. In an instant I saw that he was a negro and told him so. His head of woolly hair was cropped close, except for a tufted ridge in the middle of his head to which he attached his wig. He admitted that he was a negro, but asserted his father was a full-blooded Seminole."

This artist says Tony stole his picture and pawned it for $55. He added: "It was then I learned that Tony's mother was a negress by the name of Mrs. Simpson, who cooked for Mrs. Russell Sage. Mrs. Sage sent for me and asked me to withdraw my charges. I declined. Tony was accordingly sentenced to two years at Sing Sing."

FETTERED BY PORTLAND LEADERS

"Tony" Is Well Remembered in Rose City.

Antonio Apache, referred to in the above dispatch, and to whom President Roosevelt will not be far from feeling constrained to apply the sobriquet "the faker," since the Nation's Chief Executive as well as many others were duped by the impostor, cut rather a wide swath in Portland during the Lewis and Clark Exposition. Antonio while in Portland, was accepted at the par value of his own assertions, and he was entertained and fettered by some of the leading families in the city, gaining easy entrance as the stalwart remnant of a noble race of chieftains, whose purity of lineage was vanishing, and whose people were gradually succumbing to a relentless destiny. Antonio was revered and honored on the ground that he represented the type of the aboriginal Indian who peopled the American continent before the whites and civilization swept over it.

Lionized by Young Set. Antonio is remembered here for his magnificent physique, his handsome features, his Chesterfieldian manners whose purity of lineage was vanishing, and whose people were gradually succumbing to a relentless destiny. Antonio was revered and honored on the ground that he represented the type of the aboriginal Indian who peopled the American continent before the whites and civilization swept over it.

Whole Village Burned Up. MALONE, N. Y., July 5.—Almost the entire village of North Lawrence was destroyed by fire today. Starting in the Union Hotel, the fire swept over the whole business district, destroying two hotels, 10 stores and several factories and private dwellings.

talty of Portland people, but he was lavish in scattering his own money in gay epicurean soirees at which he was mine host. He was of an artistic temperament, and in musical circles he had many friends, not to say admirers. He was even lionized by the younger set, to whom the expose in the East will no doubt come as a shock.

Antonio and some of his escapades are still rather fresh in the memory of Portland people who happened to cross his trail, and among these is Mrs. Marlon MacRae, formerly of Washington, D. C. whose Antonio was wont to shame, and does more or less at the present time. Mrs. MacRae said last night:

Swaggers at Washington. "Antonio has been pretty well exposed as a fake Indian a good many times herebefore. His story, when he first appeared at the National capital some years ago, was that he had been stolen from his parents by Geronimo in the early '80s during the latter famous raid on his own nation. Antonio claimed to be the son of the chief of the Apaches, and that he was sold to a wealthy white family in the East, after having been kept in seclusion for a time.

The white family lavished all the luxuries their great wealth could bestow upon Antonio, teaching him the ways of society, and believed the story he told regarding his gentle Indian birth. He claimed and proclaimed from the housetop that he was a son of Harvard, though none, so far as I ever knew, has ever seen his diploma.

Wig Pulled Off. "The Apache people always scouted his pretensions to copper-colored aristocracy, and it was common talk in Washington when I lived there, that a fellow who had dealings with the Washington for no other purpose than to pick a quarrel with Antonio and expose him. They apparently had been 'tipped off' about his shock of raven hair, well-groomed and plastered to his head, and shining as polished ebony, for after engaging him in some trivial altercation, one of the Arizona braves grabbed Antonio by the hair and off came the flowing wig, exposing beneath it a poll covered with well-cropped kinky hair of undeniable negro origin. This incident has been frequently exploited in the papers.

"Antonio made a great many pretensions about his superior breeding and his lofty lineage while in Portland during the fair, but he was, as a good many people will remember, identified with a moving picture outfit during the Summer season.

