CLUB HOLDS JINKS

Multnomah Athletic Organization Gives Annual Outing.

BIG CROWD ENJOYS TRIP

Lewis River the Mecca of Jolly Junkies—Impromptu Sports and a General Good Time Are Enjoyed by All.

The Multnomah Club annual "low jinks" was held yesterday on the Polant Farm, on the Lewis River. Nearly 200 of the members of the club attended the festivities and had a jolly time. The steamer Beaver was chartered for the occasion, and Parsons' orchestra and Webber's Mandolin Club furnished the music.

At 9 o'clock in the morning the large crowd of members of the club, officials, and other invited guests boarded the steamer at the Couch-street dock. As the boat passed through the Steel bridge the crowd assembled on the structure was greeted by a hearty Multnomah yell. The steamer passed the cruiser Charleston, and the blue jackets who were on the deck of the warship were surprised to see the steamer, decorated with red and white, the colors of the club, pass by. The jackets gave a hearty cheer as the boat passed. After passing St. Johns the excursionists spent the trip down the river quietly, some sought shady spots and spent the time reading. Others watched the machinery work, played cards or talked with friends.

At the time the steamer passed into Lewis River lunch was served. About noon the boat landed, and the men, tired of the trip on the steamer, made a rush for the land. There was no regular programme of sports and the men amused themselves as they liked. Bill

Harris, the Thesplan from the Baker, amused the men by many droll stunts. Bill was the better and kept the clubmen laughing all the time. Harris is a member of the club and knows nearly every member. Some enjoyed boating, others amused themselves by swimming, and others by playing baseball. A few of the boys secured a team and drove to La Center, while others took to the nearby orchards and helped the farmers pick cherries.

A baseball game was started, but the sun was too hot, and the field too rough, so after a few minutes' play, the game was abandoned. Ed Rennick, the boxing instructor of the club, was one of the victims of the boys' fun. Ed refused to go into the water on the pretext that he could not swim, but was seized by a crowd of the younger members of the club and unceremoniously dunked. Several other prominent clubmen were treated in this manner, yet none objected, and all took the fun cheerfully. A fat men's race was started, and P. E. Brigham, one of the oldest members of the club, won. The other entries were Edward R. Woodward and Bill Harris. Another feature of the afternoon's fun was a boxing match. Bill Harris was the central figure in this event also. Bill could find no one willing to tackle him, and he was obliged to accept the title of champion of the club.

DEATH OF C. K. HARBAUGH

LIFELONG RESIDENT OF PORTLAND PASSES AWAY.

Born Here Half a Century Ago He Was for Many Years Prominent in the Business World.

Gradually sinking after a stroke of paralysis that he suffered two years ago, Colin K. Harbaugh, a native of Oregon, who for 30 years had been prominent in the business and social life of Portland, died early yesterday morning at Good Samaritan Hospital, aged 49 years. Mr. Harbaugh was born November 29, 1857, in a residence that stood on the site now occupied by Roberts Brothers' store at Third and Morrison streets. His father was Frederick Harbaugh, a pioneer, who owned one of the first sawmills in Oregon.

Portland was a small frontier village when Mr. Harbaugh first became identified with its affairs. From the time he finished his education at the High School and at the old Bishop Scott Academy, and embarked in business for himself, his influence in the local business world was remarkable. He early became prominently known as superintendent of the city's first street-car line. In 1884 Joe Holladay built and put in operation the horse-car line that old-timers will remember, on First street, then the principal thoroughfare, and Mr. Harbaugh managed it till 1888. He then resigned to become manager of the Oregon Real Estate Company, organized by Ben Holladay. Holladay's addition was one section of the town laid out by this firm. Until the apoplectic stroke two years ago, Mr. Harbaugh was secretary and managed all the affairs of that concern. Just before his misfortune, in 1904, he organized, with C. X. Larrabee, the Western Baking Company, which was sold after he was obliged to sever his connection with it. Though he never was a public official, Mr. Harbaugh's interest in public affairs was large, and his opinions were often asked and carried great weight with former City Councils. Mr. Harbaugh was of the German-Lutheran faith and a member of the A. O. U. W. He leaves three children—

Arthur G. and Paul C. Harbaugh, and Mrs. Katherine H. Merrick.

The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from Holman's undertaking parlors. The services will be under the auspices of the A. O. U. W.

GIVES GUARDS THE SLIP

Leonard has the reputation of having a fine memory for criminal faces.

CASE WILL BE DISMISSED

CHARGE AGAINST BARNEY OLDFIELD TO BE DROPPED.

Racer Signs Statement Admitting Race Meet Was a Failure, but Blames His Manager.

When the case of Barney Oldfield, the world's champion automobile driver, comes up before Judge Cameron in the Municipal Court this morning, a motion for dismissal will be entered by Deputy

231 WASHINGTON ST. PORTLAND OREGON. MAKER OF MENS CLOTHES

District Attorney Haney at the instance of the complaining witness.

Before a committee consisting of Jay H. Epton, Harvey O'Bryan and C. E. McDowell, Oldfield signed a statement yesterday in which he acknowledges that the race meet held on July 3 was not up to the expectations of the public and that the management of the meet is blameable for its failure, and further that E. A. Moros, who acts as his agent in arranging affairs of this kind, is to blame for the disappointment of the patrons. Oldfield acknowledges that Portland had a just complaint to make over the manner in which the meet was conducted, but maintains that he was connected with the meet merely in the capacity of a hired racer.

Oldfield will probably leave for the East tonight, as he is due to participate

In several speed contests at Chicago and Cleveland in the near future.

Dickering for "Stub" Spencer.

ABERDEEN, Wash., July 7.—(Special.)—"Stub" Spencer arrived in the city today in response to a wire from Manager Brown. It appears that Brown had about completed arrangements for the purchase of Spencer from the Vancouver team, but for some reason the deal is not yet completed, and Spencer will not wear an Aberdeen uniform for some time yet, if at all.
