ANOTHER STREET NEEDED .- While the improvement of Caywood street connecting Milwaukie with East Eighth streets, will help to divert the heavy travel on Milwaukie street from the south, nothing short of another street parallel with Milwaukle will give permanent relief. It is thought that "East Seventeenth street opened and improved to Midway would be opened and improved to Midway would be the logical way to provide more facilities for that end of the city. At Midway a street could be opened on the west side of Milwaukie avenue to Sellwood. It would have to be forced through some acreage ground that now intervenes, but this tract must give way sooner or later.
It is conceded that another street must be opened and improved south parallel with Milwaukie as soon as it can be done. Milwaukie street is occupied with double streetcar tracks. double streetcar tracks.

> Child Is Forgotten in Excitement and Taken From Ruins a Charred Corpse_Babe in Arms Is Saved.

> Mrs., Thomas Ryan, 33 years of age, esiding at Reservoir Park, between Kern Park and Powell Valley, was fatally burned by on explosion of kerosane yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, and in the fire which later consumed the house, Lester, her 2-year-old son was burned to death. Through the heroism of 11-year-old Archie Conley, who resides in the neigh-borhood, Mrs. Ryan's baby, 7 months old, was saved from death in the flames. Mrs. Ryan was in haste to prepare the evening meal and attempted to rekindle the fire with kerosene. There were some live coals in the stove and the explosion which resulted threw blazing oil over the unfortunate woman. Mrs. Ryan ran out doors and was seen by Mrs. Lucinda Coney, who is a near neighbor. Mrs. Conley rushed to Mrs. Ryan's assistance with a blanket. She was not able to extinguish the flames by this means and poured a tubful of water over the woman. Mrs.

Ryan was horribly burned and no hope is held out for her recovery by her physicians, Drs. Briggs and Bartell.

Mr. Ryan, who arrived on the scene at 6:30 o'clock collapsed when he learned the terrible tragedy that had occurred in his family. He is a shoemaker. Archie Conley, who rushed into the burning house and saved the baby, was slightly burned. Neighbors made a desperate fight to save the little home in which the family lived, but there was no means at hand, and the house, with all its contents, burned to the ground. The place is so burned to the ground. The place is so far removed from the city limits that the Portland firemen could lend no aid.

After the house was in ruins, and the excitement somewhat calmed down, it was discovered to the horror of all those assembled that the little boy had not been taken from the house. His charred remains were found by searchers after the flames were extinguished. Coroner Finley was notified and took charge of Finley was notified and took charge of the body.

In the renewed excitement that followed neighbors telephoned for ambulances, and the Red Cross ambulance from the Fash-ion stables and the ambulance from the Holman Undertaking establishment responded. It was a long drive. At last the Holman ambulance found the house and took Mrs. Ryan to St. Vincent's Hospital. There it was stated at a late hour that she has no chance for recovery. She was burned from head to feet, and her death seems only a matter of a few hours at most. Neighbors took charge of the two Ryan children who were saved from

BEEF TRUST

It was some time in the first part of January, this year, when the proprietor of one of the largest markets in the city came running breathlessly to us. "Oh, Smith." cried he, "the Beef Trust is going to open up another market right on the corner, and they say they'll open up a door, right next to your door. For heaven's sake, Smith, sell out to the Trust while they are ready to buy you, or they'll make you lose the last dollar you've got."
"Let them try it," replied Smith, with a smile. "I don't get 'fraid, nor I don't sell out."
Well, the market has been opened, and, as the Irishman says, "this was the last camel on the straw's back," and it didn't work. The market bears the trade-mark of the Beef Trust. It swings the sign of Government inspection and uses the cull stuff that nobody else wants. Other markets throughout the city can send their left-overs and undesirable pleces of meat to this market and they are sold to the public as Government inspected meats. It is the Trust that roars and screams and how's and bribes for Government Inspection, and never under any circumstances allows its retail markets to accept it.

It is in the better class of markets—probably in your nearest trading place—that you are likely to get the starved-out, frozen roasts and steaks from the East.