"In Washington he was always seeking entrance into different social circles, but he never got farther than the front of his mansions about having been stolen from his home by Geronimo when a lad, were pretty well exposed by officials in the Department of Indian Affairs, and particularly a friend of mine who had at one time been an Indian agent on the Apache reservation.

"Antonio, while a strikingly handsome man, big, broad and active, and always dressed in the most scrupulous fashion, looks a great deal more like a negro or 'greaser' than an Apache."

TALK OF SENATORS' DUEL

TILLMAN AND DOLLIVER HAVE VERBAL CONFLICT.

Southerner Resents Iowan's Statement He Should Be in Jail for Inciting Anarchy.

JACKSON, Mich., July 5.—A story sent out from this city stating that Senator Benjamin Tillman, of South Carolina, while in this city, challenged Senator J. P. Dolliver, of Iowa, to a duel is regarded here as a pure fabrication. Mr. Tillman lectured here Wednesday evening and left here for his South before Mr. Dolliver arrived to deliver a lecture Thursday.

The duel story hangs upon a severe criticism Mr. Dolliver made of the South Carolina Senator in his lecture last night. Mr. Dolliver is quoted as saying:

"Men of such type as Senator Tillman, who openly boast of violating the law who are instrumental in the murder of hundreds of black men and who preach anarchy, should be behind the prison walls."

The duel story was to the effect that the two Senators met in this city today and became engaged in a heated conversation. Mr. Dolliver's remarks, Mr. Tillman finally challenging the Iowan to a duel.

KIDNAPERS UNDER FIRE

Investigation to Be Made of Arizona Affair.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5.—The Department of Justice today directed the United States District Attorney for Arizona, to make an investigation into the alleged kidnaping from Douglas, Ariz., into Mexico, of Emmanuel Saravi, an alleged Mexican agitator, reported to have been connected with a Mexican newspaper, published in St. Louis in the interest of the revolutionary party.

A dispatch from Los Angeles quotes the Apache as totally denying the statements contained in the New York dispatches.

Will Study Death Penalty.

NEW YORK, July 5.—State Senator E. R. Ackerman, of New Jersey, will call for Europe soon with a commission from Governor Stokes to investigate the effect of capital punishment as a deterrent on crime there. Governor Stokes, it is stated, is much interested in the abolition of capital punishment, providing it can be shown that life imprisonment would be a greater deterrent to crime.

Brought Ashes of Auto Victim.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Mrs. M. H. Johnson, of Berkeley, Cal., whose husband was killed recently in an automobile accident in England, has arrived here on her way to her California home. Mr. Johnson's body was cremated and Mrs. Johnson has brought with her an urn containing his ashes, which will be interred near their California home. Mrs. Johnson will leave for the West today.

Whole Village Burned Up.

MALONE, N. Y., July 5.—Almost the entire village of North Lawrence was destroyed by fire today. Starting in the Union Hotel, the fire swept over the whole business district, destroying two hotels, 10 stores and several factories and private dwellings.

A high wind added to the progress of the flames. The village was without fire protection and summoned help from Malone.

RIGHT OF CAPTURE

Debate on American Proposition at The Hague.

BRITAIN LEADS OBJECTORS

Exemption of Neutral Property at Sea Supported by Many Powers, but Others Say Blockade Must Be Defined.

DRAGO DOCTRINE PROPOSED

United States Proposes to Bar forcible Collection of Debts.

THE HAGUE, July 5.—The entire afternoon sitting of the committee on the Geneva convention was given over to a discussion of the American proposition, presented by Joseph H. Choate on June 24, regarding the inalienability of private property on the high seas. The committee sat under the presidency of Professor de Martens. M. Nelidoff (Russia), president of the conference, was present. Mr. Choate's proposition is that, if a vessel of the United States is captured by an enemy, the United States should be entitled to the cargo of such vessel.

Holland and Brazil Second. W. M. de Baurfther (Holland) then read a declaration stating that the Dutch government adhered to the American principle.

