Men With Capital Slow to Risk Speculations.

FRENCH ECONOMIST'S VIEW

M. Paul Leroy-Beaulieu Says There Must Be Falling in Prices and Greater Supply of Metals to Make Active Markets.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The stock market of the past week has revealed the cross currents of speculative sentiment, running on the one hand, through the channels of the Northwestern & Pacific Railroad stocks where efforts centered for an advance in prices and a stimulation of speculative interest, and on the other hand in the industrial group, where evidences of trade reaction caused some depression and hesitation. The easing tendency of the money markets has been a reviving influence on securities, but this was under restraint of the dubious ulterior prospect and the short time remaining before the strain of the interior demand for currency to move the crops may be expected to draw on New York banking resources. The stirring of speculative interest in a limited group of stocks has not proved convincing of any revival of substantial investment demand, which must be relied upon for any conclusive relief of the troubles caused by the scanty available supplies of capital. The indications of trade reaction are in accordance with the expectation generally felt ever since the disturbance in the securities market first gave warning of the forces at work to that end.

Metals Must Be Cheaper.

A recent article by M. Paul Leroy-Beaulieu, the distinguished French economist, analyzing the problems of the decline in investment securities and the prospects for their recovery, is given respectful attention among students of conditions. His conclusion that a period of inflation has led up to the present situation commands general attention. The course of events bears out the assumption that "bank habits cannot expand indefinitely, bank reserves cannot fall off continually, nor can business perpetually support high money rates." There must come, first, a shrinkage in speculative securities, next a fall in prices of raw materials of manufacturers, notably, metals. Real capital he holds, presents an insufficient supply for nations whose spirit of enterprise is so far stimulated as to lose sight of all limitations. Meantime, foreign supplies of capital are absorbed in unusually large home enterprises and were depleted also by the destruction of capital in war loans and in the San Francisco earthquake. The summing up of M. Leroy-Beaulieu is that, "The existing situation in the financial markets offers capitalists and investors generally the opportunity of which they have been deprived for nearly 20 years, of securing a suitable return on their invested capital." Nevertheless the investment demand in the New York market still waits. The copper market remained in an unstable condition after the reduction made pre-

LINEMEN STRIKE AT AN END

Telephone Men and Employers Reach a Compromise in Utah.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 21.—The strike which has kept union linemen out of the service of the Independent and Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone Companies for the past two months is likely to be settled at Salt Lake City, where the local unions vote on an agreement submitted today. The terms were submitted to the companies by Vice-President M. J. Sullivan of the International Union, and the district officials and were accepted today. Copies have been mailed to all locals in Utah, Idaho and Montana, and a referendum will be taken—a matter of three or four days, after which the trouble will in all likelihood be over. The terms of the agreement are withheld from the public, but are said to be in the nature of a compromise.

MINERS ACCEPT THE SCALE

Agree With Operators That They Had Asked Too Much.

BOISE, Idaho, July 21.—(Special).—A settlement has been reached on the question that was raised some weeks ago at Silver City and Delamar relative to wages of miners. The men made a request that an increase of 25 cents all around be made. This was referred to the home office of the companies interested. The replies showed that it was not practicable to make a raise in the pay, and the showing made was so satisfactory to the men that both unions voted to accept the conclusions of the companies and leave the old scale in effect. This was carried in the Silver City union by a vote of 88 to 42 and in the one at Delamar by 70 to 20.

Editor Attempts Suicide.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 21.—A. J. Kendrick, a newspaper editor of Fort Smith, Ark., attempted suicide here today. He shot himself twice and may die at any moment. He has been ill for some time, and came here for treatment. Kendrick went for a walk in the park this afternoon. While there he shot himself in the head and stomach.