Ruy Barbosa (Brazil) then delivered a long speech, in which he explained that the statement made by him on June 24 had been wrongly interpreted as an unconditional adhesion to the American proposition. He wished to make it clear that Brazil was not the cat's paw of America, but that she supported the American principle for the reason that capture never brought victory to any one.

John Bull Objects. Sir Ernest Salow then made a declaration on behalf of Great Britain. He said he realized the serious character of the arguments in favor of the inalienability of private property on the high seas, but the discussion showed the evident and logical tendency toward abolition of the commercial blockade. Sir Ernest demonstrated that the proposal of the American government would complicate matters and create new causes of dispute, as a result of which the discussion between belligerents would give rise to a prolongation of the war.

Must Define Blockade First. Baron Marschall von Bieberstein (Germany) began his remarks by setting forth that Germany never had been in favor of the capture of private property at sea, and consequently Mr. Choate's proposition was certainly a very unpalatable one. He regarded the capture of a vessel as a violation of the right of neutral shipping, and the violation of a blockade, two questions which would have to be defined, as otherwise any proclamation of the kind would be in vain and the actual system of today would remain in force.

Germany would be ready to collaborate in the protection of private property at sea, but on condition that the question how to make this protection efficacious be first elucidated.

M. Tcharykoff in his turn declared the Russian delegation had no objection to the ideas set forth by Mr. Choate, which so creditably represented the traditions of the United States, but they did not think the question was yet ripe for solution. Much present in the question was necessary to reach a general understanding of this matter and the Russian delegation did not believe the conference would succeed in solving the question from its present status.

UNWRITTEN LAW IN BELGIUM

Waddington Acquitted of Murder in Killing Sister's Trauducer.

BRUSSELS, July 5.—Carlos Waddington, son of Luis Waddington, who was charged with the murder of his sister, Trauducer, was acquitted today by the Belgian court. The verdict was reached after a long trial, during which Waddington's defense attorneys made a strong case for his acquittal. The court found that the evidence against Waddington was insufficient to support a conviction.

REBEL VOLUNTEERS ORGANIZE AND RICH JOIN MOVEMENT.

LONDON, July 5.—Dispatches from India report that the disaffection among the natives is rapidly increasing. According to reports from various parts of the province, the rebels are organizing and recruiting. The British authorities are taking steps to suppress the movement, but the rebels are determined to continue their struggle.

NORWAY STANDS WITH AMERICA.

Dr. Hagerup then voiced the adherence of Norway to the American doctrine. He referred to the important commercial interests of Norway at sea and said his country, although small in area, was surprised in the matter of international commerce by only a few other nations. Norway will vote for the American proposition that the question of contraband be examined.

The Portuguese delegation subscribed to the statement made by the German delegates expressing the belief that it is first necessary to solve the questions of blockade and contraband.

AIMS IRONY AT ROOSEVELT.

Peres Triana, a member of the delegation from the United States of America, made a speech of extreme length. He said Colombia must refuse to subscribe to the proposition of the United States. Triana explained that Colombia is a nation like Colombia, with a merchant marine and with hardly any naval strength, there is everything to lose and nothing to gain by the suspension of the right to capture private property on the high seas. In conclusion M. Triana made ironical reference to President Roosevelt. He said:

"President Roosevelt may consider himself a happy mortal if, when he descends from the Presidential chair, which for his prestige, power and potentiality may be compared to the thrones of kings and emperors, or at a later period the hour of setting sun of a life filled with energetic activity, he may with uplifted head and laying his hand upon his heart, declare before the history of the world that he was any and all occasions and at all times he has respected the rights of the weak, of justice and of humanity, even to the detriment of the political interests and ambitions of his own country. When a man possesses that degree of morality, he certainly is entitled to submit his name before nations and the peoples of the world in order to ask them to act disinterestedly in the cause of humanity."

M. Renault (France) said he recognized the matter to be complicated by the questions connected with it, and that these questions must be solved. The right of capture must be exercised in accordance with the following conditions: First—That it be not exercised in the interests of lucre and to accomplish the right of booty must be abolished.

Second—That it be used only as a means of attack on states, and not on individuals.

At the conclusion of the remarks of M. Renault, Mr. Rose delivered a speech in which he reviewed the entire matter. He enumerated many judicial, humanitarian and economical reasons in support of the American proposition. He contended that private property at sea, which is not contraband of war, is entitled to the same protection now enjoyed by private property on land. He added that this was in an American doctrine; that it had long been approved by many statesmen and jurists of distinction, and that it had been embodied in many treaties. The present rulings of international law, which forbid the pillaging of private property on land, Mr. Rose went on, and at the same time declare that such actions are grossly unjust, indefensible, never should have existed, and should be abolished as speedily as possible.

Sir Edward Fry (Great Britain) expressed the opinion that capture at sea was one of the least inhuman methods of war. The committee adjourned until Wednesday.

DRAGO DOCTRINE PROPOSED. United States Proposes to Bar forcible Collection of Debts.

THE HAGUE, July 5.—The text of the American proposition presented by the sub-committee on arbitration of the peace conference on July 2 on the subject of the collection of debts between nations is as follows:

To avoid the armed conflicts of purely pecuniary origin, caused by contractual debts claimed by the subjects or citizens of one country against the subjects of another, and also to guarantee that all debts of a contractual nature which are not settled in a friendly way through diplomatic means shall be submitted to arbitration.

It is understood that coercive measures involving the use of military or naval force to collect these debts cannot occur until the creditor country offers arbitration and the debtor country refuses it, leaves the offer unanswered, or until after the decision of the arbitrators is not fulfilled by the debtor country.

It is understood that the arbitration shall be according to the procedure set forth in chapter III of the convention of 1909, or the peaceful arrangement of international conflicts at The Hague.

It also establishes in equity the amount of the debt, the time and mode of payment and the guarantee to be given by the debtor country. The arbitrators covered from his indisposition, was present.

The French proposition providing that there shall be no arbitrary arrest of war before the opening of hostilities and the amendment of The Netherlands, establishing a delay of 24 hours between a declaration of war and the opening of hostilities, were discussed at length by the delegates of The Netherlands and France made speeches explaining their respective propositions. The Russian delegate supported the French proposition and Baron Marschall von Bieberstein (Germany) rose and said:

"The French proposition, which she considers conforms with the modern progress of warfare."

Joseph H. Choate (United States), Lord Reclus (Great Britain) and M. Nelidoff (Japan), said they reserved their opinion upon the whole principle of the French and Dutch propositions, and consequently abstained from voting. The meeting was adjourned until the next meeting of the sub-committee.

ITO DISGUSTED WITH EMPEROR

Discovers His Intrigues While He Is Making Promises.

SEOUL, July 5.—Inquiry shows that general disgust is the main effect among Japanese here as a result of the conspiracy in arranging a Korean revolution. The Hague, the telegraphic disclosures of which interrupted the Korean Emperor's profuse assurances to Marquis Ito of his readiness to accept the administration of the Emperor's intriques which have falsified a large section of the upper classes, who are now anticipating a miracle in Korea. Measures intended to rid the palace of foreign and native advisers are reported.

Adventurers were introduced by the Japanese in the Cabinet last Monday but Marquis Ito, in despair of saving the Emperor himself and the administration is disposed to confine its appeal to the people. Although Ito's administrative machinery is incapable of ministering justice to the Korean people, Japan has executed and in the matter of creating a base of operations and establishing a highway to Manchuria been strikingly successful in Korea.

Marquis Ito declared that it would require ten years to produce a modern government in Korea, while local Governors say that the present government will dispose of the abuses and outrages resulting from the contact of the Koreans with the Japanese. The latter are estimated to be now 100,000 strong in Korea.
